

Hidden Traps Led To Problems In Elk Grove Schools

(For the last several years, Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 has been plagued by seemingly endless problems. This is the second in a series that will examine the causes and results of the district's problems.)

by WANDALYN RICE

Many of the same policies which made Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 nationally renowned for innovation in the 1960s also contributed to the district's later problems.

A process of decentralization, consciously encouraged Supt. Roger Bardwell during his tenure, broke down the identification residents, teachers and principals had with the district as a whole.

The "excited, creative" staff members hired to work in the educational programs also shared another trait — they didn't stay long with the district. Many left to get advanced degrees or left for districts with offers of greater responsibility. And they left in greater than normal numbers.

And the fiscal cliff-hanging needed to continue expanding educational programs and keep up with the district's rapid growth could work only as long as outside grant money was available and voters remained willing to raise the tax rate.

The decentralization, which Bardwell also attempted when he was superintendent in Ithaca, New York, was a conscious policy to free the individual schools from control by central administrators.

"I'm convinced the superintendency is an obsolete position," says Bardwell, who left Ithaca this year to become an assistant publisher for Harper and Row in Evanston. "Education shouldn't be managed and controlled, and the bureaucracy should disappear."

THE POLICY succeeded both in freeing each school to approach education in its own way and in creating competition among schools for all available resources.

"I remember when I first came to the district," one principal says now. "One of the guys who'd been here a while took me into the corner and told me that the idea was the guy who hustled most got the most."

Gene Artemenko, who was serving on the school board when Bardwell resigned, saw the problem too.

"Bardwell had made individual arrangements rather than establishing consistent policy. There were inequities among individual schools because some principals were more ambitious than others," he says.

The same policy also had an effect on residents of the district.

"We were creating a more autonomous, decentralized district. People really identified with the elementary schools, and they were only incidentally a part of Dist. 59," Bardwell says.

Last year, while going from school to school trying to explain the need for a tax rate increase, the present superintendent, James Erviti, often used nearly the same words.

"Our district is so fragmented," he grumbled, "that people don't identify with the needs of a thing called Dist. 59."

Tax increases were easy to come by when Bardwell was superintendent. The district regularly asked for building bonds and for tax rate increases, all of which passed. At the same time, the dis-

Township Board To Meet To OK 1972-73 Budget

The Elk Grove Township Board of Auditors will meet today to approve a budget for the 1972-73 fiscal year which shows less than a 10 per cent increase in expenses in four main funds.

The proposed budget, scheduled for approval at 8 p.m. at the township hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, calls for expenditures of $183,212 in the town fund, used to pay salaries and maintain the township offices, $80,450 in the general assistance fund which provides emergency welfare payments for needy township residents, $169,000 in the road and bridge fund and $1,125 in the sewer fund.

The largest increase in any fund is in the general assistance fund, which during the past year totaled $56,800. The increase, according to Auditor Bernard Lee, is planned to provide for the increased demand that has been placed on the welfare fund this year.

The township provides temporary welfare payments for persons until they can be placed on the Cook County welfare rolls.

THE TOWN FUND is being increased $17,000 from $166,012 this year. The road and bridge fund decreased from $176,000 this year. That fund is used to maintain roads in unincorporated areas.

Lee said the budget will not mean an increase in real estate property taxes for the township because the expected increase in the area's assessed value will make up the increased costs.

The budget does not call for issuance of any tax anticipation warrants. These would allow the township to borrow money which will not be collected until the following spring.

The annual town meeting will be held Tuesday, April 11, at the township hall. The meeting will allow residents of the township to ask questions about the budget. Until a recent change in the law, the budget was officially adopted at the town meeting.

$5,000 Taken In Burglary

At least $5,000 was stolen from the Beef 'n' Barrel Restaurant, 1932 E. Higgins Rd., Elk Grove Township, when burglars opened the safe with a torch sometime after closing hours Sunday night or Monday morning.

An investigator from the Cook County Sheriff's police yesterday described the burglary as done by professionals, saying "they knew exactly where to use" the torch. "The job they did on the safe was probably one of the better jobs I've seen in the area," said the investigator.

The $5,000 loss estimate was a "bare minimum," said the spokesman, who added the actual loss could be much higher, depending on Sunday's receipts. Stored in the bank were receipts from the day, plus the "banks" to supply cash registers for Monday's operations. While the exact total will not be known until later this week, the investigator said it could be more than $10,000.

The burglary was discovered by Jack Manolas, day manager, when he reported to work Monday morning. He said the rear door to the restaurant had been pried open. Nothing else had been disturbed.

Al Domanico— Still Active In Schools

Today begins a series of interviews with the five candidates seeking the two school board posts in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59.)

by WANDALYN RICE

When Albert Domanico talks about the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education, he still uses the pronoun "we."

Although the Elk Grove Village resident has not served on the board since

Al
Domanico

1970, when he decided not to seek reelection because he thought he was being transferred out of town, he has remained active in district affairs. Last year he once again sought a position on the board and this year he is back in the race.

"It's not a recent decision to run for the board," he says. "It's two years old. I've stayed interested in elementary education for the eight years we've lived here."

Domanico's interest has been obvious by his attendance at board meetings and committee meetings — he has chalked up an attendance record rivaling that of board members.

HE SERVED ON the board when it hired Supt. James Erviti in 1970, and he has been pleased by many developments since Erviti began his job.

"The district was different when we first came here," he says. "Then we were in a hot-shot innovation period and were spending money because we had it. I think we've progressed to a con-

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

An all-white jury found two black convicts known as the "Soledad Brothers" innocent of murder charges in a case linked to that of Angela Davis.

The Supreme Court rejected the broadcasting industry's appeal of the 1969 law barring cigarette commercials from radio and television.

Myles Ambrose, special assistant attorney general for drug abuse law enforcement, said the Justice Department will ask for $2.3 million to finance a special program in 33 cities and regional areas to combat heroin traffic.

General Motors' only Chevrolet Vega Assembly line in Lordstown, Ohio, went back into production after a three-week strike by the United Auto Workers over working conditions.

A federal judge dismissed two charges against one of the Harrisburg Seven defendants but denied a defense request to throw out the entire case against the anti-war activists.

Sen. Edward Gurney, R-Fla., said it was now evident that one of Dita Beard's co-workers, trying to "get her," wrote the memorandum linking a settlement of a mammoth International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. antitrust case with a pledge to underwrite the Republican National Convention.

King Hussein of Jordan will confer with President Nixon today in a private visit to the White House.

Disclosing results of a new carbon monoxide study, a scientist said that rush-hour traffic over bridges and through tunnels must be reduced 75 per cent or more to meet air cleanup standards mandated by the government for mid-1975.

The State

State Rep. Harold Washington, D-Chicago, was sentenced by U.S. District Court Judge Joseph Sam Perry to serve "40 days of contemplation" in federal prison for failing to file income tax returns.

Roving pickets closed at least nine Southern Illinois coal mines in what was termed an unauthorized strike by the Illinois United Mine Workers Union.

Cook County State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan and attorneys for others indicted with him on charges of obstructing justice in a case involving a 1969 raid on a Black Panther headquarters, renewed their attempts to stop the charges.

The War

For the first time in nearly seven years, the number of U.S. servicemen in South Vietnam fell below the 100,000 level. There were 97,700 GIs in Vietnam. In the war, Communist forces attacked U.S. bases in Cambodia in a heavy barrage.

Mental Health Center

'Outpost' Office To Open

Schaumburg Township residents will have the services of a psychiatric social worker and a psychiatrist at a convenient location and during regularly scheduled hours starting April 5.

Northwest Mental Health Center will open its "outpost" facility in the township office at 105 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg, on that date. Once each week, on Wednesdays, Mrs. Rose Wheeler, psychiatric social worker, will be on duty in the town hall from 1-9 p.m. Dr. Eugene Trager, psychiatrist and medical director of the center, will take appointments between 1 and 7 p.m. the same days.

To function as a counseling and referral agency, the outpost will be under the organizational supervision of the center's main office, at 1711 W. Campbell St., Arlington Heights. All appointments are to be scheduled through the Arlington Heights office, by calling 392-1420.

The township office is not open for township business on Wednesdays, meaning facilities will be available for private consultation.

THE OUTPOST will offer marriage counseling, help with learning disabilities, group and individual therapy and general diagnosis and therapy. To be handled at the main office will be areas of treatment best provided from that facility.

While the center and the outpost will charge a nominal fee for services, based on ability to pay, no person will be denied assistance for inability to pay.

The outpost will be only a temporary facility, and likely will be replaced in one of two ways. Either the center's main office will be moved to a contemplated new building on Algonquin Road, just east of Roselle Road, or the center will discontinue service to Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships.

The two possibilities hinge on a decision to be made within the next few months by state distributors of federal aid for mental health services. Both Northwest and Elk Grove Community Services have applied for grants to serve these two townships. Northwest's application also is to finance services for Palatine and Wheeling townships.

IF THE GRANT is approved for Elk Grove Community Services, that organization would be required to serve Schaumburg Township, and there would be no need for Northwest to continue the outpost. Also, Northwest would have to find a new location for its proposed new building, one more centrally located to its two remaining townships.

If Northwest receives the grant, and is able to find funding for the new building, outpost services would be incorporated into the new main office.

Northwest already has completed preliminary drawings of the new building, made overtures to five banks for financing and leased one acre from Catholic Charities for $10 yearly.

"In the meantime, we feel service needs to be made accessible. We are trying to make a continued evaluation of needs," said Mrs. Lois Radtke, Northwest's executive secretary.

THE OPENING of the new branch office was termed "excellent" by Township Clerk Kathleen Wojcik. "I have been an advocate of this for years," said Mrs. Wojcik.

Mrs. Wojcik added the Elk Grove Community Services staff also would be welcomed at the town office, should it be the grant recipient. "I'm sure if they came to us, it would be the same arrangement. But I feel that Elk Grove probably would not be needing this office space," said Mrs. Wojcik, "since that organization has its own facilities at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

"We certainly would cooperate with any decisions made to provide services to the people of the township," she added.

School Candidates To Speak Today

Candidates for the board of education of Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 will face the public for the third of a series of candidates forums today at 8 p.m. at Oliver Wendell Holmes Junior High School in Mount Prospect.

The forum will include statements by the five candidates for two three-year terms on the board. They are Albert Domanico and Gerald Smiley of Elk Grove Village, Paul Neuhauser and Irene (Dolly) Burton of Mount Prospect, and James Sheldon of Des Plaines.

The election is April 8.

trict went deeply into tax anticipation warrants (TAWs), even issuing warrants borrowing tax money that would not be collected for two years.

Bardwell and his business manager, William Mann had a plan to get the district out from under the burden of debt.

"We were hoping to create a system that would be so good people would support it with property tax, but we had to time the referendums carefully and we couldn't afford to lose one," he says.

IN ADDITION, by spacing the referendums and taking advantage of the growing tax base, Bardwell says he assumed the borrowing would eventually be ended.

"We started cutting back on TAWs the last year I was there I thought if we came back soon enough for a referendum we could give the district the stability it would need," he said.

What Bardwell and others doing the planning at the time could not foresee was how fast inflation would spiral costs, outrunning the tax rate growth. In addition, the grant money, which the district was cashing in on, began to dry up.

Ludwig Bodzewski, who had been assistant superintendent under Bardwell and served as acting superintendent when Bardwell left, saw it happen.

"When we moved educationally, we moved not with district money. In the 60s the federal government set aside billions of dollars to support education. Then the money ran out at the federal level, and it wasn't easy to get money anymore," Bodzewski says.

The district had, at that time, commitments for about $15 million in grants, and, Bodzewski puzzles, "Where in the devil could the district find a million bucks?"

The cutback of funds was not the only reason the staff was leaving. Many were going to better jobs in other school districts and in universities.

BARDWELL LEFT for Ithaca, pursuing an ambition to "be a big-city superintendent." Business manager Mann left. Others, at lower levels, were also leaving.

A list of principals in the district schools shows the trend clearly. Principals have left an average of every 134 years at Robert Frost School in Mount Prospect, and Grant Wood School in Elk Grove Village, every 1 1/4 years at Juliette Low School in Arlington Heights, and every 2 2/3 years at Salt Creek School in Elk Grove Village.

When the tenure of all the principals in each of the district's existing schools is averaged, it amounts to 3 1/3 years in each school.

Bodzewski and Bardwell were troubled by the problem and, in an effort to slow turnover, instituted a pay scale that would give some teachers more money than the minimum. In addition, they hoped that the programs run through grants would attract, and keep, the best people.

"We tried to have stability," Bodzewski says now when questioned about the problem. "The fact that anyone asks the question now shows, I guess, that we didn't succeed."

Adlai's Signature Remains...

Although Sen. Adlai Stevenson III has gone to Washington, his stamped signature as Illinois treasurer is still appearing on checks in Illinois.

Mrs. Edward Jablenski, of 912 S. Candota Ave., Mount Prospect, last week got back a canceled check she had sent to Secretary of State John W. Lewis for her son's driving permit. "It was endorsed to Adlai Stevenson with no objections by the Secretary of State's office," Mrs. Jablenski said. The check was for her son who is currently taking driving lessons at Forest View High School.

Alan J. Dixon is treasurer of Illinois and has been since Stevenson left that office.

A call by a Herald reporter to the Chicago Secretary of State's office led to a transfer downstate. At this time a clerk explained how all checks made out to the secretary of state have to be endorsed over to the treasurer for payment. But she couldn't explain why Stevenson's name rather than Dixon's was on the check.

Later, Joe Belair, a member of the communications department of the Secretary of State's office, explained the mixup.

"We used to have checks endorsed by the person in office, but now we are getting away from that," Belair said. "We are having them endorsed now by the office itself, rather than throwing away all the endorsement stamps each time a new man takes office."

The old stamps apparently had the name of Stevenson rubbed out. Except for the one inadvertently used to endorse Mrs. Jablenski's check.

Man Proves Hypnosis Can Be Painless Experience

by DOUG RAY

The people who attended the seminar were looking for help.

Some wanted to stop smoking, others sought an easy way to lose weight and most were just curious about the small man dressed in a dark suit and white tie.

He calls himself a hypnotist and during the "self-help" lecture at the American Legion Hall in Palatine last week he told the audience they could do anything they want from walking barefoot over hot coals to walking through walls.

Dwayne Roberts of Palatine is 23 years old and may be one of the youngest hypnotists around.

To prove his hypnotic ability to the group of 75 persons, he pulled a hat pin from his pocket and asked a volunteer to plunge the pin into his hand.

A MEMBER OF the audience thrust the pin between Roberts' thumb and forefinger. "Deeper," Roberts said and the man pushed until the pin was lodged about 1/4 inch into his skin.

"You see," Roberts said, holding his hand in front of the audience. "There's no pain. . . and when I remove it there will be no blood." According to the young hypnotist, he had hypnotized himself by using the code numbers "one, two, three."

And when he removed the pin, there was no blood.

He again hypnotized himself. Men in the audience lifted him between two chairs, one chair was under his head and another under his feet. And then a 200-pound man stood on his stomach.

Whether muscle control or hypnosis, the audience seemed convinced that Roberts was at least unusual.

Asked how he managed to perform the feats he said "it took six years of practice." He attended a training school in Florida, where he received an associate's degree in hypnosis.

ACCORDING TO Roberts, "hypnosis can help you get rid of unnecessary pain, arthritis . . . double your senses" . . . grow hair for the balding and even produce teeth in the mouth of the toothless.

"It's all through the power of suggestion," he said.

Several of his former students attended the session and testified that hypnosis had worked for them, especially in weight control.

A Buffalo Grove man who is trying to lose excess weight wasn't quite sure whether he believed in power of hypnosis to help him reduce. "But I've tried everything else," he said, "and this just may work."

"READY, SET, GO!" was the command Sunday in the first Mount Prospect Park District invitational swim meet. More than 180 suburban swimmers competed in the 12-hour event at Kopp Pool in Mount Prospect. The Elk Grove Park District team took two trophies for best overall and best in boys' division. The Mount Prospect team received a trophy for highest score in the girls' division.

Industrial Parks Are 62% Sold Out

by BOB ANDERSEN

When averaged together, the Village of Schaumburg's three largest industrial parks are approximately 62 per cent sold out, mostly to light manufacturing and processing firms with a sprinkling of service companies, retail dealerships, distributors and corporate office and research headquarters.

The three parks — Plum Grove Industrial Estates, Schaumburg Industrial Park and Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Air Park — represent 1,200 acres. Of these, individual lots totaling 800 acres are sold, managing agents of the three parks report.

"We still have a few select lots left," said Dan O'Neill, vice president of Podolsky and Associates of Chicago, exclusive agents for the 450-acre Plum Grove park.

O'NEILL REPORTED lots comprising 420 acres in the park have been sold. The biggest buyer is Motorola, which occupies 300 acres.

Plum Grove Industrial Estates lies between the Illinois Tollway and Algonquin Road and between Meacham and Roselle roads.

The 250-acre Schaumburg Industrial Park is 50 per cent sold, said Richard LaReno, president of I.D.E.A., a subsidiary of Arthur Rubloff & Co. of Chicago.

Schaumburg Industrial Park lies between Plum Grove and Meacham roads and between Wiley and Golf roads.

INDIVIDUAL lots on 250 acres of Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Air Park's 600 acres are sold, reported James H. Dana, an associate of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates in Chicago, managing agents of the park.

The Centex-Schaumburg park lies between Irving Park and Wise roads and between Rodenburg Road and the eastern boundary of the village of Roselle.

The three agents report sale of the industrial lots is progressing faster than anticipated.

O'Neill said the Plum Grove park is about three years ahead of schedule. The land was purchased in 1967, he said, and it was expected to be fully sold in "five to seven years," he predicts.

LARENO SAID I.D.E.A. began selling lots in Schaumburg Industrial Park in January, 1969. He expects to have the park fully sold in another three years. The project is "ahead of schedule," he said.

The major factor contributing to the speedy sales in the Plum Grove park was the occupancy by Motorola, O'Neill said. He claimed another reason for the fast progress is the "land was priced right."

"The Schaumburg area is a place where things are being made," O'Neill said. Presently, he added, the area adapts itself more to "processing and manufacturing than to distribution." He compared this reality to the O'Hare Airport area, he said, which adapts itself more to distribution and warehousing companies.

One reason industrialists are moving to Schaumburg is that the labor market here is better than in areas closer to Chicago, O'Neill said. People living further north and west will travel to Schaumburg to work, but are reluctant to travel further east for employment.

LaReno generally agreed with O'Neill. The Schaumburg area is "especially receptive for office research and light manufacturing," as opposed to distribution, he said.

DANA REPORTED light manufacturing companies, machine and tool and die firms and service companies dominate the sales in the Centex-Schaumburg park.

"There is very little warehousing," he added.

Sales are really picking up this year, Dana said, offering an illustration.

"We have had 18 sales since Jan. 1 of this year," he reported. That compares with 24 sales during all of 1971, he added.

Why the increased sales? Dana said some of the increase is because the "economy is picking up." Another reason, he explained, is that the Schaumburg area is a "popular, in-place to be."

servative district both educationally and financially. I think that was one of our goals when we hired Erviti."

In addition, he says he does not see a tax rate referendum in the immediate future for the district, because "the people have judged that the level of education is sufficient now. If we get money to increase education, it won't be from property taxes."

EVEN THOUGH he has maintained close ties with the board, Domanico has disagreed with some board actions during the past year. He disagreed with a board decision to sell $1 million in building bonds for Friendship Junior High School in Des Plaines "a whole year before we needed it. We've never second-guessed the bond market before."

Also, he says he would like to see a contingency plan for opening Friendship earlier than the planned June, 1973 date if it is completed in time. "We need the school as soon as possible, but there is no plan to use it if it becomes available," he says.

He also disagreed sharply last summer when the board voted to close the school buildings to after-school activities following a referendum defeat. The decision still irritates him.

"I couldn't believe that all that talent on the board could come up with such a fragmentary decision," he says. "If it was not a punitive decision, it couldn't have been better planned to look like one."

ONE THING Domanico would like to see the district offer is "on-the-job" training for teachers, but he realizes providing it might cost more than the district can afford.

"I think we owe it to ourselves to find out the price of staff development and then set some objectives on it," he says, adding that Dist. 59 might be able to cooperate with other districts through the Northwest Education Cooperative (NEC) to provide training for teachers.

Some of his views on other issues are: TEACHER SALARY negotiations — "I don't think we can make the teachers into the enemy during negotiations and then tell them we are all part of a team the rest of the year. I think we have to present the district's responsibility to the taxpayers honestly and explain our financial position and then sit down with the teachers and decide how much will go into teacher's salaries."

EQUALIZING education using state or federal funds — "I support any type of federal or state aid to bring about equality, but I don't believe people should not be allowed to increase that level with local effort. I don't have a fear of federal aid if local control can be guaranteed."

UNIT DISTRICT proposed by Erviti to study forming a unit district in the area — "It's a very brave thing to say. I think he (Erviti) is honestly convinced that the unit district is educationally and financially the way to go. I would like to reserve judgment until NEC gets the report back from their consultant." (NEC now has a consultant investigating possible changes in that organization.)

Merit pay for teachers — "I would be for it if teachers and administrators can agree on an evaluation instrument, but good teachers have a major concern about who is going to do the evaluation."

Just Politics

Political Eyes Look To Springfield

by JAMES VESELY

With the primary election now behind us the attention of most politicians will again focus on the activities in Springfield and the opening of the 78th Session of the Illinois General Assembly on April 10 — just two weeks away.

Recent court decisions regarding school funding and the morass of the state's $7.4 billion budget for 1973 are sure to be top items for discussion when the legislature reconvenes.

In the meantime, the legislators have themselves been judged by various civic and special interest watchdog groups. These ratings of legislators should be kept in the context of the rating body, of course, and it should be remembered also that some politicians do not seek a good rating from certain groups and could, in fact, be embarrassed to be rated well by a group representing an opposing philosophy.

With that in mind, here are some sample ratings from two self-proclaimed watchdogs, the Independent Voters of Illinois and the Illinois Planning and Conservation League.

THE IVI rankings appeared this year before the Illinois primaries and were used by some candidates to further their campaigns. The IVI is the local state affiliate of the Americans for Democratic Action and thus traditionally favors Democratic party candidates — and particularly the liberal Democrats.

Receiving the IVI's top ranking this year in the Illinois Senate was Richard Newhouse of Chicago. Senator Newhouse, a LaSalle Street lawyer, represents the 24th State District, the South Shore of Chicago.

State Rep. Eugene Schlickman

Ranked eighth in the survey is the present state senator for most of the Northwest suburbs, John Graham of Barrington. According to the IVI, Senator Graham voted with the IVI's stand on 21 out of 40 issues in the Illinois Senate. The fact that Graham voted just barely over 50 per cent with the IVI stands and still ranks in the top 10 of the Senators in the IVI rankings is an indication of that organization's influence in the Illinois Senate.

State Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman organization's influence in the Illinois Senate.

Graham's probable replacement in the Illinois Senate through redistricting is current incumbent legislator David Regner of Mount Prospect. Unlike Graham, Regner ranks much lower in the estimation of the IVI. By only voting with the IVI in 16 out of 40 selected issues, Regner is ranked 25th out of 40 spots by the IVI.

Other area Republican legislators did much better in comparative rankings.

STATE REP. Brad Glass, now Republican party candidate for the Illinois Senate in the 1st District was ranked 19th out of 40 places. Gene Schlickman of Arlington Heights was ranked 16th and Brian Duff of the newly formed 1st District was ranked 14th out of 40. Schlickman voted in accord with IVI positions in 21 cases out of 40 issues, and Duff voted 23 times with the IVI position.

Not surprisingly, local Democratic party legislators did comparatively well in the IVI rankings.

State Rep. Eugenia Chapman was in the top ten, according to the IVI, and was placed 7th among representatives. Incumbents Aaron Jaffe and Harold Katz, both running again for election, were ranked 3rd by the IVI — a ranking which reflects the liberal stance of those politicians and of the IVI.

And who was last? Well, ranking in the 40th spot by the IVI was Representative Carl Hunsicker of Pontiac, Ill. Hunsicker was given a minus 21 score by the Independent Voters of Illinois since out of 40 issues before the Illinois House he voted with the IVI position only seven times.

In Pontiac, Mr. Hunsicker is probably not worried a bit about his IVI standings.

RANKINGS OF legislators by the Illinois Planning and Conservation League are a little different. Concerned with the matter of ecology and legislation aimed at issues conservationists feel important, the League named 13 legislators to their annual Dirty Dozen list.

The Dirty Dozen — this time a Baker's Dozen — is a list of those legislators the Illinois Planning and Conservation League deems as the lawmakers with the worst record on conservation. Keys of the League's assessment of the legislators was the Scenic Rivers Act (HB 2659), the bill to require registration of snowmobiles and bills to regulate offshore construction in Lake Michigan.

Among the Dirty Dozen are Sens. Kenneth Course and Frank Savickas of Chicago.

State Rep. David J. Regner

cago, Sen. Fred Smith of Chicago, Sen. H. R. Sours of Peoria, Sen. Terry Bruce of Olney, Sen. Sam Romano of Chicago, Sen. Clifford Latherow of Carthage, Sen. Philip Rock of Chicago, Sen. James Donnewalk of Breese and Representative Webber Borchers of Decatur.

Among those legislators cited by the League for outstanding efforts on behalf of conservation were some local lawmakers: Rep. Harold Katz of Glenview, Rep. Aaron Jaffe of Skokie and Sen. Howard Mohr of Forest Park.

Other winners of the League's Golden Dozen award were Rep. Arthur Berman of Chicago, Rep. John Kleme of Lake Forest, Rep. George Burditt of LaGrange, Sen. Karl Berning of Deerfield, Rep. Robert Mann of Chicago, Sen. Robert Mitchler of Oswego, Sen. Jack Kneupper of Elmhurst, Sen. Arthur Bidwell of River Forest and Rep. Glenn Schneider of Naperville.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

When you can postpone the play of a key suit to the last few cards you can usually obtain an accurate count.

South notes that his four-card spade suit is duplicated in dummy. He also notes that the queen of clubs is going to be his one problem.

He decides to start with spades. West shows out on the second spade and discards three hearts.

Now South takes the remaining two hearts and notes that East discards two clubs while West follows suit.

At this point, South knows that East must have started with quite a few clubs. He also knows that West started with exactly seven cards in the major suits and East with exactly five.

South can go further with his count. He cashes all the diamonds and East shows out on the third lead.

Now South has a complete count. East held four spades, one heart and two diamonds. That left him with six clubs.

As a check, West held one spade, six hearts and five diamonds. That left him with only one club.

Now South leads a club to dummy's ace. On the second lead of clubs he fi-

Oppose Airport Expansion

Plan Meeting On O'Hare

U.S. Rep. Harold Collier, R-10th, Friday said suburban officials and lawmakers will meet in early April to plan a coordinated legislative attack on O'Hare Airport expansion and pollution.

The strategy and planning session will be the first meeting for newly created subcommittees of an anti-airport expansion group created last summer by Collier, U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-13th, and U.S. Rep. John Erlenborn, R-14th.

Collier told the Herald the subcommittees will consider introduction of legislation, marshalling of public opinion, enforcement of noise and air pollution laws and encouragement of plans for a third Chicago-area airport.

No date or location has been set for the meeting, Collier said, but it will be held during the congressional Easter break, April 3-8.

At the group's first meeting Aug. 13, Collier had told 60 officials from 31 communities near O'Hare that mayors, state officials and federal legislators must wage a constant, coordinated fight against "unlimited Chicago control" over O'Hare and jet aircraft noise.

He asked the group to act on recommendations from a Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) report made public last summer. This report predicted that by 1975, 50,000 persons will be subjected to unhealthy noise levels from O'Hare, if no action is taken.

THE NIPC REPORT, sponsored by funds from the U.S. Department of Transportation and the Department for Housing and Urban Development, urged increased community, regional and state control over Chicago decisions on O'Hare expansion, and coordinated efforts on zoning and area planning.

Collier said Friday that four committees had been formed last month to focus the group's efforts and develop goals.

The legislative committee is chaired by State Sen. Howard Mohr, mayor of Forest Park and Republican candidate for reelection in the 5th legislative district.

Other members of this committee are Crane, Erlenborn, State Rep. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect; State Rep. James Pate Philip, R-Elmhurst; State Rep. Gene Hoffman, R-Elmhurst; State Sen. Jack Kneupper, R-39; State Sen. John Carroll, R-4th; and State Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge.

Collier mentioned as one possible legislative move, a requirement for large, well-publicized public hearings before any Chicago expansion of the airport.

The city has in the past held public hearings without notifying communities near the airport, Collier has said. The Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) could also be required to hold public hearings on proposed expansion, Collier said.

REP. JUCKETT has sought creation of a two-state airport authority to take over control of O'Hare from Chicago. His legislation for a northeastern Illinois and Northwestern Indiana authority to control O'Hare, Midway and Meigs airports has been defeated in the General Assembly, through Democratic opposition.

Recent legislation introduced by U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-2nd, which would have ended the federal monopoly on control of flight procedures — and noise regulation — also was recently defeated in Congress.

Recent efforts by suburbs near O'Hare to control airport noise pollution have failed, because courts have ruled that powers to regulate airline procedures are restricted to the federal government and can't be preempted by other governmental units.

The city of Des Plaines last week passed a noise ordinance aimed at reducing noise from airplanes flying over the city. The ordinance would also make illegal the noise from jets awaiting takeoffs. Framers of the ordinance anticipate a court test of the city's power to pass such a law.

Collier indicated that this committee would also try to "bring Chicago to the conference table" to see what compromises might be reached. Chicago, he said, now has the power, if it chooses, to end all night flights, between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m., a change many O'Hare noise critics have advocated.

THE GROUP'S committee on public information is headed by George Franks, a Wood Dale resident and member of the Northwest Civic Noise Abatement Committee. Other members include Des Plaines Ald. Robert Michaels (8th) and Clayton Brown, a Palatine Resident and member of the Pollution and Environmental Problems (PEP) committee of the Clean Air Coordinating committee.

This committee will work to keep area residents informed of Chicago plans for O'Hare and to focus public attention on problems which need to be solved, according to Des Plaines Ald. Alan Abrams (8th), a group member.

The group's Operational Standards and Compliance committee is headed by Rep. Bluthardt. Its member, including Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel, will study flight procedures and will conduct testing to ensure that federal and state noise and pollution standards now in effect, or planned for the future, are enforced, Ald. Abrams said.

Collier said Congress has authorized the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the FAA to set noise pollution guidelines.

The Illinois Institute for Environmental Quality is expected soon to propose regulation by the Illinois Pollution Board to limit noise levels at airports. These noise standards and the board's authority to regulate are expected to be challenged in the courts.

Collier heads the fourth group committee, which will advocate construction of a third Chicago-area airport, while attempting to block further O'Hare construction. Other members of this committee include County Commissioner Floyd Fule of Des Plaines and John Varble, president of Bensenville.

According to Collier's statements to group members, the City of Chicago is currently working on nearly 90 expansion projects, including two new runways. One of these planned runways would replace a smaller northwest runway, which now sends planes over the Northwest suburbs.

The Lighter Side

by Dick West

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Senate subcommittee has been holding hearings this week on the impact that televised violence has on young viewers.

This may be a valid area of concern, but I fear it will divert attention from what I feel is a far more serious problem.

The subcommittee, I'm convinced, would do better to investigate whether television is undermining the ability of young people to believe their own eyes.

The generation presently growing up in America is the first in all history to be subjected to saturation exegesis.

When, for example, the President makes a speech, the television people tell us what we have just heard. And after every football play, they tell us what we just saw.

MOON SHOTS, China trips, senate hearings and other events that television covers are similarly accompanied by massive clarification, which is expected to reach new peaks at this summer's political conventions.

Most of us older viewers have had some experience in figuring things out for ourselves and probably could still do so in an emergency.

If we were watching the President's plane land at Peking Airport, we likely could detect, without being told, when it touched down on the runway or began taxiing along the ramp.

But constant exposure to elucidation affects even us.

At a recent cocktail party in a high-rise apartment, I was standing in the gloaming by the picture window admiring the view. It was lovely, but it left me strangely unfilled.

Then, "The sun has sunk beyond the distant horizon although its rays are still refracted in the Western sky," said a familiar voice at my elbow.

IT WAS HARRY CONKOUT, a local television reporter, explaining the sunset. "Thanks," I said. "I needed that."

When adults find themselves dependent on commentaries to appreciate what they are seeing, you can imagine what impact unrelenting exposition is having on children who have been steeped in it since birth.

Will they eventually find themselves unable to comprehend any visual experience without verbal confirmation? Will all of life become meaningless unless each passing moment has an instant replay?

MONEY TALKS

Tiny Variance in Saving Means Billions to Nation

By Donald F. Morton, President
Arlington Heights Federal Savings & Loan Assn.

The way in which savings flow to us from month to month, sometimes like a roaring cataract, sometimes like a trickling brook, is a matter of great interest and bafflement.

In this respect, we are no different from a top U.S. government economist who has said concerning consumer saving and spending programs: "It is very perplexing; even in retrospect we don't know much about what motivates the consumer."

What motivates you, the consumer, is a fascinating study for everyone involved in the nation's economic system, whether he runs Elmer's Repair Shop or General Motors.

It is the underlying function of any economic system to satisfy the material wants of customers. A fundamental problem is to anticipate what those wants are going to be and to provide them without rocking the ship of state.

Consumer needs in the primitive society of a South Sea island are one thing; those, of the most advanced economic nation in the world's history are quite another.

In our society they vary from year to year, even from month to month, as they are affected by:

- a changing population;
- a growing consumer income and what the economists call a rise in "discretionary purchasing power";
- an increasing variety of good and services, particularly the glamorous type;
- rising education levels;

(A public-service message from Arlington Heights Federal Savings)

—the increasing number of working wives;

—political and social conditions outside and inside the United States; —in short, a wide range of circumstances that influence how human beings behave with the money that flows into their pockets.

The personal savings rate in this country varies from year to year. It may not seem to make much difference if Americans save 5 per cent of their disposable personal income one year and 7 per cent the next.

But it does when you stop to realize that this means that $10 to $12 billion or more may or may not be expended in the nation's market places.

Imagine the difference to businessmen with inventories of unsold goods . . . or to industries dependent upon the availability of savings dollars to enable people to borrow the funds needed to purchase their products.

The spread from concern to elation is easily appreciated as you talk to the manufacturer whose appliances are not being bought or to the home builder or supplier of home building materials dependent on savings and the home mortgages they make possible.

You, as the average American citizen, influence this country's direction far more than you realize. As the National Consumer Finance Association has noted, "The impact of individual consumer decisions . . . alters the course and nature of the economy."

Field Museum Receives A
$9,138 Grant

A Student Science Training Program in Anthropology at Field Museum of Natural History is being supported by the National Science Foundation for the seventh consecutive year through a grant of $9,138 to the museum. The course is scheduled from June 26 through Aug. 4, and is under the direction of Miss Harriet Smith of the Museum's Department of Education.

The six-week program is open to 27 high ability students who are completing their junior year, and is designed to provide them with a sound foundation in the various fields of anthropology.

THE TRAINING course, an introduction to the study of man, is intended to give secondary students an otherwise unavailable program in anthropology. It includes lectures by authorities in this field, seminar discussions, workshops, study of museum collections, individual projects and one week of archaeological field work.

The class is limited to commuting students. Selection will be based on academic achievement, recommendations of teachers and personal interviews of the highest rating applicants to determine the candidate's motivation, interest, and the extent of his background knowledge.

Application forms may be obtained from high school officials or Miss Smith, and must be returned no later than April 10 to Field Museum.

Motor Vehicle Travel Rises

Motor vehicles traveled an estimated 1,170 billion miles during 1971, according to the Federal Highway Administration.

This represents a 4 per cent increase over travel during the previous year. Passenger cars account for 80 per cent of total travel and trucks for 19 per cent, with buses and motorcycles making the balance.

The survey indicates that 37 per cent of all vehicular travel is on primary rural roads, with another 12 per cent on local rural roads. However, the biggest share of travel, 51 per cent, occurs on urban streets and arterials.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Why do doctors insist on treating a bad cold with so-called synthetic drugs when penicillin seems to work better and faster providing the patient is not allergic to it. The last cold I had the doctor prescribed synthetics. During the four days I was on the drug I ran a fever of 100 degrees, coughing and chest congestion. They finally gave me penicillin and the fever broke the evening after I began taking it.

Dear Reader — Colds and respiratory infections lumped into that category are caused by viruses. A virus is a link between the things that are purely chemical and living matter. It can only reproduce itself while inside a living cell. This is why all of the virus work has been done by inoculating eggs, animals or other living tissue. This is distinctly different from bacteria, which can be grown on the surface of a culture plate or on the surface of our throat. Penicillin has no effect whatever on treating virus infections.

Accordingly, doctors don't treat colds with penicillin with the thought in mind that they are going to get rid of the virus that causes the cold. Now, if you develop a complication to your cold which is bacterial infection, such as a strep throat, then the penicillin is definitely indicated.

Although you give credit to penicillin for alleviating your condition, it may well be that your illness had run its normal course. Physicians soon learn not to take too much credit for a sudden improvement of their patients. Nature sometimes would have done these things on its own.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Why is it that sugar does not show up in the urine of some people who have diabetes? I have it and sugar only shows in the blood. Is a person more apt to go into a coma when sugar does not show up in the urine?

Dear Reader — If the kidney is working properly, it acts as a filter for the blood. Sugar is filtered out into the urine only when the amount in the blood rises to a fairly high level. Even normal people, when they eat a lot of sweets, may have some sugar in the urine within the next hour or two.

A person can have a higher than normal level of blood sugar and the level still not be high enough for sugar to be spilled out of the urine. Diabetes in these individuals is diagnosed by the blood test. If the kidney is normal and there is no sugar in the urine, the level of increased sugar in the blood is limited. Such a person is less likely to go into a coma than a person who has sugar in the urine with normal kidneys, since diabetic coma is more apt to occur if the blood sugar is too high.

This of course is the basis on which diabetics test their urine for sugar to see how much insulin they should take. If sugar begins to show up in the urine, they are either off their diet or not taking enough insulin.

Randy Rabbit Visits Randhurst Children

Pre-Easter activities are in full swing at Randhurst with Randy Rabbit visiting daily with young friends who come to Bunny Park. The annual Randhurst gardens and its inhabitants of baby chicks, ducklings and Thumper, a large white rabbit, will remain through Saturday, April 1.

From April 3 to 7 the Boys Clubs of America's Midwest Region Fine Arts Exhibit will be held on the mall. Two hundred paintings and 30 pieces of sculpture are included in this exhibit sponsored by the Women's Board of Chicago Boys Clubs. The exhibit comprises the talents of underprivileged children from six midwestern states and is a project of the Epstein Memorial Foundation.

Grandpa's Desk Is Gone

H. C. Paddock, venerable newspaperman who carried his slogan "Our Aim: To Fear God, Tell the Truth and Make Money" everywhere he went, has been gone 36 years.

But his spirit to create and operate the best possible newspaper carries on in the hearts of his grandchildren and great-grandchildren currently employed by The Paddock Corporation.

The growth and development of Paddock printing and publishing facilities have been told many times. That paper-cluttered desk was moved long ago; the cashier of Dunton House Restaurant in Arlington Heights now stands in almost the same spot.

The latest expansion program for the local newspaper facility includes acquisition of another newspaper press to help the daily HERALD meet the demands of larger editions and more readers.

No progress is ever realized without a casualty; in this case, the casualty is our Commercial Printing Division. To make room for our newspaper expansion, commercial printing presses have been moved out and sold to Warren Rogers Printing Co., Inc., in Palatine.

To our many customers who have been ordering wedding and anniversary invitations, business cards, posters, business forms and other printed materials, please take note:

Paddock is no longer in the Commercial Printing Business

If you'd like to drop in and reminisce about Grandpa's Desk, fine. But if you'd like to order any of the multitude of printing needs you came to expect from Paddock, we're sorry — the newspaper presses have taken over.

High School District 214—Issues And Candidates

Gene Artemenko:

'I haven't found any ghosts in the closets and I don't see any serious problems in 214'

by WANDALYN RICE

Members of the board of education of High School Dist. 214 sought out Gene Artemenko last fall when they were looking for someone to replace Joseph Schiffhauer.

Since he agreed to accept the appointment to the board the former board president of Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 has been listening carefully and doing his homework.

So far he has not been too vocal at board meetings because, he says, "A high school district is very similar to an elementary district, but the problems are altogether different. I don't like to shoot my mouth off if I don't know what I'm talking about." He has not changed that attitude now just because he is running for election.

In his acquaintance with the district, both as a board member and previously as an interested citizen, he has been pleased "I haven't found any ghosts in the closets," he said. "I don't see any serious problems in 214 and I don't want to create one just to get elected."

A resident of Des Plaines for 8½ years, Artemenko first became involved with the district when students from his area were bused to Elk Grove High School. He became a founder of that school's teacher-parent council and has been active ever since.

HE SAID HE has been impressed by the quality of the district's administration, which he rates as "professional," and believes generally the teachers are good.

The teachers are now paid "more than adequately," he says, and he believes that's good too.

"We expect a certain performance from them and if we are going to have excellent people we will have to pay them well."

One of the challenges he sees facing the district is improving teacher-student relations.

"Ideally," he says, "if you could get every kid so he wanted to go to high school, the finances and other things would be secondary as long as they don't get out of hand."

He also wants to improve vocational education in the schools and believes a wide variety of curriculum is a good thing. Also, "Individual study is excellent but very expensive. I think that somewhere between the traditional classroom and individual study we can find something that is effective."

A recently enacted state law has required board involvement in student suspensions as well as expulsions, and, Artemenko said, "I think the change has been beneficial, as much as we screamed about it being expensive to provide information to the board. From the limited exposure I've had, I think that is something the board should be informed on."

IN THE GENERAL area of discipline, he says he doesn't like either suspensions or expulsions, but believes they are useful if they get the student's parents involved with a problem.

"I don't think a two day suspension harms the kid that much, but I think it has a salutary effect on the parents," he says.

On one issue, Artemenko is ready to take a stronger stand than many of the present members of the board — he believes in the 12-month school year because it will provide better educational opportunities for children as a member of the district's Committee of 75 he urged the district to aim for the 12-month cause its financial position is "comfortable."

"I think there are things that could be discontinued before we would ask the people for a tax increase," he says.

HE THINKS HIS experience with Dist. 59, which was plagued by financial problems while he served on the board, will be helpful in Dist. 214.

"I know some of the things to look for in the budget because I got burned a couple of times in 59. And I can tell when you're chasing a spirit and when you're onto a real problem."

His views on other issues include: —On court decisions requiring equal funding of education. "It's probably something that every professional educator expected to come to pass, but I don't think it will happen for three to four years. Even if they find some way to equalize the amount of money the people who are concerned about quality education will have an effective PTA and will be able to use extra resources for their schools."

—On formation of a unit district in the area. "I'd rather work on changing the state distribution of funds to equalize the money going to dual and unit districts. If we went for one monstrous unit district here it would be a small Chicago."

—On the Northwest Educational Cooperative. "It doesn't come up with any overwhelming advances but I think it's worth the effort. It is the most effective agency for an exchange of information between the districts."

—On Parochial. "Rather than an outright subsidy, I think there may be a way of furthering the cooperation we have now in textbooks and transportation. I don't get scared when the Catholic schools say 'give us the money or we'll dump all our kids on you.' That would cause problems for awhile, but it's one of the costs of doing business under our Constitution."

school year by 1974.

"It won't save any money," he says, "but the by-product is going to be more choices of courses by students." The main problem would be the effect of the move on the elementary district and "one of the prerequisites would be to involve the elementary districts right from the beginning."

Artemenko also does not see a tax rate increase for Dist. 214 on the horizon be-

Leo Floros:

'...High School Dist. 214 needs a little tightening up.'

by KAREN RUGEN

Leo Floros is running for the High School Dist. 214 School Board because he feels "a little tightening up" is in order.

Floros, a Mount Prospect resident and current member of the Dist. 57 School Board, says Dist. 214 is "too inefficient." To cut costs, he advocates decreasing the number of administrators and scrutinizing all expenses before the yearly budget is approved.

A public relations man by profession, Floros says he can open up communication between the board and the public. He has taken hold of his campaign like a man who knows the publicity recommendations to the entire board. "I don't believe a committee is necessary with a seven-man board," he said. "The whole board should go over it item by item and evaluate programs as best as it can."

As another efficiency — cost saving measure, Floros proposed splitting Dist. 214 into four sections. Those sections, he said, would be joined with elementary school districts in the same geographical area to form four kindergarten through twelfth grades, or unit districts.

"That way, students would get a more economic and better education," said Floros. He feels these advantages outweigh the problems of consolidation such as boundary and administrative changes.

AT THE suggestion of state and formula revision to end budget disparity between unit and dual (current suburban set up) districts, Floros said it was possible. But he prefers district consolidation.

Hitting hard again, Floros denounced Dist. 214 for architectural mistakes made at Rolling Meadows High School. These mistakes, says Floros, should not be repeated at the district's eighth school in Buffalo Grove.

"There ought to be people in the administration office that should be specialists in building by now," he said. "I think the board should enlist for outside help, other than its architect, when putting up a building. And greater heat should be applied to meet construction deadlines, maybe delayed payments. Contractors are always giving excuses, not reasons."

Floros feels he has the knowledge, background and talent to serve the board well. "And maybe just a little bit of temperament," he said, with a smile, probably knowing that some of his reputation as a fiery, probing and hard-nosed board member may have preceded him.

IN 1968, he was elected to a one-year term on the Dist. 57 School Board, and then elected to a three-year term the following year. He has served as chairman of the Dist. 57 board negotiations team and has been instrumental in the sale of idle school property.

Father of two daughters at Prospect High School, he has lived at 111 N. Emerson St. for 13 years. He is vice president of Selz, Seabold and Assoc., a Chicago public relations firm.

Here are some of his views on other issues:

CURRICULUM "I would give priority to basics but not exclude other elements in the educational program. I would like to see more vocational education."

STUDENT DISCIPLINE "Sending a problem student home is a partial answer. But that is little part of a school board's duty. I think that should be up to the administration."

NEGOTIATIONS "I think teachers got a fair salary. I don't object to teacher unions or associations. After all, in unions there is strength. I would dearly love to see some system of merit pay built into the present pay schedule, with a tightening up in evaluation of teachers."

TENURE "Nothing can be done about it."

FINANCE "I have no solution to the inequality in school district tax bases, except perhaps more government support."

BUSING "Any form of busing that enables a youngster to get a better education is worthwhile. But to bus a student from a good school for only racial balance is not."

PAROCHIAL "I don't advocate it. In stead of money, I think public and private schools could share facilities."

ropes. He hits hard with issues packed full of controversy — issues like overspending and late construction.

Comparing the Dist. 57 operation with Dist. 214, Floros says Dist. 214 has too many administrators. "Take Prospect High School for example. The school doesn't need an athletic teacher who doesn't teach."

BUT PRESSED for more examples of a top heavy administration, Floros didn't have any. If elected he said he would look for them.

Before cutting back, Floros said he would ask for recommendations from the top administration. "I'm not suggesting mass dismissal," he explained. "It should be done with a scalpel and not a knife. If administrators are just excess baggage, it would be better for them to return to the classroom or find other jobs."

Floros would also promote abolishing the financial committee which currently reviews the budget and makes recom-

Don McGlothlin:

'...I feel my six years as a teacher would help me very much if elected.'

by CAROL RHYNE

Don McGlothlin is a man with determination.

This is the fourth time in four years he has put in a bid for a seat on the High School Dist. 214 board.

Losing hasn't daunted him. He is driven by a cause. The high school budget needs tightening, he says, and he is convinced he is the man who can do it.

"My knowledge of school finance and my insight as a teacher and a former administrator should enable me to save a lot of money without decreasing efficiency. Dist. 214 is better than average, but the dollar just doesn't go far enough," he said.

Ask McGlothlin a question about education and he whips out an article he has authored in an education journal. His pet issues are waste of teachers' time and the need for a more modern, functional curriculum.

As a teacher at Taft High School in Chicago and a former high school principal, McGlothlin said he has seen education from many sides, including taxpayer and parent points of view.

WHEN ASKED whether or not his teaching position would present a conflict of interest, McGlothlin said he would be impartial to teachers and school administrators.

"I have a vested interest in every camp," he said.

While he is a damant about cutting costs, McGlothlin said he won't do it at the expense of the curriculum. Study hall and lunchroom supervision by the teachers will be the first to go.

"The curriculum in Dist. 214 schools is wonderful the way it is," he said. "The strong points include a drivers education program and some innovative teaching methods at Elk Grove High School."

"I am very much in favor of expanding independent study as far and as rapidly as the students can take the responsibility," McGlothlin said. "However there should be some checks that the students are living up to the responsibility. When a student can be two places at one time, he can be neither and no one knows."

McGlothlin said early graduation from high school is fine in many cases.

IN GENERAL I am for letting students graduate in three years if they can meet the requirements. As long as early graduation is used with good judgment, there is an added incentive to work harder."

McGlothlin described the role of school board members as seeing that the schools are run properly but not running them directly themselves. He said the school board should be in a position to evaluate administrative judgment but not concern itself with day-to-day decisions.

He said he had no quarrel with the way student discipline was handled in the high schools. Ideally, he said 90 per cent of the discipline should be handled by teachers and expulsion should be used only in extreme cases.

Concerning students on the school board, he said a student voice on the board would be good because students are directly involved with many of the issues. However, he said he would never want a situation in which the students alone could make decisions.

McGlothlin also praised the idea of a 12-month school year.

"The taxpayers' money could be better spent if schools were not left idle three months of the year. "DISTRIBUTING SCHOOL funds around the state rather than depending on property taxes for school financing may be more equitable," he said. He warned that local school districts should guard against state control if the funds are distributed by Springfield.

McGlothlin was leery about school districts spending money on busing students to achieve racial balance.

"I think schools should be as equal as possible without busing," he said. "There should be good neighborhood schools so there is no need for busing, and mixing children from different backgrounds could open a Pandora's box of troubles."

Open teacher contract negotiations are good because with open sessions there is less chance of chicanery, McGlothlin said. However, he added that there might be times that closed sessions are needed.

McGlothlin is seeking a one-year term on the Dist. 214 Board.

Mrs. Barb Storter:

Mrs. Barb Storter

by RICHARD HONACK

Barb Storter has four reasons for seeking a school board position in High School Dist. 214.

- She is a parent.
- She is a former teacher.
- She has been a member of school committees.
- She is an individual who wants to better herself.

Mrs. Storter, who is a Buffalo Grove resident, said as a parent she would like to see the best possible education for her children. "Two of my four children have completed high school and I have two in Dist. 21. I want them to have the best possible education and programs in high school when they get there," she said.

AS A FORMER teacher Mrs. Storter feels she can better understand the mechanics of education. "I have been away from teaching for 10 years, but putting my girls through high school I followed educational trends closely. I feel my six years as a teacher would help me very much if I were elected."

"Also, my third reason relates directly to the second. While my daughters were in school I was on a number of committees and worked within the high school (Wheeling). It was very educational for me as well as informative," she added.

Mrs. Storter said her last reason is probably the most important one. "I feel that by being a board member I will better myself as an individual. I am not afraid to make decisions and I have worked with people many times before on joint decisions."

"I am not afraid to accept responsibility," she added.

AN ALUMNUS of Ohio State University, Mrs. Storter feels there is too little parental activity in the high schools today. She said parents should support activities related to the schools and become involved with their children.

She said the position of a school board member is threefold.

"First, a board member must uphold the laws and legalities of the state. Second, they all have a responsibility to the taxpayers and finally, they should be worried about the individual development of the students," she explained.

She said teachers have a right to negotiate because they are professional people. However, they should be paid within a certain frame work. "They can only receive what the budget permits," she said.

ASKED ABOUT merit pay she commented, "It looks good on paper but there is no way to see the real work of a teacher on the individual child." She explained that some teachers are good at some things while others are good at other things.

On the subject of curriculum, Mrs. Storter feels students should be grouped according to ability and should have a wide range of subjects open to them. "This is the ideal way of doing things," she said.

"It should be the goal of everyone to teach a child to learn. It is right to teach him to gain information but the goal should be to teach him to understand and be able to learn," she said.

Mrs. Storter is not sure about student voice on the school board. "I would have to do a lot of thinking on this subject. I don't know if students understand the function of the board. They might be able to act in an advisory position, but I really don't know."

THE IDEA of finances doesn't worry

Mrs. Storter. "I don't mind paying for education. I would hate to see anything cut from the curriculum because of a tight budget. I think the money can be worked out if everything is done within the budget."

She said that equal money for all schools in the state is ideally a good idea. "However, people like to be close to their money. They have worked hard and would like to see it used for them," she added.

On the busing situation Mrs. Storter said her children spent an hour a day being bused to school when the family lived in Ohio.

"They would travel 40 minutes in the morning and 15 minutes in the afternoon. It was hard because it took them out of the neighborhood. I think it is necessary for children to identify the school with their neighborhood."

Mrs. Storter and her husband, Barry, live at 886 Cambridge Dr. in Buffalo Grove. They have been residents of Dist. 214 for 2½ years.

7 Candidates Seek 3 Seats

Seven candidates are running for election to three board seats in High School Dist. 214. Five of the candidates have filed for the two three-year terms and two candidates are competing for one one-year term. Interviews with the candidates have appeared in two parts, ending today. The Herald will announce its endorsements on April 5. The voters will make their choice on April 8.

HOW THE RICH GET RICHER

It's really very simple. The Rich get richer by letting their money make more money. You can do the same.

You've heard a lot about the successes of the Rich in the stock and real estate markets. Here you can both gain — or lose — a lot of money. If you might need your money in a hurry, you risk having to sell your investments for a lot less than you paid for them. These are good investments for those who can afford to take risks or those who have a substantial base of savings behind them.

But very few of us are rich, or even on the road to being rich. Very likely you are most concerned with keeping the money you've already got and seeing it grow enough to prepare you for retirement or to provide you with extra income.

For people like yourself the best way to put your money to work may be 6% Certificates of Deposit from Palatine Savings and Loan. These certificates combine a high yield with the safety and convenience of a savings account.

Risk? None! Your certificate is insured just like a savings account. And the interest rate is guaranteed for two years or more. Return? 6% per annum compounded daily to yield a high 6.18% yearly — and without costly brokerage charges. That's earnings of $309.15 per year on a $5,000 investment or $1,236.60 on a $20,000 investment, if left in for a full year. Availability? With a 6% certificate you agree to keep a minimum of $5,000 with us for two years. But if you really need it, you can have your money on demand with the loss of only 90 days interest.

Some financial institutions are lowering their certificate rates. We are not. If you have $5,000 or more of hard earned money that you want to put to work, complete the coupon below.

Come get a little richer at Palatine Savings and Loan.

S-Curve Must Go

The straightening of the dangerous S-curve on Northwest Highway in Des Plaines is long overdue.

Despite the construction in recent years of major expressways, Northwest Highway still serves as a major route used by thousands of Northwest suburbanites traveling to and from Des Plaines, Park Ridge and even Chicago.

Just west of the downtown area of the city, the state highway first winds under the Soo Line tracks and then curves back up to another straightaway.

The sharp curves and narrow lanes present a clear hazard to motorists. Through the year there have been countless accidents in the treacherous narrows, including all too many fatalities.

In 1971 Des Plaines police reported eight wrecks at the scene, including one fatality. Already this year there have been seven accidents and another death.

The deplorable condition of the tight curves is compounded by less than adequate lighting and warning signs, and a drainage problem wherein runoff water drains into the underpass.

In the winter the area is often more suitable for bobsleds than automobiles.

Certainly a good part of the problem rests with the drivers who all too often try to navigate turns at unreasonable speeds built up on the long stretch of road between traffic signals.

This regretful situation has existed for almost 30 years.

Something is being done about it, but, we fear, not quickly enough.

The state highway department says it will spend $2.5 million to $3.5 million to straighten the S-curve, if the City of Des Plaines obtains the necessary right-of-way.

That is the current hangup.

The owner of the land, which used to belong to the now-defunct Kerr Chemical Co., apparently wants more money than the city is willing to pay.

The negotiations have been going on since November. A city spokesman said Des Plaines is trying to reach a reasonable settlement before considering condemnation proceedings.

Since those talks began, however, an Arlington Heights woman lost her life when the car in which she was traveling skidded on the ice in January and struck a utility pole and the bridge abutment.

We agree the city should strive to reach a reasonable compromise with the unidentified landowner before trying to obtain the land in a "quick-take" action.

We would urge both the city and the landowner, however, to expedite their negotiations so that action can be taken as soon as possible to correct a hazard we feel is unreasonable in this day of modern, safe highways.

Japan Leaps Ahead

Between 1966 and 1970, reports Industry Week magazine, Japan racked up productivity gains on an astonishing average of 14.7 per cent annually.

In contrast, productivity in the United States increased at an annual rate of little more than 2 per cent in the same period.

What this means is that in each of those years, Japan produced nearly 15 per cent more goods for the same amount of labor and investment that it took to produce 15 per cent fewer goods in the previous year. Or to put it another way, Japan could have produced the same amount of goods each year at 15 per cent lower cost than in each previous year.

It is this productivity, says the magazine, that has enabled Japan to capture large areas of the U.S. market.

Fueling Japan's productivity has been the world's highest level of investment in new plants and equipment amounting to about 33 per cent of gross national product throughout the '60s. The U.S. investment rate of 16 per cent was among the lowest for industrial countries.

This difference in investment levels is partly a result of another difference, says Industry Week.

In Japan, labor, industry and government have a strong sense of national purpose and are united in a drive for common goals. In the United States, adversary relationships dominate interaction among the three sectors.

(One recent "adversary relationship" was the West Coast dock strike, longest and most expensive in U.S. history. According to Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, it cost U.S. farmers at least $1 billion in lost sales.)

Japanese workers are "disciplined" by the resistance of American workers to automation, claims the magazine. The Japanese regard more efficient tools as a way to increase production, lower costs and thereby increase sales.

They consider restrictive work rules, long strikes and workers doing less than they are capable of doing as being detrimental to their companies, and they have the curious idea that what is detrimental to their companies will eventually be detrimental to themselves.

Strange people, these Japanese. Strange people, these Americans.

Dorothy Meyer's Column

'They Just Don't Make Things...'

Dorothy Meyer

More and more these days you hear the old cry, "They just don't make things like they used to" — things like stoves and furniture and cars that used to last, if not a lifetime, at least as long as the time payments.

However, besides not making things like they used to, they're now making it like they never thought of before — things that are "pre" something. Clothes are pre-faded, cereal is pre-sweetened and building materials are pre-cast. (Since the election and subsequent vote fraud charges, it appears that ballots as well as building materials are pre-cast and are enjoying widespread popularity.)

My least favorite stuff is that which looks like it's seen better days when you buy it. Clothes, for instance, and jeans particularly, pre-faded, pre-tattered and preposterous. Once upon a time when I was a bride, 'way back when bleach came in bottles that broke and mind did, I threw out a whole load of laundry because I thought I'd ruined it.

Today I could have ripped out the hems and frizzled them a bit, then worn the clothes with a song in my heart and a patch on my behind, confident that I was in style. You've noticed, of course, that the more clothes look as though they're leftovers from a rummage sale, the more expensive they are.

And then there's the furniture with the pre-beat up look, only it's called distressed because that's what it does to your budget and some of it is so bad you'd have to leave the price tag hanging on it to remind you it was new. Of course, it took my three kids a combined total of 42 child-years to accomplish and maybe that's how come distressed wood costs so much.

To get the genuine article, like mine, it's necessary to have little squirts cut their teeth on chair arms, drop roller skates on the coffee table and road-test metal tanks and trucks up the sides of the buffet. Then there's all those school years when they do their homework on the dining room table and you can read their compositions, etched forever into the table top by ball point pen.

It helps if you can get your husband to leave some artistically placed cigarette burns and you remember to occasionally drop a scissors, blade down. Peanut butter and cola rubbed into the scratches, gouges and burns gives the whole thing that desired sheen. It gets a little sticky in humid weather but that's part of the joy of ownership of truly distressed wood.

Our furniture, lovely though it is, has just progressed from distressed to frantic and since the weight of another layer of dust will collapse my elderly end tables, we'll have to go shopping pretty soon. And I'll probably buy the pre-beat up stuff after all. I just can't go through all that work again.

With the pre-used look going over so big with ballots, jeans and table tops, I predict the next thing will be cars. They'll roll off the assembly line pre-dented and with a good public relations man in the back seat to convince you that it's good looking and saves you from that haunting worry about the first dent.

Next will come new houses with the pre-lived-in look, walls pre-smudged, floors pre-muddied and windows pre-fogged — and my kind of housekeeping will come into its own at last.

But that's all wishful thinking and I'd better get to work; I promised John I'd spill some bleach on his new jeans. He can't afford the pre-blotched kind.

How To Win An Election

Dan Walker's victory in Wheeling over the regular party candidate may have been a surprise to some local observers, but certainly not to the Dan Walker for Governor organization here. They were well aware that 729 residents had signed Walker petitions. They were also aware that their door to door registration drive and canvass had evoked an overwhelming response to a new kind of politics. Throughout the campaign, residents repeatedly commented, "You're the first person that has ever come to help me register, or answer my questions about a candidate."

Walker workers from both the Republican and Democratic parties knew first hand that the vote was there, and worked to get it to the polls on March 21.

How was it done? Inspired by the man who told some of us a year ago that politics and government can work in Illinois; that government can be restored to the service of the people; that decisions affecting the people need not be made in back rooms, we became a small part of the largest volunteer force in Illinois politics.

The FENCE POST Letters to the Editor

After our candidate walked the state, we walked the many miles of Wheeling streets and sidewalks. Walker workers from ages sixteen to sixty knocked on more than three thousand doors, often in sub-zero temperatures. Some young mothers were accompanied by babies in strollers, others received free baby care as their teen sitters' contribution to the campaign. Our headquarters were not in hotel rooms, but in the living rooms and kitchens of independents.

Party regulars find it difficult to understand our motivation. Paid political workers sat beside Walker volunteers at the polls on election day and asked, "Why are you doing this?" After all, Dan Walker promised us nothing but to return the government to the people of Illinois. For us, that is enough.

The volunteer hours of the past eight months are impossible to estimate, but on election day, forty-nine Walker Workers spent three hundred fifty-three unpaid hours as poll watchers, phone workers, and drivers. These hours, plus a sense of purpose that cannot be measured in dollars and cents, were the independents' contribution to a quality candidate.

Dan Walker defeated the regular party candidate two to one in Wheeling. Surprised? Not us.

Why Wasn't I Paged In Theater?

I have never written a letter to the Editor in my life and I only write this one out of concern.

My husband and I decided to go to the movies several nights ago so we got a sitter and left the number of the Willow Creek Theater off Hwy. 33 in Palatine where we could be reached in an emergency, if one should arise, we could be contacted. Little did we know that it would be easier to contact someone behind the iron curtain than to get a message past the manager of the theater.

Our son received a head injury that our sitter quickly realized was serious enough to contact us about. Apparently the manager didn't think so. Our sitter then notified neighbors who determined the injury serious enough to warrant immediate attention so they tried to contact us again through the manager. She informed them that there was absolutely no way for her to find us in the theater. (Apparently her ushers all had laryngitis.) After this attempt failed our neighbors had to come to the theater and holler through a locked door to be let in.

Now my question is this. Is it not possible for a person to be contacted at the Willow Creek Theater even though there is no paging system as they claim? The other area theaters that I called all assured me that they would do everything in their power to locate a patron in an emergency.

I certainly hope that this letter will, in some small way, help to encourage the Willow Creek Theater to change its dangerous policy so that patrons attending it can feel at ease knowing that they can be reached. Until such time, I hope all people calling will inquire as to their policies. We were lucky to have an alert babysitter and exceptional neighbors. Someone else might not be so fortunate.

Test Results Wanted

As one who has tried to keep informed on matters of public education, I was astonished to learn that test results are not disclosed in School Dist. 25. In our former school system in metropolitan New York, standardized test results were a matter of public knowledge; they provided one means of assessing our school district's academic progress, by school and by district. Of course, the identity of specific classes (rooms) or children was not disclosed.

Citizens throughout our country are periodically urged to increase taxes for schools on the basis of subsequent improvement in the quality of education. Tests provide one means of determining whether the underlying rationale of that idea is sound; that is, are schools' progress cost-related?

During these days of budgetary restrictions, it is more important than ever to know the effectiveness of our tax dollars and valuable school time spent on testing and other measure of educational growth. Let's have a disclosure of test results over the past five years, if this does not violate some Illinois law of which I am unaware. If we are doing well as a district, this would provide a really concrete incentive for increasing tax effort. Nothing succeeds like success, and nothing is as important as the educational success of our children.

Business Today

by LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — The recession of 1970-71 caused such an increase in credit losses by retail stores that merchants were eager to find a rapid and reasonably priced automatic credit reporting system.

Communications, Inc., of Nashua, N.H., says it has found the answer with the Datalrol System which has been sold to Horne's store in Pittsburgh, and the Hudson's department and the Winkelman's 39-store chain, both in Detroit.

Half a dozen manufacturers have elaborate point-of-purchase electronic machines on the market or in advance development stage to do the same job and to the stores' inventory and most of the bookkeeping chores at the same time. But such systems are expensive.

Leon Jackson, marketing vice president of the Nashua firm, said Datalrol can cost as little as $50,000 for a smallish store, $200,000 for a big store.

"OUR SYSTEM sticks to credit reporting," Jackson said. "We speed up credit reporting enormously and this helps reduce the credit losses drastically."

Jackson said store managers told him credit losses always rise sharply when a recession follows a period of affluence.

"People will buy clothes and food on credit even if they don't know how they're going to pay for them," he said.

"Deliberate credit frauds also go up in recession periods. Frauds probably amount currently to about one third of all credit losses."

The Datalrol system depends on speed and simplicity to catch bad risks and fraudulent credit requests. It employs ordinary touchtone telephone pads to communicate with the computer and the credit department from most locations in the store.

In dense traffic locations, it uses a small high speed display type point of sale terminal that gives credit verification and authorization in 15 seconds.

IN THE CREDIT department itself, somewhat more elaborate terminal display machines are used to communicate with the computer and enable department workers to make a final decision on the doubtful cases, which run about 10 per cent of the total credit requests. The whole system uses a mini-computer designed for Datalrol.

"The big advantage of such a simple system is that it makes possible a 'Zero floor limit' without running up store operating costs drastically," Jackson said.

"Most stores can't afford to have a credit department big enough to check every charge request, so they have a floor limit — usually $25," Jackson said.

"The sales girl automatically charges any transaction less than that without credit verification unless there is some definitely suspicious circumstances. The irony is that a bad credit risk can run up hundreds of dollars worth in bills in a few days in various stores under a $25 floor limit."

Jackson said Datalrol made it possible to check every request for credit with the computer within seconds no matter how brisk business is. So, the floor limit can be abolished.

Ask The IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q I sold my home last December at a $5,000 profit. Do I have to report this as income when I file my 1971 return?

A Not, if, within one year before or after the sale you buy and occupy another residence that costs as much or more than the sales price of the old residence. Additional time is allowed if you construct the new residence or you were on active duty in the U.S. Armed Forces. In such a case, the tax is postponed, not forgiven. Any gain not taxed in the year you sell your old residence is subtracted from the cost of the new residence giving you a lower basis to be used in the event of a later disposition. If you sell the new residence in a later year, and again replace it, under similar circumstances, any tax on the gain you realize may continue to be postponed.

Q I won a new car last year in a radio contest. Do I have to pay tax on this prize?

A Yes. Prizes and awards you receive in goods or services must be included in income at their fair market value.

Q I paid my daughter's medical insurance premiums last year. Do I include these premiums in the amount of support I furnished her when figuring out whether or not I can claim her as a dependent?

A Yes. You may include as an item of support medical insurance premiums you paid, as well as other expenditures you made for her medical and dental care. However, the benefits received from medical insurance policies are not included in support.

Q After four years of attending college full-time and working part-time to help pay for it, I graduated last year and took a full-time job. Can I use income averaging to reduce my tax?

A Before you can consider income averaging, a basic requirement is that you must have furnished 50 per cent or more of your own support during each of the four years prior to 1971. IRS Publication 506, "Computing Your Tax Under the Income Averaging Method," explains all the details of income averaging. It's available free by dropping a postcard to your IRS district office.

Q I sued to recover damages for injuries I incurred in an auto accident. I settled for $7,500 before we ever got to trial. Is the $7,500 tax-free?

A Yes if it is compensation for personal injury or illness. Such compensation is not taxable, whether you receive it after trial or through settlement.

Q Where can I get a copy of the IRS Booklet, "Your Federal Income Tax?"

A You can buy it for 75 cents at larger Postal Service stations, IRS district offices, and branch bookstores of the U.S. Government Printing Office throughout the country, or by mail from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Chicago Mercantile In Membership Sale

A membership to the Chicago Mercantile Exchange has been sold for $97,500, the fourth highest price ever paid for a seat.

The latest sale is $2,500 more than was paid for the last transaction. The current bid for a membership is $95,000 against an asking price of $92,500.

Edison, TVA To Build Power Plant

Formation of two new organizations to construct and manage the nation's first large-scale, liquid metal fast breeder demonstration power plant was announced recently by Commonwealth Edison and the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The Breeder Reactor Corp., (BRC) representing all segments of the electric utility industry, including both publicly and investor-owned, will provide senior counsel and serve as liaison between the utilities and the project.

Project Management Corp., which will manage the demonstration plant's engineering and construction, has also been formed.

ESTABLISHMENT of these corporations was contemplated in the joint proposal of Commonwealth Edison and TVA to the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) for a cooperative arrangement to build the nation's first large demonstration breeder. On Jan. 14, U.S. Atomic Energy Commission chairman James R. Schlesinger announced that the commission had accepted this proposal as a basis for negotiation of a definite arrangement. These negotiations are currently under way.

The Breeder Reactor Corp. will have a 17-member board of directors representing the utilities, the Edison Electric Institute, the American Public Power Association and the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association.

Three initial members of the BRC board have been named. They are Thomas G. Ayers, president, Commonwealth Edison; Aubrey J. Wagner, chairman of the board of directors, Tennessee Valley Authority; and B. B. Parker, executive vice president, Duke Power Co.

The new Project Management Corp. will have responsibility for over-all design, engineering and construction of the demonstration plant. TVA will start up, operate and maintain the demonstration plant during the project period. It is expected that PMC will soon solicit proposals from reactor manufacturers for construction of the demonstration plant. Under the cooperative arrangement, AEC will participate in the conduct of project activities.

The PMC board of directors will include five members drawn from Edison, TVA and Breeder Reactor Corp.

PRESIDENT NIXON called for the demonstration of the commercial liquid metal, fast breeder reactor by 1980 in his Energy Message to Congress on June 4, 1971.

Utilities across the country responded by making conditional pledges to the project totaling some $240 million, according to an industry-wide formula. Accordingly, Commonwealth Edison will contribute $11.4 million and TVA has pledged $22.1 million. The balance of the project funds, including research and development, will be supplied by the AEC. The AEC estimates cost of the demonstration plant project at approximately $500 million.

In conjunction with other research and development efforts, the demonstration plant will help to confirm the scientific, engineering and potential economic feasibility of a liquid metal, fast breeder reactor as a practical future source of electric power. It is expected that the environmental advantages and safety features of such fast breeders and their role in conserving important, nonrenewable natural resources will also be demonstrated.

The demonstration plant, which will be located on the TVA system, is expected to have a capacity in the range of 300,000 to 500,000 kilowatts. Final site selection will be made after detailed studies are completed.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wright Investors' Service says the market is in for a downturn this spring, but will make a "stronger-than-usual summer rally and an advance to new highs by the Dow Jones industrial average." Wright observes that investors are beginning to return to the market but are not wildly speculative yet.

THE NEILL LETTER of Contrary Opinion advises investors to ride the present stock market crest with "bags packed and hats on." There is no question about further advance of the market, the letter says, but cautions investors not to hang on for the final 1/8 of a point. It will refuse to predict when the market will turn bad, and adds, "Too many forecasts spoil the prediction."

THOUGH THE DOW JONES industrial averages indicated an upward movement recently, the market as a whole shows a downward slip, according to Indicator Digest. The firm notes the tendency of market watchers to follow the blue chips rather than the entire list. But, says ID, this does not mean the bull market has run its course. "We expect a pause," ID says, "but this should provide some excellent chances to slip in at reduced prices before the next act."

Chamber Head Lauds Program To Aid Veterans

The president of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce lauded Gov. Ogilvie's newly announced program to assist returning Vietnam veterans as "a practical and far-reaching effort which business can and must solidly support."

Lester W. Brann Jr., who also serves as chairman of the statewide Governor's Committee on Jobs for Veterans, commented on the Governor's program which places emphasis on expanded job opportunities and improved educational benefits, and on the creation of programs which "take cognizance of the very special needs and problems of the returning soldier of the 1970s."

MAJOR FEATURES of the program include:

Intensive efforts to place veterans in emergency government jobs, and to generate employment in private industry through sponsorship of the nation's largest job fair for veterans. The fair will be held May 9-10 in Chicago's International Amphitheatre, to bring together the employer and veteran.

Also, increases in state scholarship aid, and an easing of restrictions on the use of educational grants.

An expanded "outreach" effort, employing dozens of new veterans' assistance representatives on college campuses and in urban communities throughout the state is part of the program in addition to representation of Vietnam-era veterans on the Illinois Veterans Commission and on an Advisory Committee on state programs.

Brann joined with the governor in urging Illinois employers to give top-priority to hiring the veteran. "The returning veteran has served well and deserves every break we can give him in the job market," said Brann.

Challenges Of Wood, Pancratz Fall Short

Kozlicki Career Mark Stands Up — Again

by KEITH REINHARD

It turned out to be the year that wasn't along the Herald area basketball trail.

The 1971-72 cage season began with the knowledge that there were not one, but two genuine threats to the seemingly unattainable career area scoring mark topped off by Palatine's Ron Kozlicki back in 1963.

But the season came . . . and went. And there sits Ron, still perched atop the northwest suburbs' hardwood domain with 1,562 total points to his credit.

Roger Wood, Wheeling's agile 6-11 veteran pivotman, and Andy Pancratz, the do-it-all 6-9 Hersey handyman, were the principles in this winter's quest for top overall scoring honors. Wood started off this season with 882 points tucked in his traveling bag and a soft jump shot in his arsenal that guaranteed a crack at all kinds of scoring lists.

Pancratz commenced the campaign with 948 points and enough basketball savvy garnered over three years of varsity play to virtually assure a successful season.

It was the year Kozlicki's record was destined to fall. But it didn't. And neither Big Rog nor Big Andy could be faulted for the turn of events that transpired in 71-72.

At Wheeling all year it was a manpower situation that hindered Wood's offensive prowess. A boost in the forward department never really materialized and Rog was forced to go it alone for the most part as chief 'Cat rebounder and inside point producer.

With the sagging and collapsing in the middle that alert enemy coaches threw up against Wheeling it reached the point where Wood was drifting as far outside as 12 to 15 feet to get an unmolested crack at the bucket. He still scored — over 20 points a game on an average basis — but his potential had to be drastically curtailed.

Andy's situation was a manpower dilemma in reverse. Looked upon as his club's scoring leader for three seasons, Pancratz was all of a sudden relieved of the pressure with the entrance of 6-11 Dave Corzine onto the scene.

Never as big on scoring as he was on other aspects of the game to begin with, Pancratz took to a new assignment on the wing like a polar bear to an iceberg. He rebounded he passed, he fed, he played his usual tenacious defense and he scored, but he didn't score at nearly the rate he might have as a high-powered center.

So Big Rog wound up with 1,398 and Big Andy topped off his prep career at 1,230 and Ron can rest easy again for a while. Wood did finish up as the number two all-time area point producer, moving up from ninth place a year ago and passing by some pretty impressive names.

Andy, meanwhile, took over the number three position, edging out former Prospect great Tom Lundstedt by eight points in his last game to gain that spot.

Saxon Girls Do More Than Watch

IT'S NO LONGER news when gals demand equal time with males. But when they start doing favorably in a traditional man's world, it's worth taking note.

The fairer sex is beginning to get its foot in the door in some phases of athletics, and one need not look far in this area to notice a sign of this.

Schaumburg High School is one of several places where it is becoming evident that girls can be more than spectators, cheerleaders or morale-boosters for boy friends on the field of battle.

Three Schaumburg gals — Randa Touquan, Karen Winkels and Laurie Breen — have been working out with the Saxon track team and showing talent and promise, though the wheels of change have not yet spun fast enough to allow them to compete in meets. This would be against an Illinois High School Association rule, so the girls are restricted to comparing their efforts against team members in practice.

In some places, especially a few years ago, this might have raised a few voices of protest from chauvinists who would feel their domain was being invaded.

But at Schaumburg, the attitude has been in keeping with the times. On the track, the girls are treated just like anyone else in uniform.

"I like to see girls able to compete," says Schaumburg coach Dennis Garber. "I think that girls teams in track and other sports are a coming thing, though I think they will be separate and not mixed with the guys."

"But this is a good thing because there have not been enough opportunities for girls in sports."

At Schaumburg, Garber says that "One girl (Randa) usually beats about half of the boys in her events (sprints). All three of them have talent and I'm only sorry that I don't have more time to work with them. I feel that with the proper coaching they could become fine performers."

"The only thing I was cautioned about with the girls was to be sure not to let them compete in meets because this would be against the rules. I wish it were possible, but I'm glad that there will be a park district program in Schaumburg this summer with a girls team. They'll have a chance to compete in AAU meets then."

As far as reaction from the rest of the team and the school when the girls started regularly turning up at practice, Garber admits, "I thought at first that there would be some complaints but I'm really surprised that there have been no problems at all. The guys accept the girls as one of them on the track and treat them the same as anyone else. The boys don't even seem to mind when one of the girls beats them."

It is this favorable attitude that may signal in the future more opportunities for girls competition in this and other sports, perhaps in special divisions such as lower levels.

"There are already Play Days for girls at Mid-Suburban League schools in badminton, tennis, archery, bowling and other sports," Garber points out. "When they get around to the same sports as boys, I think track will be one of the first ones. All the equipment they need is already there for boys so there really wouldn't be any added cost except for uniforms."

Randa is the only freshman of the Saxon female trackster trio and has turned in the best times of the three compared to boys in her specialties, the sprints. Karen, a sophomore, runs middle distances and Laurie, also a soph, is a hurdler.

Surprisingly, the three did not make a collective movement when they started working out, but merely seemed to all have the same idea at the same time. "They didn't even know each other real well when they started," recalls Garber, "but they have gotten to be friends and go to the meets together now."

The issue of girls interscholastic athletics got some publicity recently when it came before the Illinois Senate. It was ruled for the first time that girls would compete in non-contact sports.

Randa stated that she would like to see more girls competition started in other sports but that she would like to see girls sports kept separate from boys. "It would be better competition that way because, well, boys are just supposed to be better than girls," she explains.

Randa, who enjoys other sports in Schaumburg's fine park district program such as basketball and softball, first got interested in track in the sixth grade when she entered a Hoff-Schaum J.C. meet. She did well enough to be encouraged to keep working at it and has improved enough to be quite ambitious. "I want to keep on and maybe some day try for the Olympics if I can," she said.

Originally, there was a movement at the school among considerably more girls to try their hand at track. "About 10 or 15 of them asked if they could practice with us," says Garber. "When we said it was all right, about eight showed up but some dropped out. Now it's down to just those three."

"They don't get any special attention but if they're willing to work like everybody else, it's fine with us."

That kind of attitude may produce more changes not only at Schaumburg, but everywhere.

Palatine Trackmen Second In Oak Park's B Division

The shoe was on the other foot for Palatine's indoor track team Saturday.

The Pirates, who were on the good side of a one-point victory edge just a week earlier at the Naperville Relays, found what it was like to lose by the narrowest of margins in Class B of the Oak Park Relays, the largest and oldest indoor meet in the state. (This was the 42nd annual running).

Ironically, the same team was involved in both of Palatine's down-to-the-wire struggles the last two weeks. Wheaton North, which had been edged out on the last relay at Naperville, this time prevailed with 30 points to Palatine's 29. No other team was close to Class B as Fremd had 19 points and Glenbard North 14.

The big Class A Division, for schools of over 1900 enrollment, was topped by Glenbard East with 39 points. Following were Oak Park with 32 and Alton and Proviso West with 27 each.

The only other Herald area school to get into the scoring column was Fremd with one point in Class A. Other area teams participating were Conant, Schaumburg and Rolling Meadows.

The Pirates, who were defending a Class B Oak Park title they won last year, had to come right back after a second-place showing at the Wildcat Relays at Wheeling the day before.

Brian Barnett, Palatine's outstanding distance runner who was one of the best in the state in cross country last fall, was the leader of Saturday's fine showing with the only local victory. He topped the combined Class B and C field in the mile run with a 4:25 time. Teammate Scott Williams was fifth in the same demanding race.

Palatine's other points came in three relays in which it recorded two second places and a third. The Pirates were runner-up in the Sprint medley relay be-

Summer Sports Camp Set In Indiana

Director Phil Hones announces that Wawasee Prep is planning its third annual Summer Sports Camp.

Prep, which is located on the northern shores of Lake Wawasee, Syracuse, Ind., is an ideal spot for participation in all kinds of sports. School facilities are available for soccer, football and basketball. There are three golf courses in the lake's area close to the school and all of which are used for the program. Lake Wawasee affords an excellent locale for all water sports.

Once again Prep will hold four separate sports camps where young men may learn skills in one specific sport while still being able to utilize the full facilities in his off time. All sports camps will also be held for girls and boys during this period.

For the first time a Girls' All Sports Camp will be conducted. This camp will include aquatics, golf, tennis, gymnastics, volleyball and basketball. The camp is scheduled for June 11 to 17 and is limited to 40 girls from ages 10 to 17.

The Boys' All Sports Camp will be conducted from June 25 to July 1 and a second week from July 2 to 8 for boys ages 8 to 17. Land sports will include football, tennis, golf, soccer, baseball and basketball. Aquatic sports will include scuba diving, life saving, swimming, canoeing and water skiing. Tom Nova from South Bend, a highly skilled aquatics instructor, will handle the waterfront activities. The overall camp is directed by Phil Jones of Prep's staff.

The first of the specialized camps, the soccer camp, open to boys ages 10 to 17, will once again be led by Bob Bueker, U.S. Olympic Coach, ably assisted by Jerry Yeagly, head soccer coach at Indiana University. This camp will be held from June 18 to 24 and will teach the basics of soccer, including the rules, strategy and other essentials of the sport. Daily scrimmages will be scheduled in game-like settings.

The Midwest National Golf Camp will be conducted from June 25 to July 1 and from July 2 to 8 and is open to boys 8 to 17. Chuck Pagano will be the camp pro and has been with Prep's summer program before. He is now teaching and playing out of Miami, Fla. In addition, the golf camp will have the services of some of Indiana's fine professionals.

The football camps will be held from July 9 to 15 and July 16 to 22. Wawasee Prep Summer Sports Camps are fortunate to have, once more, members of the coaching staff from Notre Dame to conduct these camps. Brian Boulae, assistant offensive line coach; and Bill Hickey, re-hind the 3:13.2 winning time of Glenbard North and also second in the eight-lap relay behind Wheaton North's 3:05.7. They were third in the four-lap relay, won also by Wheaton with 1:25.7.

The Pirates might have had a chance to rule their division if it were not for some nagging injuries to some of their top individuals. One of the walking wounded is Phil Lindberg, outstanding pole vaulter and the previous top all-around scorer on the team who has his ankle in a cast and will be out for some time.

Fremd's point came on a fifth place in the shot put by Jerry Finis with a fine 51-9 throw.

Schaumburg's Rick Stabach was second in the Class B "special mile" with 4:45.5 and the Saxons' Arnold Jackson finished ninth in the regular B-C mile with 4:34.5. Schaumburg's 16-lap relay unit of Mike Schlasner, Stabach, Jackson and Paul Paolini finished fourth with 7:42.8.

The Saxons also notched a first in freshman competition in the four-lap relay with a 1:32.1 clicking by Roger Biever, Mike Nejman, Duane Kniedek and Brad Cell.

The meet closed out the indoor season in which Palatine posted its best record over — 11-1 in dual and triangular meets. The outdoor season opens this Saturday when the Pirates host St. Viator and Maine East.

Working For A Better Community

Dist. 25 Schools Are Her Concern

(This is the sixth of a series of articles acquainting area residents with past or present members of The League of Women Voters who are currently holding local policy-making positions.)

by GENIE CAMPBELL

One thing just led to another. Mrs. Joan Klussman of Arlington Heights would have to sum up her services within the community with that one adage. Her list reads: League of Women Voters to full-time reporting job to board member of School District 25.

"As a result of my commitment to the League, all sorts of things happened," said Joan during a recent interview.

She joined the League six years ago "to learn something and be of service to the community."

While the League was involved in raising funds to aid the Northwest Opportunity Center, the local Arlington Heights chapter was interested in finding a woman within their own membership capable of doing public relations work. She would be responsible for informing community organizations about the Center's needs in an effort to increase pledge funds.

JOAN WAS recruited. Formerly she had been responsible for the chapter's newsletter. It was to be the beginning of a writing career.

Mrs. Klussman had also been observing Arlington Heights Village Board meetings for the League. Accumulating a knowledge about the board and its policies, she was asked to become a part-time writer for the Arlington Heights Herald.

In the fall of 1968 she began working full-time for the newspaper and began covering the meetings of School District 25. The district retained her to do free lance work for the schools when she gave up her job with the Herald two years later.

LAST YEAR the District 25 nominating committee asked Joan if she would consent to run for the school board. There were three positions open and 10 candidates.

Joan, who has two daughters in the District 25 system, was elected last April. She is the only woman on the seven member board.

"Sure, I'm freer during the day than a lot of men," she said. "But I don't think that is an important criterion because men will take off time from their jobs if something is important enough."

Joan is not intimidated by being the only woman. Nor does she feel any discrimination.

"Certainly I would welcome another qualified woman," she said, "but I don't think that being the only woman has been a big problem."

"I HAVE DIFFERENT contacts than the men, but, of course, men have wives active in area organizations and they can find out the same things through them."

"I think it is important for everyone, not only women to be active. It is both rewarding and a continual learning process."

Decorating Info

For The Engaged

Gazebo Interiors, Inc., Mount Prospect, is celebrating its first spring in the area with a special invitation to all couples planning a wedding.

The shop will hold an interior decorating seminar with accent on young home fashion Friday evening, April 7, in the Gazebo which is located in the Algonquin-Busse-Dempster triangle. Much of the evening will be devoted to questions and answers between the audience and the interior designers.

There is no fee for the seminar, but reservations are requested before April 5 by calling 593-1880.

THE GAZEBO'S wedding present to all newlyweds will be a discount on all custom draperies ordered during April and May. Bedspreads will also carry special price tags and all fabrics labeled "blue" in the manufacturer's color list will be special bargains.

Blue Ribbon Winner At The Flower Show

A Dracena plant has won a blue ribbon at the Chicago World Flower Show for Mrs. Wallace E. Berth, 304 Indian Hill, Buffalo Grove. The award was made in the horticulture competition sponsored by the Garden Club of Illinois.

Mrs. Berth, a member of the Buffalo Grove Garden Club, also received a yellow ribbon in the artistic design competition for her arrangement, "Fantastic Future."

The Easter Buffet April 2 At Marriott

The annual Easter Sunday Buffet in the grand ballroom of the Chicago Marriott will be repeated this year with an elaborate menu, ice carvings by Head Chef Manfred Mork and a visit from the Easter Bunny, who will have surprises for the youngsters.

The buffet, from noon to 5 p.m. April 2, will feature baked ham, roast leg of lamb and prime roast of beef, preceded by an array of appetizers and salads. The meal will be topped off with a special desert selection. The buffet is priced at $5.50 for adults and $2.85 for children under 10.

Information and reservations for the event are available by calling Mrs. Carole at 693-4444.

Lengthen Lashes

To lengthen and add body to lashes try applying a little powder to them first. The powder provides a base that helps the mascara cling. Three applications over the powder will make your lashes look incredibly long and full.

Meridee Jean Trimble arrived March 15 for Mr. and Mrs. Michael E. Trimble, 350 S. We-GO Trail, Mount Prospect. The newcomer, their first child, weighed 7 pounds 1/2 ounce. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Volk of Cary and Mrs. M. W. Trimble of Arlington Heights.

Keith Metzler's birth took place March 18, his weight listed at 7 pounds 12 ounces. He is the fourth child born to Mr. and Mrs. David N. Metzler, 255 Fleetwood Lane, Elk Grove, and a brother for David, 10, Todd, 8, and Dawn, 6. Mrs. Florence Wagner of Park Ridge and the Howard Metzlers of New Port Richey, Fla., are Keith's grandparents.

Maureen Anne Quierly, first child of Mr. and Mrs. Dan K. Quierly, 108 E. Clarendon, Prospect Heights, was a March 17 arrival — a St. Patrick's Day baby. She weighed 6 pounds 10 ounces. Grandparents are the John Plouffs of South Bend, Ind., and Mrs. Thomas Quierly of St. Petersburg, Fla.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: Enjoy your column immensely but do question your advice about cooking a chuck roast all day at 200 degrees. I've read that you are really courting botulism if you cook at any temperature under 300 degrees. Would appreciate your checking this.

—Helen Snowden

I'm afraid you're confused between fresh meats and canned meats. There isn't a thing to worry about when you are cooking fresh meats — and, thus, temperature means nothing. Botulism occurs only in the absence of air. Hence, it is only in canning meats and a too low temperature used in the pressure cooking that there is a possibility of trouble. This is a good time to point out again that one should never do any home canning without all the proper information at hand.

Dear Dorothy: By accident I got the wrong kind of cod liver oil preparation to use on my baby's diaper rash. The diaper rash is gone but everything he has worn smells like a fisherman's wharf. I've tried bleach, disinfectant, detergents, soaking, lemon juice and so on.

Nothing has worked. Any ideas?

—Lynne Maggiore

The old faithful — baking soda in solution — ought to do it. Not only will it absorb the odor, but emulsify the oil which will make it easier to get out in laundering.

—M.C.

Dear Dorothy: How can you remove impressions made by furniture on heavy carpeting?

Dampen the area slightly (be sure it doesn't go through to the pad beneath) and rub gently with a brush. When dry, go over it a few times with the vacuum cleaner. You could also try holding a steam iron (not too close) over the spot, using a brush at the same time. These treatments may have to be repeated, depending on how deep the impression.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006)

Women Are Women Again On The Charity Runway

BY MARIANNE SCOTT

It may be a repercussion of women's lib, but men want their women to look as if they needed them. Back on the fashion scene are the feminine, soft, flowing ensembles — and the women love them, too.

This spring and summer gloves, lovely jewelry, bows and flowers are returning. However, the fashion dictators may run into some opposition on the hats. But hats are fun. They're pretty and feminine and we'll just have to wait and see.

Hats made a big splash on the runway last Thursday at Nordic Hills Country Club when Mount Prospect Center of Infant Welfare staged its luncheon-show, "Fashion Faces Spring." Wide-brimmed Milan straws topped most of the daytime ensembles.

The show was presented by Peck and Peck of Woodfield, the 82nd branch of the store which is now in its 84th year. Known for its classically-designed and quality fashions, Peck and Peck showed a variety of ensembles from tennis outfits to at-home and on-the-town wear.

THE SHOW WAS long on long skirts, many one piece with the look of three — vest, blouse and skirt all in one. The long skirts were knife pleated, quilted, lace overlaid and they came in plaids, checks and flower prints. Many were blazer-topped.

Coats and suits have always been a specialty of the house and the runway ensembles, a safari suit, several seersuckers and a canvas outfit.

Raincoats also made a big splash in the show, a favorite being a white with embroidery trim. Another was in sunshine yellow.

The nautical look was popular from the pant suits and slack outfits right on down to the long skirts.

Chairman of the luncheon was Mrs. E. Schoneberger, and models included members of Barrington, Arlington Heights and the Mount Prospect Centers of the Infant Welfare Society.

Next On The Agenda

PALATINE POSIES

Members of the Palatine Posies Garden Club will busy themselves planting their favorite seeds at the club's meeting Wednesday. A discussion on plant propagation will be led by Mrs. James Bescher, member of Inverness Garden Club.

Hostesses for the meeting are Mrs. Donald Meyer and Mrs. Donald Lyons, and the time is 7:30 p.m. at Mrs. Meyer's home, 908 Ventura.

MOUNT PROSPECT LA LECHE

The arrival of the baby and the relation of the breastfed baby to the family will be discussed at Wednesday's meeting of Mount Prospect La Leche League. The meeting begins at 8:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Floyd Nightlinger, 203 Eastwood.

Mount Prospect area mothers interested in breastfeeding are invited to this informal gathering of nursing mothers and babies.

The League meets the last Wednesday of each month and covers a continuing series of four subjects relating to "The Womanly Art of Breastfeeding."

Further information may be obtained by phoning one of the area leaders. Mrs. Neugebauer 253-4566 or Mrs. Robert Lange, 827-3855.

TRIM FOR HIM TOPS

At an installation Monday evening

Mrs. Val Hauska of Palatine was installed as leader of TOPS Trim for Him Club of Palatine. The installation was held at Chin's Restaurant in Arlington Heights.

Installed as co-leader was Mrs. Marvin Olsberg, Palatine. Mrs. Mill Logeman, Palatine, was installed as secretary. New treasurer is Mrs. Fredrick Heald, Arlington Heights, and weight recorder is Mrs. Gerald Frank, Rolling Meadows.

BUFFALO GROVE-WHEELING LA LECHE

"The Art of Breastfeeding and Overcoming Difficulties," will be the topic under discussion tonight for the Buffalo Grove-Wheeling La Leche group. This, the second in a four-part series, will be held in the home of Mrs. Richard Sheldon, 2 Burnt Ember Ct., Buffalo Grove, Strathmore, at 8:30.

Mrs. Michael Murray will open discussion on some of the more common worries and misconceptions about breastfeeding, combined with some more specific ways of taking care of your baby and yourself.

Visitors are welcome and a loan library is provided for the use of all. For further meeting information Mrs. Sheldon may be contacted at 541-2661, or for counseling Mrs. Murray at 537-9905.

Paradise With Two Faces

There's More To Hawaii Than Waikiki

WAHINE BEAUTY — Wahine is Hawaiian for girl and typical of island beauties is this young flower girl holding a collection of tropical flora. A favorite with vacationers, Hawaii is served with daily jet flights from the Mainland by United Air Lines.

CATAMARANS are popular sports boats in Hawaii. "Cat" rides of varying lengths and prices are available. Every evening the double-hulled boats, with their multi-colored spinners, set out from several of the Waikiki waterfront hotels as the sun goes down. On the larger catamarans cocktails and dinner are served aboard complete with Hawaiian music for a tab of about $14.00 (United Air Lines Photo)

by CLARE WRIGHT
Paddock Publications Travel Editor
WAIKIKI — It's exciting here in this cosmopolitan spot . . . especially if you're seeing the islands for the first time.
Hotels here are among the best in the world.
There are bright lights and big name entertainers.
Restaurants come in every type and shape — and to fit every budget — and the food is great in all of them.
But Hawaii has two faces.
There's more to it than exotic, exciting, fast-paced Waikiki.
The Neighbor Islands, and the rural areas of Oahu, present a practically unspoiled Polynesia to visitors — the "other Hawaii."
Take Maui, for example — where you can be lazy and shell on superb beaches like Fleming and Napili . . . or swim and beachcomb at peaceful Hana and Nahiku Cove.
You find a lot of the mood of early Hawaii in the village of Lahaina on the island of Maui.

Sited in the elegant Kanapali resort area, Lahaina was once the Pacific capital of the whaling ships. Its wild and woolly past, when whalers were pitted against determined missionaries, is reflected in village architecture.
One of the world's best golf courses is in Lahaina. There are other attractions including the Whaler's Village, Lahaina-Kaanapali Railroad, and the "Carthaginian," a still sea-worthy 93-foot, three-masted bark rigged as an authentic 1850 whaler.
For a real South Seas atmosphere (for modest prices) try the wonderful old Pioneer Inn. In spite of renovation and expansion it still looks like it did when it was built.
On the other side of the island of Maui from Lahaina is Hana, home of the Hotel Hana Rance, favorite retreat of celebrities.
The 7,000-acre cattle ranch is right at the foot of Haleakala, the world's largest dormant volcano.
Another secluded Polynesian hideaway for folks wanting to escape the fast-paced spots is lovely Polihale Beach on the island of Kauai.

Hanalei, on Kauai, is also one of the most beautiful spots in the world, according to northwest suburban residents who have been there.
Many Hawaiian visitors "flightsee" Molokai — enchanting island of primitive valleys, sheer cliffs, and tranquil villages.
If you're tempted to stay awhile (and who isn't?) the Molokai hotel is comfortable and hospitable.
The Big Island of Hawaii is still another world — a world where volcanoes still simmer and where island beauty is alive with every imaginable type of flower and growth.
The Kona Coast and Kohala districts are tourist favorites. Kona is a charming fishing village and home of the famous marlin grounds.

Accommodations on the Neighbor Islands are superb. Kauai has the Kauai Surf, the Islander Inns, Sheraton Kauai, Hanalei Plantation, and Coco Palms.
On Maui, there's the Sheraton Maui, the Royal Lahaina, the Maui Hilton or the Maui Surf.
Hawaii has the Kona Hilton, Kona Inn, Islander Inns and many others, as well as the lovely Naniloa Hotel in Hilo, the Orchid Isle and the Islander Inn.
Yes, there are two distinct faces of Hawaii — the sophisticated pace of Waikiki — and the languid Polynesian charm of the Neighbor Islands. Jack London and Mark Twain sang Hawaii's praises. So will you.

Travel Programs On Germany Available Here April 4-7

Lt. Col. Charles Hampton Price, internationally known travel lecturer and authority on Germany, will be available for programs in the Chicago area between April 4 and 7.
The slide-film lectures include: Cities of Germany, Festival and Folklore, Carnival — Corpus Christi Processions — Passion Play, Industrial Germany, Berlin, and Bavaria.
The illustrated lectures are from 30 minutes to one hour in length.
Retired from the U.S. Army Air Force, Lt. Col. Price accumulated an extensive collection of color slides portraying the manifold faces and scenes of Germany while on duty in the country from 1956 to 1961.
After returning to the United States in 1961, Col. Price's continued efforts to further German-American understanding resulted in special invitations from the Government of the Federal Republic of Germany.

In 1963, he was awarded the Federal Republic's Order of Merit, First Class, becoming the 18th United States military man to receive this decoration. In 1965, West Berlin's Lord Mayor Willi Brandt presented a replica of Berlin's Freedom Bell to Col. Price as an expression of gratitude for his friendship toward the city of Berlin.
Col. Price became affiliated with Lufthansa German Airlines as travel lecturer shortly after his retirement from the Air Force following a military career of over 25 years.
Information about the travel lectures may be obtained by calling Lufthansa, 263-4888.

What To Take To Hawaii

When in doubt, leave it out!
Wise travelers headed for Hawaii take that "travel lightly" advice seriously.
And why not? Everything you need can be found in the Islands.
A wardrobe of cotton and drip dry dresses is right for women. Summer suits and slacks are ideal for men.
There's never any need for woollens or furs at sea level in Hawaii. However, it's smart to take along a sweater, a woolen stole, or even a light coat for the volcano and other heights.
Casual and informal attire are the rule in Hawaii.
If you're expecting to swing a little at the Royal Hawaiian, or other hotels like it, or be invited to black tie dinners, take along light-weight formal attire.
Remember the comfortable walking shoes, but leave the nylons at home.

Got A 'Honi' For An 'Ipo'

If somebody comes up to you in Hawaii and shouts: "Honi kama wikipiki," you'd better know that it means "Kiss me quick!"
If you see "kane" on a door — that's the Men's room.
To find the ladies' room, look for the word "wahine."
Here are a few more common Hawaiian words and their translations:
Ipo — sweetheart
Kaukau — food to eat. This word is widely used in the Islands, and any Island kid will come running when he hears it.
Mahalo — thank you
Manawahi — free
Pau — finished, done
Wikipiki — hurry up
Every syllable and every word in Hawaiian ends with a vowel. The accent of most Hawaiian words falls on the next-to-the-last syllable. If you know any modern Romance language, use those rules for pronouncing Hawaiian words.

TRAVEL LORE

by Clare Wright,
TRAVEL EDITOR

Where is the Britain-bound American tourist most likely to head for?

London. What attracts him to London more than other parts of England?

"History!" says James R. Harris, marketing manager of British Overseas Airways, who was in town last week.

The pomp and circumstance, the royal pageantry and the historic landmarks of London appeal to all ages, according to the BOAC executive.

"Where else in the world can you find a city where every morning at precisely 11 o'clock all busy traffic stops and business comes to a complete standstill while everybody — Londoners and tourist alike pause to watch the Changing of the Guard?"

Harris feels that more Americans travrhyme is rumored to have lived in Colchester.

"This is Britain's oldest recorded town," an innkeeper there told us.

You believe it when you poke around the Norman castle and see the foundations of the Roman Temple of Claudius below. Incidentally, some of the best oysters we've ever tasted we had in Colchester.

If you're a dyed-in-the-wool history buff, a trip to Northumberland, Durham and Yorkshire is one you should figure out a way to take if you're going to Britain.

Northumberland and Durham — heart of the Ancient Saxon kingdom of Northumbria — are existing border counties whose hills and shores are steeped in the history of Roman legions, Celtic saints and proud Medieval border lords.

SPRING IN SUFFOLK, the country that Constable loved to paint. Dozens of delightful, unspoiled villages dot the peaceful countryside. Most eling to Britain should allow time to see the rest of the country.

"Getting around is simple because distances are short — which also keeps travel costs down," he remarked.

You can ride the British Rail for just a few pennies a mile. Going by bus is even cheaper.

You can also rent a self-drive car for a week, with unlimited mileage, from as little as $60.

We happen to love London and never seem to have enough time to spend there. Nevertheless, we always try to plan a few days to unwind and wander off into the English countryside.

East Anglia is a part of rural England that charms you with the kind of landscapes that inspired the artist, Constable. Its counties of Essex, Suffolk, Norfolk, Cambridgeshire, Huntingdon and Peterborough abound with castles, cathedrals, quaint villages and stately homes (like Queen Elizabeth's elegant country estate at Sandringham).

Family Plan Yachting For Caribbean Summer

Who says yachts and sailing the Caribbean are just for the rich?

A new family plan Caribbean yacht cruise price has been announced making it possible for more Americans and their families to soak up the sun on their own luxurious private yachts outfitted with captain and crew. The family plan price is $23.70 per day, per person for a family of six.

The new June-July summer cruise rate (about half the winter rate), includes all meals and beverages, sailing lessons, use of all water sports gear, and all the sun, fun, swimming and sailing you and your family ever dreamed of.

"It's a great way for the family to spend a vacation together cruising and swimming among the Caribbean islands," says Evelyn Whitney of Whitney Virgin Island Charters in Chicago, representing the largest fleet of charter yachts in the Caribbean.

"Off season is actually the best sailing season in the Caribbean," she explained. "The temperature averages only ten degrees higher than the winter and the Trade Winds air condition the whole of the Caribbean."

Besides all the water sports, cruising and exploring along the 77 islands and cays of the Caribbean, there is the opportunity of visiting the shoppers bargain paradise of the world — the tax-free port of St. Thomas.

Information about Family Plan Yachting in the Caribbean may be obtained by writing to Compass, 217 W. Campbell Ave., Arlington Heights, Illinois, 60006.

CHARTER YACHT available under new family plan sailing rate for the Caribbean is the Mandoo.

Bermuda Perfume

Springtime In A Bottle

by PATRICIA HERNANDEZ

HAMILTON, Bermuda — Add five parts alcohol to one part "essential oils"; mix in one-quarter part extract of civet and add a touch of "essence of passion flower." Stir well and leave to age.

A recipe for a Bermuda Passion Punch?

No — it's a simplified formula for perfume.

On this tiny island, four perfume and lotion manufacturers — adding up to a sizeable percentage of the "factories" in Bermuda — blend ingredients such as these into a variety of springtime fragrances.

Opening a bottle of their exotic products releases memories of brisk walks down flower-fringed Bermuda lanes.

Everywhere on this island chain there are flowers which delight the eye — and springtime is the time to see them at their best.

The traffic "roundabouts" are islands of multicolored annuals; the roads are fringed with ornamental oleander, hibiscus and Surinam cherries; exotic tropical and sub-tropical plants flourish side by side at the Botanical Gardens; gateways and fences are dressed in Bougainvillea and copper leaf (known in Bermuda as "match-me-if-you-can"); the dunes overlooking the famed South Shore beaches are dressed in sea lavender, Spanish bayonet, Bermudiana and bay grapes; morning glories and nasturtiums are so abundant that Bermudians consider them weeds.

The famed Bermuda Easter lily remains Bermuda's best-known springtime scent, but many prefer the exotic scent of passion flowers or the tangy smell of limes.

What, then, could be more natural than trying to capture these fragrances in perfumes?

The "Perfume Factory," owned by Mrs. Madeline Scott, and located near the Bailey's Bay Post office, offers guided tours free of charge for anyone wishing to explore their gardens or see perfume-making in progress.

Six basic Bermuda scents are produced at the Perfume Factory under the "Lili" label — Easter lily, sweet pea, oleander, jasmine, passion flower and cedarwood. The latter is a shaving lotion made from shavings of the unique Bermuda cedar.

An old and time-consuming method of extracting the scent from a flower is still practiced at the Perfume Factory. This method, called enfleurage, is used in the production of the passion flower perfume, and its usage is reflected in the price of that perfume.

A dram of Easter lily perfume retails for $2. Sweet pea sells for $3 and passion flower for $4.

This compares favorably with the prices of fine French perfumes, which are sold in Bermuda at some 40 per cent off U.S. prices.

BEAUTY TO BEAUTY — A springtime visitor to Hamilton Parish, Bermuda, admires a Bermuda Easter lily. Still the most important export of this

Travel Briefs

CAREER IN TRAVEL?

International Travel Training Courses, Inc., will begin its Summer 1972 evening session on April 27. Classes will be conducted twice weekly for 20 weeks. This course is offered to qualified individuals who are interested in entering the travel field. More information is available by calling 527-2125 for a personal interview, or writing INTTCO, Suite 401, 360 North Michigan Ave., Chicago, 60601.

"DOUBLE DISCOUNT FAMILY PLAN"

A new family vacation travel plan is now in effect on Air Canada's routes to Canada. The "Double Discount Family Plan" features air fare reductions of 10 per cent for a family of three to 15 per cent for a family of four or more. At least one of the group must be a parent accompanying eligible dependent children ranging between two and 21 years of age.

An example of the new fare for a family of four — two parents, one child age two to 11 and one child age 12 through 21, is $289.10 between Chicago and Montreal, round trip. This results in a savings of $55.10 for this family.

CUNARD ADVENTURER

Cunard Adventurer will make maiden arrival at Norfolk, Va., May 20. She'll depart that evening on the first of 27 consecutive weekly cruises from that port to San Juan and St. Thomas.

SAS/AVIS SELF-DRIVE

A new Scandinavian Airlines/Avis tour of Europe leaves the driving to you and four others for only $199 per week. Up to five persons can participate for the same cost. The traveler is rented a car and trailer and given unlimited mileage, oil, maintenance, documentation and insurance.

For the $199 per week, SAS/Avis offers the use of the latest automatic Ford available plus the new MKP trailer which sleeps up to five adults. A minimum rental of two weeks is required. Each additional day costs $28.50. Special rates are available on request for rentals of less than two weeks.

Prices are plus air fare. SAS departs daily from Chicago during the spring and summer.

NEW DINNER FLIGHT

Alitalia Airlines has added five weekly Chicago to Montreal dinner flights to its schedule. Flights continue on to Rome or Milan/Rome.

IRISH THREE-DAY BARGAIN

That $25 three-day "Welcome Ireland Holiday" has proved such a winner that Aer Lingus-Irish has extended its availability until April 30.

This makes it even better value coming at a time when most hotels raise prices . . . not to mention the little matter of the devaluation of the dollar!

What do you get? Not just one of those "free days" mind you, but three full days in Dublin, or any of four other resorts, in a top class hotel with breakfast every day, a free car in which to roam and enjoy the countryside, with an evening at the theatre or at a medieval banquet. Available to all passengers who travel at least one way on the Irish line.

20 WEEKS OF YOUR LIFE CAN GIVE YOU A NEW CAREER . . . IN TRAVEL

Read what these leading travel authorities have to say about INTTCO:

"Since INTTCO was established ten years ago it has rendered a tremendous service to the travel industry by supplying us with knowledgeable and qualified personnel. My heartfelt congratulations!"

Mr. Fernando R. Capdevielle, Executive Vice President, World Travel Services, Inc.

"In my former position as Midwest Manager for Cunard Line I worked closely with the over 400 travel agencies in the Chicago Metropolitan area. I found many agencies staffed with graduates of INTTCO which is an indication of the excellent vocational training provided by the school."

Mr. Robin Underhill, Vice President, Shirley House of Travel, Lake Bluff

"Drake Travel Service is well complemented by graduates of the INTTCO school. As a sales consultant, Mrs. Robert Fanti has been with us for seven years. More recently Mrs. Mary Honee Riva and Mrs. Lydia Elias have joined our staff. The basic training and preparation offered by INTTCO is, in fact, an essential requirement for positions in today's travel industry."

Mr. William F. Maurer, Manager, Drake Travel Service, Inc.

"Being President of the American Society of Travel Agents and General Chairman of the Central Regional Convention would have been impossible had it not been for Joanne Lampson, a graduate of INTTCO, who supervises all departments of my agency. She also sells and processes more business than any other girl in our office."

Mr. Vince Sheridan, President, Custom Travel Service, Inc.

"As a salesman selling steamship travel I have come to know many graduates of the INTTCO over the last several years. Many of them own their own Travel Agencies or are among the top management. The well rounded education they received makes them a definite asset to our industry."

Mr. Dick Francis, District Sales Manager, Holland America Line

"I have hired INTTCO personnel over a period of five years. The training they have received in the school gives them a base of knowledge to go to work immediately and develop their skills within the industry."

Mr. M. B. Westphal, President, Travel Specialists, Incorporated

"Before establishing Arrington Travel Center I took a very important step. I enrolled in International Travel Training Courses. The training received in the school made it possible for me to open my agency with a great deal of knowledge and with a minimum of time and effort. I highly recommend this organization."

Mr. Michael Arrington, President, Arrington Travel Center

"IBERIA Air Lines of Spain and I feel proud of the professionals acquired by our sales representative, Mrs. Valen, which we attribute in great part to the education in travel received from INTTCO. Our industry needs experienced people more than ever and we highly recommend INTTCO."

Mr. Jean F. Gaudere, District Sales Manager

Mrs. David Echols, Director

INTTCO is a workshop where students use the tools of the travel trade and are taught by executives of American Airlines, British Overseas Airways Corp., Travel Specialists, Air France, Holland America Line and other leading carriers.

Spring evening session — (Tue. and Thur. 6 to 9:30 p.m.) begins April 27. Call: 527-2125 for personal interview.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

COMBINE NEWSPAPER WORK ADVERTISING AND TELEPHONE SELLING

and you have the ingredients for a fascinating, rewarding job. We have an opening in our Classified Advertising Department for an intelligent, enthusiastic woman to begin training for this permanent, full-time position with a secure future.

You'll be working for an advertising Manager and a company who really cares about people. It could be the most rewarding and enjoyable position you've ever had. Sound interesting? You bet it is!

Ability to type and spell correctly, any previous experience in sales, public contact or phone work helpful but not necessary. A pleasant outgoing personality, a little determination and a good telephone voice is what it takes. We'll train you to do the rest. This is not a commission type job but added incentives mean you can easily make more than the set wage. Your extra earnings will largely depend on how well you personally perform. Many liberal company benefits.

Come in between 9 a.m. and 12 noon and fill out an application. Ask for Larry Bell, Classified Advertising Manager, or call 394-2400.

Before I joined the Payroll Savings Plan all I could save was string.

When it comes to saving money, most of us can use all the help we can get.

Joining the Payroll Savings Plan is one easy way to force yourself to save. When you sign up, an amount you specify is set aside from each paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. It's automatic. Everything is done for you.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½% payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Stick with the plan and before you know it you'll have a bankroll waiting. That's when you'll find you can do a lot more with money than you can with string.

When the Wedding is Over...

Let your friends read about it in the HERALD

But remember our deadlines...

For detailed wedding story (including gown descriptions and a listing of attendants) wedding information is due in Herald office within three weeks following wedding date. Information received in Herald office after three weeks and up to five weeks following wedding date will be used for a brief story only, or caption.

For publication the Herald requests a 5x7 black and white glossy close-up photo (bouquet and up) of bridal pair or bride alone. Depending on color tones, contrast and clarity, color photos may possibly be used at the discretion of the editors. Small snapshots are not acceptable.

Ask Your Photographer To Make the Selection

We suggest the bride or some member of the family select a photo for the newspaper immediately upon receiving photographer's proofs. Better yet, ask the photographer to make the selection to avoid delay.

If your photographer cannot comply with deadlines, write-up will be published without a photo providing information is in the Herald office before the deadline.

Wedding forms are available in the Herald offices. There is no charge for publishing wedding stories or photos.

Mental Health 'Outpost' To Open April 5

Schaumburg Township residents will have the services of a psychiatric social worker and a psychiatrist at a convenient location and during regularly scheduled hours starting April 5.

Northwest Mental Health Center will open its "outpost" facility in the township office at 105 S. Roselle Rd., Schaumburg, on that date. Once each week, on Wednesdays, Mrs. Rose Wheeler, psychiatric social worker, will be on duty in the town hall from 1-9 p.m. Dr. Eugene Trager, psychiatrist and medical director of the center, will take appointments between 1 and 7 p.m. the same days.

To function as a counseling and referral agency, the outpost will be under the organizational supervision of the center's main office, at 1711 W. Campbell St., Arlington Heights. All appointments are to be scheduled through the Arlington Heights office, by calling 392-1420.

The township office is not open for township business on Wednesdays, meaning facilities will be available for private consultation.

THE OUTPOST will offer marriage counseling, help with learning disabilities, group and individual therapy and general diagnosis and therapy. To be handled at the main office will be areas of treatment best provided from that facility.

While the center and the outpost will charge a nominal fee for services, based on ability to pay, no person will be denied assistance for inability to pay.

The outpost will be only a temporary facility, and likely will be replaced in one of two ways. Either the center's main office will be moved to a contemplated new building on Algonquin Road, just east of Roselle Road, or the center will discontinue service to Schaumburg and Elk Grove townships.

The two possibilities hinge on a decision to be made within the next few months by state distributors of federal aid for mental health services. Both Northwest and Elk Grove Community Services have applied for grants to serve these two townships. Northwest's application also is to finance services for Palatine and Wheeling townships.

IF THE GRANT is approved for Elk Grove Community Services, that organization would be required to serve Schaumburg Township, and there would be no need for Northwest to continue the outpost. Also, Northwest would have to find a new location for its proposed new building, one more centrally located to its two remaining townships.

If Northwest receives the grant, and is able to find funding for the new building, outpost services would be incorporated into the new main office.

Northwest already has completed preliminary drawings of the new building, made overtures to five banks for financing and leased one acre from Catholic Charities for $10 yearly.

"In the meantime, we feel service needs to be made accessible. We are trying to make a continued evaluation of needs," said Mrs. Lois Radtke, Northwest's executive secretary.

THE OPENING of the new branch office was termed "excellent" by Township Clerk Kathleen Wojcik. "I have been an advocate of this for years," said Mrs. Wojcik.

Mrs. Wojcik added the Elk Grove Community Services staff also would be welcomed at the town office, should it be the grant recipient. "I'm sure if they came to us, it would be the same arrangement. But I feel that Elk Grove probably would not be needing this office space," said Mrs. Wojcik, "since that organization has its own facilities at Alexian Brothers Medical Center, Elk Grove Village.

$5,000 Taken In Burglary

At least $5,000 was stolen from the Beef 'n' Barrel Restaurant, 1932 E. Higgins Rd., Elk Grove Township, when burglars opened the safe with a torch sometime after closing hours Sunday night or Monday morning.

An investigator from the Cook County Sheriff's police yesterday described the burglary as done by professionals, saying "they knew exactly where to use" the torch. "The job they did on the safe was probably one of the better jobs I've seen in the area," said the investigator.

The $5,000 loss estimate was a "bare minimum," said the spokesman, who added the actual loss could be much higher, depending on Sunday's receipts. Stored in the bank were receipts from the day, plus the "banks" to supply cash registers for Monday's operations. While the exact total will not be known until later this week, the investigator said it could be more than $10,000.

The burglary was discovered by Jack Manolas, day manager, when he reported to work Monday morning. He said the rear door to the restaurant had been pried open. Nothing else had been disturbed.

PULLING THINGS ALONG was a two-fold project for a young local horseback rider who last weekend had to deal with both a stubborn horse and cold weather refusing to give way to spring temperatures.

Homeowners To Protest Ice Rink Plan

by BOB ANDERSEN

The just-formed Pie Homeowners Association has its work cut out for it.

Organized to speak for Hoffman Estates residents in the triangular-shaped High Point South subdivision, the fledgling association will protest a rezoning application to allow construction of an ice-skating facility at Golf Road near Oakmont Road, across from the subdivision.

The residents officially organized Friday evening by selecting officers and a board of directors. The association will represent the approximately 327 homeowners in the pie-shaped area which has Oakmont Road as its base with Higgins and Golf roads as the north-south boundaries, said Al Reznick, chairman of the board and newly elected vice president.

REZNICK SAID the 75 residents attending Friday's meeting at Neil Armstrong School decided the new association will oppose the rezoning request at an April 11 Hoffman Estates Plan Commission hearing.

"We are not unalterably opposed to the Ice Bucket per se," Reznick said. "But we are opposed to rezoning a single-family area to commercial."

A group of investors, headed by local sporting goods merchant Lou Bocci, want the village to rezone 14 acres on the south side of Golf Road from residential to commercial to accommodate a facility (to be called the Ice Bucket) for amateur ice hockey, recreational skating and related ice activities.

As proposed at a March 16 plan commission meeting, the ice facility will include an 85-by-200 foot regulation ice-hockey rink plus a smaller rink for tots and beginners, seating for about 850 and parking for 250 vehicles. The facility will cost $1.5 million, said representatives of the newly formed Ice Bucket Management, Inc.

Some 50 pie-area residents, appearing at the meeting, said the proposed facility could cause traffic problems, might pose a safety hazard as local children cross Golf Road to get to it, might lower property values and could become a noise nuisance. Also objected to was the fact the facility would be open from 12 to 16 hours a day and conceivably could be open 24 hours if there is a demand.

"IT HAS BEEN THE experience of us homeowners that once a parcel of land is zoned from single-family to commercial, the courts allow adjoining land also be so zoned on the principle it is the highest and best use of the land," Reznick said.

He added the association's concern is not only the 14 acres being considered, but also, if rezoning is allowed, that the some 100 acres abutting the parcel will receive the same zoning. It could destroy the single-family character of the area, Reznick said.

The general purpose of the association is to "act as a watchdog for the pie area as well as keep a constant watch for all activities affecting the community of Hoffman Estates," Reznick said.

THE ASSOCIATION will also push for development of a recreational area at Armstrong School, for beautification of the area's parkways and for the positioning of a postal mail drop-box in the area,

Industrial Parks 62% Filled Here

by BOB ANDERSEN

When averaged together, the Village of Schaumburg's three largest industrial parks are approximately 62 per cent sold out, mostly to light manufacturing and processing firms with a sprinkling of service companies, retail dealerships, distributors and corporate office and research headquarters.

The three parks — Plum Grove Industrial Estates, Schaumburg Industrial Park and Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Air Park — represent 1,290 acres. Of these, individual lots totaling 800 acres are sold, managing agents of the three parks report.

"We still have a few select lots left," said Dan O'Neill, vice president of Podolsky and Associates of Chicago, exclusive agents for the 450-acre Plum Grove park.

O'NEILL REPORTED lots comprising 420 acres in the park have been sold. The biggest buyer is Motorola, which occupies 300 acres.

The 250-acre Schaumburg Industrial Park is 50 per cent sold, said Richard LaReno, president of I.D.E.A., a subsidiary of Arthur Rubloff & Co. of Chicago.

Schaumburg Industrial Park lies between Plum Grove and Meacham roads and between Wiley and Golf roads.

INDIVIDUAL lots on 250 acres of Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Air Park's 600 acres are sold, reported James H. Dana, an associate of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates in Chicago, managing agents of the park.

The Centex-Schaumburg park lies between Irving Park and Wise roads and between Rodenburg Road and the eastern boundary of the village of Roselle.

The three agents report sale of the industrial lots is progressing faster than anticipated.

O'Neill said the Plum Grove park is about three years ahead of schedule. The land was purchased in 1967, he said, and it was expected to be fully sold in "five to seven years," he predicts.

LaRENO SAID I.D.E.A. began selling lots in Schaumburg Industrial Park in January, 1969. He expects to have the park fully sold in another three years.

INSIDERS ARE prepared for Camp-anelli Bros., Inc., pioneer developers of the Weathersfield subdivision, to soon pop plans for departing Schaumburg in favor of another mushrooming community in nearby DuPage County.

WITH NO meetings scheduled since early December, is it premature to describe the Lincoln County Study Committee as appearing to show a decline in vital signs?

SEND CONGRATULATIONS to Hoffman Estates' Linda DePaul, a 16-year-old high school senior, who was recently awarded second place trophy in an advertising and layout contest sponsored by the Illinois Distributive Education Assn.

DON'T MISS the distinctive set of double arches just installed to define Irving Park and Wise Road entrances to Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park.

Hopefully, someone's next move may be removal of several abandoned cars which have decorated undeveloped areas of the industrial tract for many months.

WITH THE Circuit Court appointment of Fire District Trustee C. E. "Bud" Knapp about to expire, grapevine has it that Bill Brilliant (top vote-getter on last year's unsuccessful Democratic ticket in Hoffman Estates) may be one of two replacement names favored by a citizens group opting for municipal take-over of the department.

TWO VICTORS in last week's primary, Don Totten (third district candidate for the Illinois Legislature) and Ed Hanra-han (incumbent state's attorney candidate) could possibly have studied political science together at Notre Dame University.

Biographies list Totten (a Republican) at 39. Hanrahan (the Democrat) is a year younger which makes it possible for them to have been classmates.

FORMER TRUSTEE Don DeVale has confirmed plans to move from Schaumburg later this year but at the same time killed the rapidly spreading rumor that he is retiring to become a gentleman farmer.

An electronics consultant, DeVale, present deputy director of Schaumburg United Party (SUP) works in western Illinois and southern Wisconsin which prompts his planned change in home base.

Don and his wife, Bonnie, are considering the purchase of some farmland but will be limited to "modest gardening."

CONCERN HAS arisen over village officials having appropriated sufficient funds to keep Schaumburg Atty. Jack Siegel supplied with glass cleaner for his crystal ball.

By his own admission at a police and fire commission hearing last week "Mr. Siegel is clairvoyant."

SO FAR THIS season, the best method of trying to catch the Easter Bunny comes from Paul Derda, Schaumburg's director of parks and recreation.

Centex Completes Merger

Centex Corp. has completed an internal merger involving the Centex-Winston Corp., developers of the company's 1,100-acre project west of Ill. Rte. 53 in Elk Grove Village.

The Centex-Winston Corp.'s merger with the Centex Construction Co. will involve only minor changes in the company's plans for village development, according to Robert Calkins, real estate manager.

Calkins said the merger may involve introduction of a new line of home models with some options for the remainder of the property. Centex plans to begin discussions with the village within 30 days for its plans for the remaining 950 acres west of Rte. 53, he said.

Calkins noted that the merger, planned for some time, was designed to reduce duplication between the two entities.

Centex's property west of Rte. 53 is one of two major areas planned for development in the near future. The other area, also west of Rte. 53, is a 187-acre tract being developed jointly by four owners.

About 100 families currently live in the area west of Rte. 53, which is in the Schaumburg Township portion of Elk Grove Village.

Park District Expands Hours

The Hoffman Estates Park District has announced an expanded office schedule effective immediately.

The office, located in the Vogeley Administration Center, 650 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates, will now be opened from 9 a.m. until noon on Saturday. The offices are opened Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Information about the programs and activities offered by the park district can be obtained by calling 529-8600.

The meeting will be held in the school's all-purpose room, 370 Illinois Blvd. Refreshments will be served.

Industrial Parks Are Filling Up

The project is "ahead of schedule," he said.

The major factor contributing to the speedy sales in the Plum Grove park was the occupancy by Motorola, O'Neill said. He claimed another reason for the fast progress is the "land was priced right."

"The Schaumburg area is a place where things are being made," O'Neill said. Presently, he added, the area adapts itself more to "processing and manufacturing than to distribution." He compared this reality to the O'Hare Airport area, he said, which adapts itself more to distribution and warehousing companies.

One reason industrialists are moving to Schaumburg is that the labor market here is better than in areas closer to Chicago, O'Neill said. People living further north and west will travel to Schaumburg to work, but are reluctant to travel further east for employment.

LaReno generally agreed with O'Neill. The Schaumburg area is "especially receptive for office research and light manufacturing" as opposed to distribution, he said.

DANA REPORTED light manufacturing companies, machine and tool die firms and service companies dominate the sales in the Centex-Schaumburg park.

"There is very little warehousing," he added.

Sales are really picking up this year, Dana said, offering an illustration.

"We have had 18 sales since Jan. 1 of this year," he reported. That compares with 24 sales during all of 1971, he added.

Why the increased sales? Dana said some of the increase is because the "economy is picking up." Another reason, he explained, is that the Schaumburg area is a "popular, in-place to be."

in the subdivision, are Lon Mader, 508 Campbell Ln.; Ted Clarke, 464 Blair Ln.; Ernie Dykinga, 504 Newcastle Rd.; Mrs. Bobbi Lunaberg, 496 Newcastle Rd.; Larry Greenberg, 108 Fairmont Rd.; Tony Levin, 486 Oakmont Rd.; Roger Hart, 534 Oakmont Rd.; Ken MacKay, 678 Oakmont Rd.; Joe Crawford, 520 Caldwell Rd.; Mrs. Judy Reznik, 164 Meyer Rd. and Ed Cook, 171 Kingsdale Rd.

Reznik said the association will meet the third Monday of the month at Armstrong School.

Man Proves Hypnosis Can Be Painless Experience

by DOUG RAY

The people who attended the seminar were looking for help.

Some wanted to stop smoking, others sought an easy way to lose weight and most were just curious about the small man dressed in a dark suit and white tie.

He calls himself a hypnotist and during the "self-help" lecture at the American Legion Hall in Palatine last week he told the audience they could do anything they want from walking barefoot over hot coals to walking through walls.

Dwayne Roberts of Palatine is 23 years old and may be one of the youngest hypnotists around.

To prove his hypnotic ability to the group of 75 persons, he pulled a hat pin from his pocket and asked a volunteer to plunge the pin into his hand.

A MEMBER OF the audience thrust the pin between Roberts' thumb and forefinger. "Deeper" Roberts said and the man pushed until the pin was lodged about 1/4 inch into his skin.

"You see," Roberts said, holding his hand in front of the audience. "There's no pain . . . and when I remove it there will be no blood." According to the young hypnotist, he had hypnotized himself by using the code numbers "one, two, three."

And when he removed the pin, there was no blood.

He again hypnotized himself. Men in the audience lifted him between two chairs, one chair was under his head and another under his feet. And then a 200-pound man stood on his stomach.

Whether muscle control or hypnosis, the audience seemed convinced that Roberts was at least unusual.

Asked how he managed to perform the feats he said "it took six years of practice." He attended a training school in Florida, where he received an associate's degree in hypnosis.

ACCORDING TO Roberts, "hypnosis can help you get rid of unnecessary pain, arthritis . . . double your senses" . . . grow hair for the balding and even produce teeth in the mouth of the toothless. "It's all through the power of suggestion," he said.

Several of his former students attended the session and testified that hypnosis had worked for them, especially in weight control.

A Buffalo Grove man who is trying to lose excess weight wasn't quite sure whether he believed in power of hypnosis to help him reduce. "But I've tried everything else," he said, "and this just may work."

Art Work On Display At Township Library

A display of art work by a Hoffman Estates woman is currently on display at the Schaumburg Township Library.

The exhibit by Helen Moseman, consists primarily of oil paintings, with the subjects ranging from sailboats to still life.

A group of delicate wildlife, floral and still life miniatures are included in the exhibit.

The artist is also currently displaying her work at the Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove. She has had exhibits at Long Grove's Famous French Gallery and the Siegel Gallery in Chicago.

Zoning Board Ruling Eases Way For Building

School District To Build 16th School At Willow, Wolf

by RICH HONACK

School Dist. 21 will build its 16th school at the corner of Willow and Wolf roads in unincorporated Wheeling.

The long-anticipated school will come after several months of work by school district officials, developers and the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals.

The board agreed Monday to grant a rezoning variation to the Lamplighter apartment developers, whose land is adjacent to the seven-acre site being donated to Dist. 21. Without the variation the land would have been condemned and Dist. 21 could have paid over $300,000 for the site.

The board heard the evidence for the rezoning from school officials and Lamplighter developer Zigmunt Lifikowicz. At the time Lifikowicz entered the hearing as the defendant in a condemnation suit already filed by the school district.

IF THE SUIT HAD gone through, Lamplighter would have lost the seven acres and not have been within proper zoning restrictions. They would have had too many apartments on the amount of land they owned. This worried Lifikowicz, who felt that if something burned down he would be unable to rebuild.

Therefore, he sought to change his present R-5 classification to an R-6 classification. The board told him that to make such a change would take up to four months.

The board recommended that he could still rebuild if he sought the R-5 classification with the variation, and the process would be shorter.

Lifikowicz took the case to his lenders, who approved of the variation, and the necessary steps were taken leading to yesterday's hearing.

THE VILLAGES OF Wheeling and Mount Prospect also requested Lifikowicz be held to his promise that no new apartments be added to the number presently in the complex.

Lifikowicz agreed and again told the board, "The only reason I want the rezoning is to be able to rebuild in case of fire or other disaster that may strike the complex."

According to Lifikowicz the only way he can build additional apartments is to build on top of the present buildings. He said he has no plans to do this.

Dist. 21 will begin building its 16th school as soon as possible. The school board accepted the floor plans for the proposed building last Thursday night and at that time expressed hope that the hearing would be favorable.

THE SCHOOL BOARD is especially excited about receiving the site since students from the Prospect Heights area are currently being bused to Robert Frost School in Mount Prospect and James Whitcomb Riley School in Arlington Heights.

The proposed school will be a two-story building and the land not used for the school directly will be made into a recreation area. The name of the school is still unknown, but it will be that of an American author.

The school board voted last January to have students in the district select the name of this school as well as a proposed 17th school in Arlington Heights.

Summer Activities Will Be Reviewed By Park Bd.

A summer of softball, swimming, and a variety of new programs has been proposed to the Wheeling Park District board by Recreation Director David Phillips.

The proposed brochure of summer activities will be reviewed by the board at a meeting next week.

Some of the new programs suggested by Phillips include sewing classes for 9 to 12 year olds, a Little Miss Wheeling Park District contest at the Community Pool, bike hikes, and special events daily at the community pool.

Phillips, who came to the district in January, also included a number of items from past years in the plan for this summer's recreation.

Park Board members told Phillips an announcement for another trout fishing contest in the pool at the end of the summer should be included in the brochure.

SOME OF THE other events being renewed include the hobo hike, when local children dress like hobos and hike to the forest preserves for a picnic, and trips to the zoo.

New field trips will include Chicago Cubs and Chicago White Sox baseball games, a trip to a farm in Wisconsin and a trip to the River Trails Nature Center.

The free general playground program weekday mornings could be at five locations this year, Phillips proposed. He suggested the program be at Heritage Park, Mark Twain School, Carl Sandburg School, Eugene Field School and Wall Whitman School.

In addition to outdoor games the playground program will include arts and crafts projects by age group, sewing classes on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays for 9 to 12 year olds, cheerleading, and archery.

Tennis lessons at the Wheeling High School tennis courts will be at various times to accommodate both children and adults.

Phillips suggested the program include third graders and up with beginner, intermediate and advanced classes.

SOFTBALL leagues for boys and girls will be introduced for the first time this summer. The free program for fifth through eighth graders will consist of team play in various neighborhoods. There will be separate divisions for boys and for girls.

Adult softball will include a men's slowpitch league using a 16-inch ball and Liniment league softball for less serious players.

A 12-inch slowpitch softball league for high school boys and older is also planned, as are softball programs for women and high school girls.

Swimming programs suggested for this summer include learn-to-swim classes at Neptune's pool adjacent to Wheeling High School for children and adults.

Special events at the community pool will be at 2:45 p.m. each day, Phillips suggested, with prizes for winners. The events would be approximately 15 minutes long.

Evening special events proposed by the recreation director for the pool include a judo demonstration, a scuba demonstration, a Little Miss Wheeling Park District contest, and team marathons.

PLANS FOR TWO playground bike hikes and for an arts and crafts show were also suggested to the board by Phillips.

Phillips told the board at a recent meeting he hoped to get board approval soon for the program so the brochures can be printed in time for May 20 distribution.

The board will discuss the proposed program and consider changes at a committee meeting at 7 p.m. on April 6 in the park building at 222 S. Wolf Rd.

Adlai's Signature Remains...

Although Sen. Adlai Stevenson III has gone to Washington, his stamped signature as Illinois treasurer is still appearing on checks in Illinois.

Mrs. Edward Jablenski, of 912 S. Candota Ave., Mount Prospect, last week got back a canceled check she had sent to Secretary of State John W. Lewis for her son's driving permit. "It was endorsed to Adlai Stevenson with no objections by the Secretary of State's office," Mrs. Jablenski said. The check was for her son who is currently taking driving lessons at Forest View High School.

Alan J. Dixon is treasurer of Illinois and has been since Stevenson left that office.

A call by a Herald reporter to the Chicago Secretary of State's office led to a transfer downtown. At this time a clerk explained how all checks made out to the secretary of state have to be endorsed over to the treasurer for payment. But she couldn't explain why Stevenson's name rather than Dixon's was on the check.

Later, Joe Belair, a member of the communications department of the Secretary of State's office, explained the mixup.

"We used to have checks endorsed by the person in office, but now we are getting away from that," Belair said. "We are having them endorsed now by the office itself, rather than throwing away all the endorsement stamps each time a new man takes office."

The old stamps apparently had the name of Stevenson rubbed out. Except for the one inadvertently used to endorse Mrs. Jablenski's check.

3 Thefts Reported

Two thefts and a burglary were reported to Wheeling police last weekend.

Gary Grabowski of 501 Bernice Ct. reported to police that a tool box filled with tools was stolen from his garage between Friday night and Saturday morning.

David Leigh of 557 Isa Dr. reported to police that tools valued at $25 were stolen from his garage sometime between March 14 and Saturday afternoon.

Friday evening police received a report that $25 in cash was stolen from banks in a house at 383 Crescent Dr.

Lane Supports Local Control Of District Schools

(This is the first of four interviews presenting views of candidates for the Dist. 21 School Board. An interview with another candidate will appear in tomorrow's Herald.)

Jack Lane, incumbent Dist. 21 School Board candidate, believes the state should share the cost of public education, but should not interfere with local school boards in the decision-making process.

Lane, who is seeking a two-year term, supports a financing plan which calls for a standard property tax rate for education throughout the state. The amount of money raised by the tax would then be matched by state financing, according to Lane.

Also included in the plan, proposed by Illinois Rep. Bradley Glass, would be a provision for local school boards to raise the standard rate through a referendum approved by voters.

Lane is a strong supporter of the concept of local school boards retaining control of the schools in their districts.

"PEOPLE in the community are better equipped to control their destiny than people in Springfield or Washington," he said.

He believes if the state were to finance

public education exclusively, "local school boards would cease to exist."

Lane proposed a local committee composed of school officials, board members, and citizens, to study new ways to finance education.

"It is very important for local citizens to get involved," Lane said. "If they take the attitude to let someone else do it, then local school control will be wiped out."

HOWEVER, LANE also cautioned against advisory study committees. "I think they could be very useful, but strictly in that capacity — as advisory groups. They are useful in that framework."

"Sometimes they have a tendency to get carried away with their own importance and overlook the problem they want to eliminate," he added.

Lane cited the caucus endorsement committee for Dist. 21 candidates as an example. He criticized the committee for recommending only three candidates.

Lane unsuccessfully sought caucus support.

LANE DID not comment directly on the current contract negotiations with Dist. 21 teachers and said only, "we have an official negotiating team that is negotiating."

However, he did say it is his personal opinion that sometimes groups such as the Illinois Education Association (IEA) and the National Education Association (NEA) tend to "overstep their bounds."

Lane believes there is nothing wrong with "an employee making a suggestion for a policy change, as long as that is his main interest."

"But when that person starts using the citizens and students, he is in the wrong ball game. It shows that their main interest is in organizing a huge labor organization," Lane said.

LANE BELIEVES subdivision developers have "one heck of a responsibility" to the school district to provide for the education of children from the development.

He said the problem is that "you always have the children before you have the facilities to take care of them."

He said developers do not use enough foresight. "I think they should be more accurate in their prediction of how fast they are going to develop an area and how many kids will live there," he said.

He believes the Naperville land donation ordinance, "seems a little bit strong. I don't know how the court would rule on that," he added.

LANE IS opposed to busing to achieve racial balance in education. "Busing is not the way to solve the problem" of racial balance and equal educational opportunity.

According to Lane, the City of Chicago

has "created its own problems." He blamed the school board for not allocating money properly and charged that most money for education is being channeled into the white areas of the city.

As for priorities for Dist. 21, Lane listed the construction of new schools an expanded reading program and the addition of shop and craft courses into the junior high school curriculum.

LANE BELIEVES it is necessary to add shop courses because, "let's face it — some kids don't complete high school."

If shop courses are taught at the junior high school level, students will have some vocational knowledge if they do not finish high school, he said.

Lane said an improved reading program is needed because of the impact of television. "Not enough emphasis was put on reading 8 to 10 years ago and it's had its effect," he said.

Site May Be Open Next Year

Priority List For Raupp Memorial

The Buffalo Grove Park District has prepared a priority list for rejuvenation of the Raupp Memorial site, and has told the Buffalo Grove Historical Society that the memorial may be ready for the public next year, at the earliest.

Park Dir. Stan Crosland told Kenneth Felten, historical society president, that work has already begun on the preliminary steps. Dangerous tree limbs have been cut down, and fallen branches and debris from the trees have been picked up.

Crosland said the next step is to remove surface trash scattered around the site, a project he hopes volunteers will handle during school spring vacation. A neighborhood force is now being organized to get that job done, he said.

The third step, Crosland said, is to make the farmhouse secure, with locks and shutters to prevent further vandalism. He said exterior lighting is also needed. Other steps he included are the removal of unsafe outbuildings at the memorial and the addition of a gravel driveway.

CROSLAND SAID the building is well over 60 years old and will require extensive work as far as permanent renovation of the interior and exterior.

Board members said there may be other uses for the property in addition to a museum for the historical society. Board Member Joseph Settanni said the board would also have to consider the cost of renovation versus the cost of a new structure.

William Kiddle, board president, said it was estimated in 1967 that it would cost about $37,000 to make the building safe. He added that the figure is probably higher now due to rising costs.

The park district has some income — about $7,000 a year — earmarked for the memorial from a museum tax passed by the village, but Kiddle said it would take much more to make the memorial an operating museum.

Felten said the historical society is working now on projects which will raise additional funds and members are now beginning to collect artifacts for the museum.

THE RAUPP Memorial site was deeded to the park district by the village with the provision the site be utilized as a "library, museum or comparable use."

Kiddle said the district has made progress toward establishing a museum there.

The board approved a motion to have its architect and the village inspector look at the structures on the site again, to determine the approximate cost of repair by today's standards.

Rest Home Plans Are Sought

Wheeling officials have asked Roger Stricker, village director of public safety, to write to the Slovak American Charitable Association about plans for a rest home in the village.

Board members asked Stricker to inquire whether the association still plans to develop the home on property behind the Jet Set restaurant at 433 North Milwaukee Ave.

A rezoning request for a 3½-acre site adjacent to the forest preserves had been tabled by the village board in November because of legal and drainage problems.

Board members commented this week that they had not heard from the association again about whether the problems had been resolved. Some trustees questioned whether the organization had abandoned its hopes to put the rest home on the site.

The problems which stymied the rezoning proceedings include: the property has to be subdivided from the restaurant property adjoining it, a 66-foot-wide street must be dedicated to connect the property to Milwaukee Avenue and there would be difficulties with sewer service to the property.

Hillcrest Lake Group Wants To Keep Slough

Two representatives of the Hillcrest Lake Homeowners Association told the Prospect Heights Park District Board recently that the homeowners group is not interested in selling or donating the North Hillcrest Slough to the park district.

Louis Marn, 418 Hillcrest, and Leonard Busak, 502 Hillcrest, said the homeowners bought the slough for the purpose of protecting it and to insure it would be kept in its present state.

Marn, Hillcrest Lake president, said the 12 families that jointly own the slough are not interested in selling it but would be willing to listen to any park district proposal.

Park Pres. William Kuhns said the board hoped that some day the district would own both ends of the Hillcrest Slough, east of Elmhurst Road on both sides of Willow Road.

KUHNS SAID THE park district wanted to acquire the land so that it would be kept in its original state. He said the commissioners were afraid that the slough could fall into the hands of developers if the present residents moved away and people who didn't care about preserving the land moved in.

The park district is currently attempting to acquire the slough south of Willow Road. The board voted in January to get an appraisal of the south slough after some 45 area residents appeared at a board meeting to recommend the slough be preserved as a wildlife park.

Kuhns said the board also decided to have Markech, Gundelach & Associates appraise the north slough at the same time they were appraising the south slough.

"We are very much interested in acquiring the north slough, but not to make it into a swimming or boating area or to build picnic grounds on it," Kuhns said. "We just want to keep it as a place to enjoy nature."

Several board members said the park district if it owned the north slough, could get state aid in preserving the land. The board said it would draw up a proposal for the north slough to present to the homeowners association in the future.

Man Proves Hypnosis Can Be Painless Experience

by DOUG RAY

The people who attended the seminar were looking for help.

Some wanted to stop smoking, others sought an easy way to lose weight and most were just curious about the small man dressed in a dark suit and white tie.

He calls himself a hypnotist and during the "self-help" lecture at the American Legion Hall in Palatine last week he told the audience they could do anything they want from walking barefoot over hot coals to walking through walls.

Dwayne Roberts of Palatine is 23 years old and may be one of the youngest hypnotists around.

To prove his hypnotic ability to the group of 75 persons, he pulled a hat pin from his pocket and asked a volunteer to plunge the pin into his hand.

A MEMBER OF the audience thrust the pin between Roberts' thumb and forefinger. "Deeper" Roberts said and the man pushed until the pin was lodged about ¼ inch into his skin.

"You see," Roberts said, holding his hand in front of the audience. "There's no pain . . . and when I remove it there will be no blood." According to the young hypnotist, he had hypnotized himself by using the code numbers "one, two, three."

And when he removed the pin, there was no blood.

He again hypnotized himself. Men in the audience lifted him between two chairs, one chair was under his head and another under his feet. And then a 200-pound man stood on his stomach.

Whether muscle control or hypnosis, the audience seemed convinced that Roberts was at least unusual.

Asked how he managed to perform the feats he said "it took six years of practice." He attended a training school in Florida, where he received an associate's degree in hypnosis.

ACCORDING TO Roberts, "hypnosis can help you get rid of unnecessary pain, arthritis . . . double your senses" . . . grow hair for the balding and even produce teeth in the mouth of the toothless. "It's all through the power of suggestion," he said.

Several of his former students attended the session and testified that hypnosis had worked for them, especially in weight control.

A Buffalo Grove man who is trying to lose excess weight wasn't quite sure whether he believed in power of hypnosis to help him reduce. "But I've tried everything else," he said, "and this just may work."

Zoning Board Ruling Eases Way For Building

School District To Build 16th School At Willow, Wolf

By RICH HONACK

School Dist. 21 will build its 16th school at the corner of Willow and Wolf roads in unincorporated Wheeling.

The long-anticipated school will come after several months of work by school district officials, developers and the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals.

The board agreed Monday to grant a rezoning variation to the Lamplighter apartment developers, whose land is adjacent to the seven-acre site being donated to Dist. 21. Without the variation the land would have been condemned and Dist. 21 could have paid over $300,000 for the site.

The board heard the evidence for the rezoning from school officials and Lamplighter developer Zigmunt Lifkowitz. At the time Lifkowitz entered the hearing as the defendant in a condemnation suit already filed by the school district.

IF THE SUIT HAD gone through, Lamplighter would have lost the seven acres and not have been within proper zoning restrictions. They would have had too many apartments on the amount of land they owned. This worried Lifkowitz, who felt that if something burned down he would be unable to rebuild.

Therefore, he sought to change his present R-5 classification to an R-6 classification. The board told him that to make such a change would take up to four months.

The board recommended that he could still rebuild if he sought the R-5 classification with the variation, and the process would be shorter.

Lifkowitz took the case to his lenders, who approved of the variation, and the necessary steps were taken leading to yesterday's hearing.

THE VILLAGES OF Wheeling and Mount Prospect also requested Lifkowitz be held to his promise that no new apartments be added to the number presently in the complex.

Lifkowitz agreed and again told the board, "The only reason I want the rezoning is to be able to rebuild in case of fire or other disaster that may strike the complex."

According to Lifkowitz the only way he can build additional apartments is to build on top of the present buildings. He said he has no plans to do this.

Dist. 21 will begin building its 16th school as soon as possible. The school board accepted the floor plans for the proposed building last Thursday night and at that time expressed hope that the hearing would be favorable.

THE SCHOOL BOARD is especially excited about receiving the site since students from the Prospect Heights area are currently being bused to Robert Frost School in Mount Prospect and James Whitcomb Riley School in Arlington Heights.

The proposed school will be a two-story building and the land not used for the school directly will be made into a recreation area. The name of the school is still unknown, but it will be that of an American author.

The school board voted last January to have students in the district select the name of this school as well as a proposed 17th school in Arlington Heights.

Nothing To Do? Check Park District Activities

If you say there is nothing to do in Buffalo Grove in the spring, you're just not trying.

The Buffalo Grove Park District has announced its spring program, which begins April 10 and will operate until June 3. Included in the list of activities are acrobatics and trampoline, yoga, guitar, ballet, judo, basketball, softball, dancing, baton and arts and crafts, in addition to teen recreation nights.

Registration for all programs will be from 9 a.m. to noon April 3-7, and 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. April 8. Insurance will be available for $1 to cover children and adults while participating in park programs for the year.

Preregistration for the fall session of preschool children will be from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. April 15 at Emmerich Park. Children must be four years old by Dec. 1, 1972, and proof of birth is required. Sessions will be 9:15 a.m. to 11:15 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m., with two-day and three-day programs.

ONE HOUR acrobatics and trampoline classes will be on Thursdays at Joyce Kilmer School. Beginners will meet at 6:30 p.m., intermediates at 7:30 p.m. and advanced at 8:30 p.m. Fee is $6. The class is open to children from grades 1-12.

Arts and crafts for grades 1-3 will be at Willow Grove School on Mondays, Booth Tarkington School on Tuesdays and Louisa May Alcott School on Thursdays. All sessions will begin at 3:45 p.m. Fee is $5.

Ballet will be at Kingswood Church on Wednesdays. Intermediates will meet at 11 a.m., beginners at 11 a.m. and 12:30 p.m., and advanced at 1:30 p.m. Classes at Emmerich Park will be on Wednesdays. Beginners will meet at 4 p.m., intermediates (I) at 6 p.m. and advanced at 7:30 p.m. Tuesdays at Emmerich Park intermediates (II) will start at 5:15 p.m. Fee is $8, and participants must be at least four years old.

Baton beginners who have had some previous experience will meet Tuesdays at 4 p.m. at Emmerich Park. Intermediates will be at Kilmer School at 5:15 p.m. Tuesday and junior and senior corps will meet from 7-9 p.m. Tuesday at the Wheeling High School fieldhouse. Tiny tot beginners will be at 5 p.m. Wednesdays at Kilmer School, with beginners eight years and older at 5:45 p.m. Fee is $6.

Adlai's Signature Remains...

Although Sen. Adlai Stevenson III has gone to Washington, his stamped signature as Illinois treasurer is still appearing on checks in Illinois.

Mrs. Edward Jablenski, of 912 S. Candota Ave., Mount Prospect, last week got back a canceled check she had sent to Secretary of State John W. Lewis for her son's driving permit. "It was endorsed to Adlai Stevenson with no objections by the Secretary of State's office," Mrs. Jablenski said. The check was for her son who is currently taking driving lessons at Forest View High School.

Alan J. Dixon is treasurer of Illinois and has been since Stevenson left that office.

A call by a Herald reporter to the Chicago Secretary of State's office led to a transfer downstate. At this time a clerk explained how all checks made out to the secretary of state have to be endorsed over to the treasurer for payment. But she couldn't explain why Stevenson's name rather than Dixon's was on the check.

Later, Joe Belair, a member of the communications department of the Secretary of State's office, explained the mixup.

"We used to have checks endorsed by the person in office, but now we are getting away from that," Belair said. "We are having them endorsed now by the office itself, rather than throwing away all the endorsement stamps each time a new man takes office."

The old stamps apparently had the name of Stevenson rubbed out. Except for the one inadvertently used to endorse Mrs. Jablenski's check.

King Hussein of Jordan will confer with President Nixon today in a private visit to the White House.

The State

State Rep. Harold Washington, D-Chicago, was sentenced by U.S. District Court Judge Joseph Sam Perry to serve "40 days of contemplation" in federal prison for failing to file income tax returns.

Roving pickets closed at least nine Southern Illinois coal mines in what was termed an unauthorized strike by the Illinois United Mine Workers Union.

Cook County State's Atty. Edward Hanrahan and attorneys for others indicted with him on charges of obstructing justice in a case involving a 1969 raid on a Black Panther headquarters, renewed their attempts to stop the charges.

The War

For the first time in nearly seven years, the number of U.S. servicemen in South Vietnam fell below the 100,000 level. There were 97,700 GIs in Vietnam. In the war, Communist forces attacked U.S. bases in Cambodia in a heavy barrage.

Lane Supports Local Control Of District Schools

(This is the first of four interviews presenting views of candidates for the Dist. 21 School Board. An interview with another candidate will appear in tomorrow's Herald.)

Jack Lane, incumbent Dist. 21 School Board candidate, believes the state should share the cost of public education, but should not interfere with local school boards in the decision-making process.

Lane, who is seeking a two-year term, supports a financing plan which calls for a standard property tax rate for education throughout the state. The amount of money raised by the tax would then be matched by state financing, according to Lane.

Also included in the plan, proposed by Illinois Rep. Bradley Glass, would be a provision for local school boards to raise the standard rate through a referendum approved by voters.

Lane is a strong supporter of the concept of local school boards retaining control of the schools in their districts.

Jack Lane

"PEOPLE IN the community are better equipped to control their destiny than people in Springfield or Washington," he said.

He believes if the state were to finance

public education exclusively, "local school boards would cease to exist."

Lane proposed a local committee composed of school officials, board members, and citizens, to study new ways to finance education.

"It is very important for local citizens to get involved," Lane said. "If they take the attitude to let someone else do it, then local school control will be wiped out."

HOWEVER, LANE also cautioned against advisory study committees. "I think they could be very useful, but strictly in that capacity — as advisory groups. They are useful in that framework."

"Sometimes they have a tendency to get carried away with their own importance and overlook the problem they want to eliminate," he added.

Lane cited the caucus endorsement committee for Dist. 21 candidates as an example. He criticized the committee for recommending only three candidates.

Lane unsuccessfully sought caucus support.

LANE DID not comment directly on the current contract negotiations with Dist. 21 teachers and said only, "we have an official negotiating team that is negotiating."

However, he did say it is his personal opinion that sometimes groups such as the Illinois Education Association (IEA) and the National Education Association (NEA) tend to "overstep their bounds."

Lane believes there is nothing wrong with "an employee making a suggestion for a policy change, as long as that is his main interest."

"But when that person starts using the citizens and students, he is in the wrong ball game. It shows that their main interest is in organizing a huge labor organization," Lane said.

LANE BELIEVES subdivision developers have "one heck of a responsibility" to the school district to provide for the education of children from the development.

He said the problem is that "you always have the children before you have the facilities to take care of them."

He said developers do not use enough foresight. "I think they should be more accurate in their prediction of how fast they are going to develop an area and how many kids will live there," he said.

He believes the Naperville land donation ordinance, "seems a little bit strong. I don't know how the court would rule on that," he added.

LANE IS opposed to busing to achieve racial balance in education. "Busing is not the way to solve the problem" of racial balance and equal educational opportunity.

According to Lane, the City of Chicago

has "created its own problems." He blamed the school board for not allocating money properly and charged that most money for education is being channeled into the white areas of the city.

As for priorities for Dist. 21, Lane listed the construction of new schools and an expanded reading program and the addition of shop and craft courses into the junior high school curriculum.

LANE BELIEVES it is necessary to add shop courses because, "let's face it — some kids don't complete high school."

If shop courses are taught at the junior high school level, students will have some vocational knowledge if they do not finish high school, he said.

Lane said an improved reading program is needed because of the impact of television. "Not enough emphasis was put on reading 8 to 10 years ago and it's had its effect," he said.

Site May Be Open Next Year

Priority List For Raupp Memorial

The Buffalo Grove Park District has prepared a priority list for rejuvenation of the Raupp Memorial site, and has told the Buffalo Grove Historical Society that the memorial may be ready for the public next year, at the earliest.

Park Dir. Stan Crosland told Kenneth Felten, historical society president, that work has already begun on the preliminary steps. Dangerous tree limbs have been cut down, and fallen branches and debris from the trees have been picked up.

Crosland said the next step is to remove surface trash scattered around the site, a project he hopes volunteers will handle during school spring vacation. A neighborhood force is now being organized to get that job done, he said.

The third step, Crosland said, is to make the farmhouse secure, with locks and shutters to prevent further vandalism. He said exterior lighting is also needed. Other steps he included are the removal of unsafe outbuildings at the memorial and the addition of a gravel driveway.

CROS LAND SAID the building is well over 60 years old and will require extensive work as far as permanent renovation of the interior and exterior.

Board members said there may be other uses for the property in addition to a museum for the historical society. Board Member Joseph Settanni said the board would also have to consider the cost of renovation versus the cost of a new structure.

William Kiddle, board president, said it was estimated in 1967 that it would cost about $37,000 to make the building safe. He added that the figure is probably higher now due to rising costs.

The park district has some income — about $7,000 a year — earmarked for the memorial from a museum tax passed by the village, but Kiddle said it would take much more to make the memorial an operating museum.

Felten said the historical society is working now on projects which will raise additional funds and members are now beginning to collect artifacts for the museum.

THE RAUPP Memorial site was decided to the park district by the village with the provision the site be utilized as a "library, museum or comparable use."

Kiddle said the district has made progress toward establishing a museum there.

The board approved a motion to have its architect and the village inspector look at the structures on the site again, to determine the approximate cost of repair by today's standards.

Rest Home Plans Are Sought

Wheeling officials have asked Roger Stricker, village director of public safety, to write to the Slovak American Charitable Association about plans for a rest home in the village.

Board members asked Stricker to inquire whether the association still plans to develop the home on property behind the Jet Set restaurant at 433 North Milwaukee Ave.

A rezoning request for a 3½-acre site adjacent to the forest preserves had been tabled by the village board in November because of legal and drainage problems.

Board members commented this week

that they had not heard from the association again about whether the problems had been resolved. Some trustees questioned whether the organization had abandoned its hopes to put the rest home on the site.

The problems which stymied the rezoning proceedings include: the property has to be subdivided from the restaurant property adjoining it, a 66-foot-wide street must be dedicated to connect the property to Milwaukee Avenue and there would be difficulties with sewer service to the property.

Hillcrest Lake Group Wants To Keep Slough

Two representatives of the Hillcrest Lake Homeowners Association told the Prospect Heights Park District Board recently that the homeowners group is not interested in selling or donating the North Hillcrest Slough to the park district.

Louis Marn, 418 Hillcrest, and Leonard Basak, 502 Hillcrest, said the homeowners bought the slough for the purpose of protecting it and to insure it would be kept in its present state.

Marn, Hillcrest Lake president, said the 12 families that jointly own the slough are not interested in selling it but would be willing to listen to any park district proposal.

Park Pres. William Kuhns said the board hoped that some day the district would own both ends of the Hillcrest Slough, east of Elmhurst Road on both sides of Willow Road.

KUHNS SAID the park district wanted to acquire the land so that it would be kept in its original state. He said the commissioners were afraid that the slough could fall into the hands of developers if the present residents moved away and people who didn't care about preserving the land moved in.

The park district is currently attempting to acquire the slough south of Willow Road. The board voted in January to get an appraisal of the south slough after some 45 area residents appeared at a board meeting to recommend the slough be preserved as a wildlife park.

Kuhns said the board also decided to have Markech, Gundelach & Associates appraise the north slough at the same time they were appraising the south slough.

"We are very much interested in acquiring the north slough, but not to make it into a swimming or boating area or to build picnic grounds on it," Kuhns said. "We just want to keep it as a place to enjoy nature."

Several board members said the park district if it owned the north slough, could get state aid in preserving the land. The board said it would draw up a proposal for the north slough to present to the homeowners association in the future.

Man Proves Hypnosis Can Be Painless Experience

by DOUG RAY

The people who attended the seminar were looking for help.

Some wanted to stop smoking, others sought an easy way to lose weight and most were just curious about the small man dressed in a dark suit and white tie.

He calls himself a hypnotist and during the "self-help" lecture at the American Legion Hall in Palatine last week he told the audience they could do anything they want from walking barefoot over hot coals to walking through walls.

Dwayne Roberts of Palatine is 23 years old and may be one of the youngest hypnotists around.

To prove his hypnotic ability to the group of 75 persons, he pulled a hat pin from his pocket and asked a volunteer to plunge the pin into his hand.

A MEMBER OF the audience thrust the pin between Roberts' thumb and forefinger. "Deeper" Roberts said and the man pushed until the pin was lodged about ¼ inch into his skin.

"You see," Roberts said, holding his hand in front of the audience. "There's no pain . . . and when I remove it there will be no blood." According to the young hypnotist, he had hypnotized himself by using the code numbers "one, two, three."

And when he removed the pin, there was no blood.

He again hypnotized himself. Men in the audience lifted him between two chairs, one chair was under his head and another under his feet. And then a 200-pound man stood on his stomach.

Whether muscle control or hypnosis, the audience seemed convinced that Roberts was at least unusual.

Asked how he managed to perform the feats he said "it took six years of practice." He attended a training school in Florida, where he received an associate's degree in hypnosis.

ACCORDING TO Roberts, "hypnosis can help you get rid of unnecessary pain, arthritis . . . double your senses" . . . grow hair for the balding and even produce teeth in the mouth of the toothless. "It's all through the power of suggestion," he said.

Several of his former students attended the session and testified that hypnosis had worked for them, especially in weight control.

A Buffalo Grove man who is trying to lose excess weight wasn't quite sure whether he believed in power of hypnosis to help him reduce. "But I've tried everything else," he said, "and this just may work."

'Not Necessarily Downtown'

Library Board Shooting For New Site By Summer

Palatine Public Library officials hope to find a long-sought-after site for a new facility by this summer.

Library Board Pres. Francis A. Regan said last night he expects a 1½-to-2-acre location to be obtained within three to four months.

Regan said at a meeting concerning the library called by the Palatine chapter of the League of Women Voters that the board is considering six sites "not necessarily in the downtown area."

He indicated that the board would be willing to spend between $75,000 and $200,000 to obtain land.

EARLIER THIS year, the board took an option on a parcel near St. Theresa School believed to be more than 1½ acres. However, the real estate agent recently informed the board that the measurement was inaccurate and the site is actually less than thought. Regan said two acres would be preferable, but a 1½-acre site would be sufficient.

He also indicated that the board hopes to be able to purchase land with money set aside in its budget for the past three years, including $8,112 in this year's proposed budget.

This would put the library past the hurdle of a referendum to raise funds for land acquisition.

The library board was defeated in both of its referendum attempts in the last four years. The first, in 1968, involved raising money for both a site and building, and the second, in 1969, for only a site.

THE PALATINE Public Library was moved to its present facility at 149 N. Brockway St. in 1958, and the library board has acknowledged for several years that more space is needed.

The fact was further emphasized in a comparison of the library's facilities to a list of suggested standards set last year by the Illinois Library Association.

The Palatine library should have more than 13,000 square feet, based on the ILA standards for a facility serving a community with a population of 26,000. The library, however, has 5,000 square feet, including the children's department in the basement.

According to its size, the library should provide 130 seats; however, it has 68 seats, including 40 in the basement area.

The ILA standards call for 3.5 books per person served by the library, which is considered a high standard. The Palatine library has 1.7 books per person served, or 46,000 books.

THE LIBRARY'S proposed budget for next year totals $208,675. Sixty-one per cent of that figure would go toward staff salaries.

The library receives 3.1 per cent of local property taxes. It ranks below all other recipients of local funds except the Metropolitan Sanitary District of Greater Chicago, which also receives 3.1 per cent, and Harper College, which receives 2.8 per cent.

The library board indicated it has not had a chance to discuss proposals for re-vamping downtown Palatine, which were made public last week. The board indicated implementation of any downtown changes may take much longer than the library would be willing to wait for expanded facilities.

PULLING THINGS ALONG was a two-fold project for deal with both a stubborn horse and cold weather refusing to give way to spring temperatures.

Palatine-Quentin Will Get Four-Way Stop Signs

Four-way stop signs will be installed at Palatine and Quentin roads by the Cook County Department of Highways within the next two to three weeks.

Traffic studies recently conducted by the county office in the area have shown a four-way stop was warranted to handle the traffic flow. Currently there is only a stop for Quentin Road traffic.

During an initial 30-day period after the signs are installed, red flashers will be placed on the stop signs and amber flashers on the "stop ahead" signs. They will be removed after the 30 days.

According to Richard Kanak of the traffic controls division, the flashers are useful in aiding drivers to adjust to the new traffic control.

Kanak said several studies of traffic at that intersection had been done but construction in the area had prevented an accurate count from being taken.

Standards for the types of signals necessary to accommodate traffic flow are set by the state.

Absentee School Board Ballots To Be Available

Absentee ballots for the April 8 school election in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Elementary Dist. 15 will be available tomorrow.

Application for an absentee ballot can be made at the E. S. Castor Administration Building, 505 S. Quentin Rd., Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

A public notary will be at the administration building to notarize the application. After the application has been notarized applicants will receive a ballot which they can fill out or take with them and mail in later.

Any person qualified to vote in person at a school election may vote by absentee ballot if they are physically incapacitated, an appointed judge of election in a precinct other than the precinct in which they reside, observing a religious holiday that causes them to be unable to be present at the polls or if they expect to be absent from the county during the time the polls are open.

April 8 is the last day applications for an absentee ballot by mail can be made but personal application can be made until April 5.

The issue on the ballot will be the election of two school board members to three-year terms. Incumbents Joel Meyer of Rolling Meadows and Otto Eilering of Palatine are both seeking reelection. Also seeking a school board seat is Werner Kronau of Rolling Meadows.

Blaze Damage Estimate $52,000

Damage was estimated at $52,000 Monday to a barn near the Palatine-Arlington Heights boundary which was destroyed by fire Saturday evening.

Arlington Heights Fire Chief Jack Benson assessed the damage on the barn, owned by Carl Reinke of Dundee. A house near the barn was not damaged, Benson said.

He said the cause of the fire, which burned for more than four hours, is undetermined. Some insulation material stored in the barn was destroyed, and possibly also a truck.

The barn, west of Illinois Rte. 53 and north of Palatine Road, is currently in Arlington Heights but will be annexed to the Village of Palatine pending court action.

The Palatine Fire Department assisted the Arlington Heights squad in fighting the fire.

Benson said insurance on the property is $55,000.

Brown On Noise Abatement Panel

Palatine Trustee Clayton Brown is among several north and northwest suburban residents and elected officials recently named to a federal commission formed to study aircraft noise abatement for the Chicago metropolitan area.

Brown, who also serves as president of Pollution and Environmental Problems (PEP), an area anti-pollution group, was named to the committee on airport construction and expansion, one of four subcommittees of the original commission.

Rep. Harold R. Collier, R-10th, was a main supporter of legislation recently passed which allows the establishment of national standards for sound levels, particularly as they relate to aircraft. Such standards, when they are set, will be enforced by the Environmental Protection Agency.

The area commission, called the Suburban Aircraft Noise Abatement Coordinating Committee, will conduct a local study of noise pollution problems in residential areas near O'Hare Airport. Their findings may be used as a basis for establishing the national standards of noise.

A SECOND PEP representative on the committee is Arthur Kingsnorth, an engineer who specializes in sound and vibrations. His Park Ridge firm, Martek, Inc. has done much work with noise levels and pollution. Kingsnorth will serve on the standards and compliance committee.

The four subcommittees of the local commission were formed at a meeting March 8. Committee members now are arranging study and working sessions before the commission can progress.

Besides Brown, those on the airport construction committee are Rep. Collier who serves as chairman, Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-13th, Rep. John Erlenborn, R-12th, Cook County Board Commissioner Floyd Fuller, Terrence Deka, Des Plaines Alderman, Al Abrams, 2nd Bensenville Mayor John Varble.

Serving on the legislation committee are Sen. Howard R. Mohr, R-Forest Park, chairman; Rep. Edward E. Bluthardt, R-Schiller Park; Sen. John W. Carroll, R-Park Ridge; Rep. Crane; Sen.

Jack T. Knuepher, R-Elmhurst; Rep. James Philip, R-Elmhurst; Rep. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect; Rep. Gene L. Hoffman, R-Elmhurst; Rep. Erlenborn and Berni Zoden.

ON THE STANDARDS and compliance committee are Rep. Bluthardt as chairman, Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel, Kingsnorth, Richard Blomberg, Harold Koehler, John Dalbis and John Phillips.

Serving on the public information committee are chairman George J. Franks of Wood Dale who has also served as chairman of the existing O'Hare Area Noise Abatement Council, Clare J. Carroll, Al Kiest, Robert Schwarz, Robert Paddock and Des Plaines Alderman Robert D. Michaels.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

An all-white jury found two black convicts known as the "Soledad Brothers" innocent of murder charges in a case linked to that of Angela Davis.

The Supreme Court rejected the broadcasting industry's appeal of the 1969 law barring cigarette commercials from radio and television.

Myles Ambrose, special assistant attorney general for drug abuse law enforcement, said the Justice Department will ask for $2.3 million to finance a special program in 33 cities and regional areas to combat heroin traffic.

General Motors' only Chevrolet Vega Assembly line in Lordstown, Ohio, went back into production after a three-week strike by the United Auto Workers over working conditions.

A federal judge dismissed two charges against one of the Harrisburg Seven defendants but denied a defense request to throw out the entire case against the anti-war activists.

Sen. Edward Gurney, R-Fla., said it was now evident that one of Dita Beard's co-workers, trying to "get her," wrote the memorandum linking a settlement of a mammoth International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. antitrust case with a pledge to underwrite the Republican National Convention.

King Hussein of Jordan will confer with President Nixon today in a private visit to the White House.

The State

Robins Have Frostbite

Parks Hoping To Be 'Springmakers'

by DOUG RAY

Even though the first robin of spring has been grounded by frostbite, those people who provide suburbanites with springtime activities are taking off on schedule.

Park districts are unlimbering their mowers, garbage cans, and tennis nets while officials are rounding up baskets of eggs for the yearly Easter egg hunt. Golf lessons are also being set up.

"Right now we're sharpening the lawn mowers and generally getting ready," said Angelo Capulli of the Arlington Heights Park District. "Within two weeks the tennis nets are going up," he said.

The Old Orchard Country Club golf course in Mount Prospect is being readied for traffic April 1. Greenskeepers are at work replacing winter-scarred turf and a water system is being installed along with sand traps.

THE PALATINE Hills golf course, run by the Palatine Park District, is scheduled to open during the first weeks of April but an exact date has not been set.

Amlings in Rolling Meadows has received huge shipments of spring bulbs and flowers in expectation of next month's planting season. "Shrubs will be in here in a week or two," said an Amlings worker, "as well as turfbuilder and grass seed."

Carpet and drapery cleaners are soliciting orders for spring cleaning. According to one local cleaner, "many people are getting their rugs and other things cleaned to avoid the spring rush."

The Cook County Forest Preserve Northwest District has opened its doors to early-bird picnickers and permits for assigned pavilion areas are now being taken at the downtown headquarters, 118 N. Clark St.

ACCORDING TO a forest preserve spokesman, 2,903 group permits have been issued for this spring and summer and "almost every Sunday has been taken up." The forest preserve expects more than 8,000 picnic permits to be issued this year.

The Chick Evans Forest Preserve Golf Course in Morton Grove is scheduled to open about April 15.

Set Kindergarten Registration For April 24 And 26

Kindergarten registration in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 for children who will be 5 years old on or before Dec. 1, 1972 will be held April 24 and 26.

Registration on April 24 will be at Cardinal Drive, Central Road, Jonas Salk, Kimball Hill and Willow Bend schools in Rolling Meadows and Pleasant Hill, Stuart Paddock and Gray M. Sanborn schools in Palatine.

Registration on April 26 will be at Jane Addams, Hunting Ridge, Lake Louise, Virginia Lake, Winston Churchill, Marion Jordan and Lincoln schools in Palatine.

Birth certificates must be presented at the time of registration if class assignments are to be made. Persons without birth certificates may obtain one by contacting the Bureau of Vital Statistics, State House, in the capital city of the state where the child was born.

Fiedler To Conduct Hersey High Band

Arthur Fiedler, director of the Boston Pops Symphony Orchestra, will conduct the Hersey High School Band in two concerts at 8 p.m. April 3 and 4 at the high school, 1900 E. Thomas Rd., Arlington Heights.

Tickets are on sale at the school at $3 each.

3rd Meeting Set With Mediators At Honeywell

A meeting with federal mediators is scheduled this morning in an attempt to resolve the three-week strike by the electrical union at the Honeywell plant in Arlington Heights.

No meetings were held last week to resolve the strike by 550 members of the United Electrical Union Local 1114 which has halted production at the plant, 1500 Dundee Rd.

The union voted to reject a new two-year contract stating that fringe benefits were inadequate. Honeywell officials said the contract offers the maximum wage hike allowed under federal wage guidelines and major fringe benefit incentives.

Honeywell management and the union already have met twice with federal mediators without settlement.

BARGAIN HUNTERS by the dozens stalked the "prizes" for sale at the Rolling Meadows High School flea market last weekend. The rummage sale was sponsored by the Mustang Boosters Club to raise money for the school band. With bargains up for grabs, how could Linda Eilert of Palatine have passed up the chance to buy that original one of a kind (maybe) painting?

Man Proves Hypnosis Can Be Painless Experience

by DOUG RAY

The people who attended the seminar were looking for help.

Some wanted to stop smoking, others sought an easy way to lose weight and most were just curious about the small man dressed in a dark suit and white tie.

He calls himself a hypnotist and during the "self-help" lecture at the American Legion Hall in Palatine last week he told the audience they could do anything they want from walking barefoot over hot coals to walking through walls.

Dwayne Roberts of Palatine is 23 years old and may be one of the youngest hypnotists around.

To prove his hypnotic ability to the group of 75 persons, he pulled a hat pin from his pocket and asked a volunteer to plunge the pin into his hand.

A MEMBER OF the audience thrust the pin between Roberts' thumb and forefinger. "Deeper," Roberts said and the man pushed until the pin was lodged about 1/4 inch into his skin.

"You see," Roberts said, holding his hand in front of the audience. "There's no pain . . . and when I remove it there will be no blood." According to the young hypnotist, he had hypnotized himself by using the code numbers "one, two, three."

And when he removed the pin, there was no blood.

He again hypnotized himself. Men in the audience lifted him between two chairs, one chair was under his head and another under his feet. And then a 200-pound man stood on his stomach.

Whether muscle control or hypnosis, the audience seemed convinced that Roberts was at least unusual.

Asked how he managed to perform the feats he said "it took six years of practice." He attended a training school in Florida, where he received an associate's degree in hypnosis.

ACCORDING TO Roberts, "hypnosis can help you get rid of unnecessary pain, arthritis . . . double your senses" . . . grow hair for the balding and even pro-

Adlai's Signature Remains...

Although Sen. Adlai Stevenson III has gone to Washington, his stamped signature as Illinois treasurer is still appearing on checks in Illinois.

Mrs. Edward Jablenski, of 912 S. Candota Ave., Mount Prospect, last week got back a canceled check she had sent to Secretary of State John W. Lewis for her son's driving permit. "It was endorsed to Adlai Stevenson with no objections by the Secretary of State's office," Mrs. Jablenski said. The check was for her son who is currently taking driving lessons at Forest View High School.

Alan J. Dixon is treasurer of Illinois and has been since Stevenson left that office.

A call by a Herald reporter to the Chicago Secretary of State's office led to a transfer downstate. At this time a clerk explained how all checks made out to the secretary of state have to be endorsed over to the treasurer for payment. But she couldn't explain why Stevenson's name rather than Dixon's was on the check.

Later, Joe Belair, a member of the communications department of the Secretary of State's office, explained the mixup.

"We used to have checks endorsed by the person in office, but now we are getting away from that," Belair said. "We are having them endorsed now by the office itself, rather than throwing away all the endorsement stamps each time a new man takes office."

The old stamps apparently had the name of Stevenson rubbed out. Except for the one inadvertently used to endorse Mrs. Jablenski's check.

$5,000 Taken In Burglary

At least $5,000 was stolen from the Beef 'n' Barrel Restaurant, 1302 E. Higgins Rd., Elk Grove Township, when burglars opened the safe with a torch sometime after closing hours Sunday night or Monday morning.

An investigator from the Cook County Sheriff's police yesterday described the burglary as done by professionals, saying "they knew exactly where to use" the torch. "The job they did on the safe was probably one of the better jobs I've seen in the area," said the investigator.

The $5,000 loss estimate was a "bare minimum," said the spokesman, who added the actual loss could be much higher, depending on Sunday's receipts. Stored in the bank were receipts from the day, plus the "banks" to supply cash registers for Monday's operations. While the exact total will not be known until later this week, the investigator said it could be more than $10,000.

The burglary was discovered by Jack Manolas, day manager, when he reported to work Monday morning. He said the rear door to the restaurant had been pried open. Nothing else had been disturbed.

Obituaries

Dena Warren

Funeral services for Mrs. Dena M. Warren, nee Minch, of 58 N. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine, will be held at 1:30 p.m. today in J. L. Poole Funeral Home, 25 W. Palatine Rd., Palatine.

Officiating will be the Rev. Albert C. Chamberlin of First United Methodist Church, Palatine. Burial will be in Ridgewood Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Mrs. Warren, a long-time resident of Palatine, died suddenly Friday in Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Irene Wolthausen of Wadsworth, Ill., and Mrs. June Stokes of Florida; seven grandchildren; one great-grandchild; sister, Mrs. Louise Ardagh and a brother, Fred Minch.

New City Hall To Be Ready This Weekend

Although a substantial number of "finishing touches" need to be completed, the new addition to the Rolling Meadows City Hall will be ready for partial occupancy this weekend.

The first tenants of the $330,000 wing will be the city's building and zoning department, which will move 100 feet down the hall from the old building office to larger quarters on the second floor of the addition.

Work will be finished around the city hall staff in preparation for a Memorial Day dedication ceremony, which will feature a visit from U.S. Rep. Phil Crane (R-Ill.), who is running for reelection in the realigned 12th District.

The work yet to be done to complete 10-months work on the addition is primarily superficial, according to Mayor Roland Meyer, with the exception of the third floor.

The building is being completed from the basement up, as it turns out, because the city hasn't decided how it's going to use the third floor space.

While final work is being done on the lower levels, with telephones and lighting ready for use and mainly decorating to be done, the third floor has not yet been partitioned into rooms and only temporary utilities have been installed.

THE MAIN CITY hall office will not be relocated, nor will the mayor's and city manager's second floor offices. The sanitation's office will be moved to larger quarters in the old building department office.

Much of the new space will be given over to the police department or used for meeting rooms for community groups.

The basement level will be dominated by a police department pistol range and photo laboratory.

Most of the first floor space is taken up by a 6-car garage for city vehicles, and exercise, interrogation and identification rooms for the police.

The large rooms on the second floor will house the building department, and serve as meeting rooms for organizations like the Rolling Meadows Golden Years Club, the Jaycees and Jayceettes.

Outside the addition, a large area north of the building will be paved for parking.

Meyer said the final cost of the building will be somewhat less than the $330,000 budgeted for expansion, but outdoor paving is expected to drive the cost past that. When the project was conceived two years ago, the city hoped to build the addition for $290,000, but inflation and modifications have driven the cost upward.

This is the second major expansion of city hall in four years. In 1968, the original one-level structure was expanded to two floors.

Set Kindergarten Registration For April 24 And 26

Kindergarten registration in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 for children who will be 5 years old on or before Dec. 1, 1972 will be held April 24 and 26.

Registration on April 24 will be at Cardinal Drive, Central Road, Jonas Salk, Kimball Hill and Willow Bend schools in Rolling Meadows and Pleasant Hill, Stuart Paddock and Gray M. Sanborn schools in Palatine.

Registration on April 26 will be at Jane Addams, Hunting Ridge, Lake Louise, Virginia Lake, Winston Churchill, Marion Jordan and Lincoln schools in Palatine.

Birth certificates must be presented at the time of registration if class assignments are to be made. Persons without birth certificates may obtain one by contacting the Bureau of Vital Statistics, State House, in the capital city of the state where the child was born.

Elk Grove Township

Candidates—Auditors To Decide On New Budget

The Elk Grove Township Board of Auditors will meet today to approve a budget for the 1972-73 fiscal year which shows less than a 10 per cent increase in expenses in four main funds.

The proposed budget, scheduled for approval at 8 p.m. at the township hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, calls for expenditures of $183,212 in the town fund, used to pay salaries and maintain the township offices, $80,450 in the general assistance fund which provides emergency welfare payments for needy township residents, $169,000 in the road and bridge fund and $1,125 in the sewer fund.

The largest increase in any fund is in the general assistance fund, which during the past year totaled $56,800. The increase, according to Auditor Bernard Lee, is planned to provide for the increased demand that has been placed on the welfare fund this year.

The township provides temporary welfare payments for persons until they can be placed on the Cook County welfare rolls.

THE TOWN FUND is being increased $17,000 from $166,012 this year. The road and bridge fund decreased from $176,000 this year. That fund is used to maintain roads in unincorporated areas.

Lee said the budget will not mean an increase in real estate property taxes for the township because the expected increase in the area's assessed value will make up the increased costs.

The budget does not call for issuance of any tax anticipation warrants. These would allow the township to borrow money which will not be collected until the following spring.

The annual town meeting will be held Tuesday, April 11, at the township hall. The meeting will allow residents of the township to ask questions about the budget. Until a recent change in the law, the budget was officially adopted at the town meeting.

IF YOUR PLEASURE was a plastic "boater," like those thousand and one other things, you could have found it worn by Mrs. Bruce Woody of Rolling Meadows (left) last weekend at the Rolling Meadows Mustang Boosters and Mrs. Dennis Walters of Elk Grove Village, or a flea market. The club held the rummage sale to raise windproof lighter or a "$1 each" surprise package, or a money for the school band.

Absentee Ballots To Be Available

Absentee ballots for the April 8 school election in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Elementary Dist. 15 will be available tomorrow.

Application for an absentee ballot can be made at the E. S. Castor Administration Building, 505 S. Quentin Rd., Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

A public notary will be at the administration building to notarize the application. After the application has been notarized applicants will receive a ballot which they can fill out or take with them and mail in later.

Any person qualified to vote in person at a school election may vote by absentee ballot if they are physically incapacitated, an appointed judge of election in a precinct other than the precinct in which they reside, observing a religious holiday that causes them to be unable to be present at the polls or if they expect to be absent from the county during the time the polls are open.

April 3 is the last day applications for an absentee ballot by mail can be made but personal application can be made until April 5.

The issue on the ballot will be the election of two school board members to three-year terms. Incumbents Joel Meyer of Rolling Meadows and Otto Eilerling of Palatine are both seeking reelection. Also seeking a school board seat is Werner Kronau of Rolling Meadows.

Closed-Door Budget Meetings Begin

The first of several closed-door sessions to smooth out the 1972-73 Rolling Meadows city budget was held Friday night.

The work sessions, Friday's and one April 4, are closed because the majority of the work being done now deals with personnel and salary requests, according to Mayor Roland Meyer.

Under state law, the city council need not open personnel meetings to the public.

Meyer said the topics discussed Friday were salary increases, requests for increased personnel, and fire district personnel.

The first public hearing on the budget is scheduled for April 11, with adoption of the new budget planned for April 25. The new budget must be passed by the council before May 1.

Pinewood Derby Winners Crowned

Winners were crowned Friday night when Rolling Meadows Cub Scout Pack 96 held its annual Pinewood Derby model car race at Trinity Lutheran Church.

The winners were: eight-year-olds: Todd Wahler, first; Scott Wolter, second and Douglas Golla, third; nine-year-olds: Stan Zielinski, first; David Beyer, second and Eric Pedersen, third; 10-year-olds: Rickie Dutch, first; Tom Werling, second, and Danny Harding, third.

Trophies were awarded to the winners.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

An all-white jury found two black convicts known as the "Soledad Brothers" innocent of murder charges in a case linked to that of Angela Davis.

The Supreme Court rejected the broadcasting industry's appeal of the 1969 law barring cigarette commercials from radio and television.

Myles Ambrose, special assistant attorney general for drug abuse law enforcement, said the Justice Department will ask for $2.3 million to finance a special program in 33 cities and regional areas to combat heroin traffic.

General Motors' only Chevrolet Vega Assembly line in Lordstown, Ohio, went back into production after a three-week strike by the United Auto Workers over working conditions.

A federal judge dismissed two charges against one of the Harrisburg Seven defendants but denied a defense request to throw out the entire case against the anti-war activists.

Sen. Edward Gurney, R-Fla., said it was now evident that one of Dita Beard's co-workers, trying to "get her," wrote the memorandum linking a settlement of a mammoth International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. antitrust case with a pledge to underwrite the Republican National Convention.

King Hussein of Jordan will confer with President Nixon today in a private visit to the White House.

The State

State Rep. Harold Washington, D-Chicago, was sentenced by U.S. District Court Judge Joseph Sam Perry to serve "40 days of contemplation" in federal prison for failing to file income tax returns.

Centex Completes Merger

Centex Corp. has completed an internal merger involving the Centex-Winston Corp., developers of the company's 1,100-acre project west of Ill. Rte. 53 in Elk Grove Village.

The Centex-Winston Corp.'s merger with the Centex Construction Co. will involve only minor changes in the company's plans for village development, according to Robert Calkins, real estate manager.

Calkins said the merger may involve introduction of a new line of home models with some options for the remainder of the property. Centex plans to begin discussions with the village within 30 days for its plans for the remaining 950 acres west of Rte. 53, he said.

Calkins noted that the merger, planned for some time, was designed to reduce duplication between the two entities.

Centex's property west of Rte. 53 is one of two major areas planned for development in the near future. The other area, also west of Rte. 53, is a 187-acre tract being developed jointly by four owners.

About 100 families currently live in the area west of Rte. 53, which is in the Schaumburg Township portion of Elk Grove Village.

Fiedler To Conduct Hersey High Band

Arthur Fiedler, director of the Boston Pops Symphony Orchestra, will conduct the Hersey High School Band in two concerts at 8 p.m. April 3 and 4 at the high school, 1900 E. Thomas Rd., Arlington Heights.

The program which ranges from classical to the lightest popular music includes the "William Tell Overture" by Rossini, "Procession of Nobles" by Rimsky-Korsakov, George Gershwin's "American in Paris," highlights from the "Sound of Music" and "Scarborough Fair."

Dena Warren

Funeral services for Mrs. Dena M. Warren, nee Minch, of 58 N. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine, will be held at 1:30 p.m. today in J. L. Poole Funeral Home, 25 W. Palatine Rd., Palatine.

Officiating will be the Rev. Albert C. Chamberlin of First United Methodist Church, Palatine. Burial will be in Ridgewood Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Mrs. Warren, a long-time resident of Palatine, died suddenly Friday in Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

Estimate Blaze Damage $52,000

Damage was estimated at $52,000 Monday to a barn near the Palatine-Arlington Heights boundary which was destroyed by fire Saturday evening.

Arlington Heights Fire Chief Jack Benson assessed the damage on the barn, owned by Carl Reinke of Dundee. A house near the barn was not damaged, Benson said.

He said the cause of the fire, which burned for more than four hours, is undetermined. Some insulation material stored in the barn was destroyed, and possibly also a truck.

The barn, west of Illinois Rte. 53 and north of Palatine Road, is currently in Arlington Heights but will be annexed to the Village of Palatine pending court action.

The Palatine Fire Department assisted the Arlington Heights squad in fighting the fire.

Benson said insurance on the property is $55,000.

BARGAIN HUNTERS by the dozens stalked the "prizes" for sale at the Rolling Meadows High School flea market last weekend. The rummage sale was sponsored by the Mustang Boosters Club to raise money for the school band. With bargains up for grabs, how could Linda Eilert of Palatine have passed up the chance to buy that original one of a kind (maybe) painting?

Business Fees To Be Weighed By Village Panel

A new business fee schedule will be considered by the Mount Prospect Village Board tonight.

The new schedule, which will not actually be voted on until April 18, was drawn up by Mayor Robert D. Teichert and the village administration after over two months of discussion with members of the business community.

Under the proposed amendment to the village code, business fees would be based on the floor area of the place of business and the number of fire and health inspections required. There will also be a basic $10 fee. The only exceptions will be certain businesses with set fees in the "specialties category."

The board's finance committee has been meeting with the businessmen, trying to get their opinions as to what is wrong with the present fee system. The primary objections, voiced at these meetings, was that the system is inequitable and that many businesses operate within the village without purchasing a license.

ONE CONCLUSION of the meetings was that fees should be based on actual village services rendered to the business establishments. Then the village administration conducted a cost analysis. Teichert said existing businesses were "eyeballed" for an estimate of their square footage and then the various licenses were categorized in groups based on size.

The footage fees begin at $20 for less than 1,000 square feet and progress in ordered steps up to $38 for up to 10,000 square feet. Teichert estimated that over 75 per cent of all businesses would be included in these categories.

After 10,000 square feet, the fees progress until a maximum of $300 is reached for those establishments with over 200,000 square feet. The footage fee is to cover the costs of fire inspections.

Added to that are health inspection fees at $10 each, where required, and the basic $10 registration fee that covers the cost of the forms and licenses.

"THE REALLOCATION of fees will mean an increase for some businesses and a decrease for others," Teichert said. "But it is not designed to increase our present licensing revenue."

He said the new fee structure was set up with the intent that it would duplicate the current $24,000 to $26,000 that fees generate for the village. The mayor estimated that the costs to the village for business licensing is more like $46,000.

Teichert said, "It is not necessary we compound the reallocation problem with an increase in fees." Before any raise in fees is contemplated, he said every village department will have to examine what their costs are toward producing licenses and there will have to be some discussion on how much of the costs should be recovered by the village.

Here the public benefit argument comes in, Teichert said. This is the argument whereby since businesses bring in sales tax revenues and other monies, they should not have to pay for the full costs of the licenses.

"READY, SET, GO!" was the command Sunday in the first Mount Prospect Park District invitational swim meet. More than 180 suburban swimmers competed in the 12-hour event at Kopp Pool in Mount Prospect. The Elk Grove Park District team took two trophies for best overall and best in boys' division. The Mount Prospect team received a trophy for highest score in the girls' division.

Town Board To Consider Budget Today

The Elk Grove Township Board of Auditors will meet today to approve a budget for the 1972-73 fiscal year which shows less than a 10 per cent increase in expenses in four main funds.

The proposed budget, scheduled for approval at 8 p.m. at the township hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, calls for expenditures of $183,212 in the town fund, used to pay salaries and maintain the township offices, $80,450 in the general assistance fund which provides emergency welfare payments for needy township residents, $169,000 in the road and bridge fund and $1,125 in the sewer fund.

The largest increase in any fund is in the general assistance fund, which during the past year totaled $56,800. The increase, according to Auditor Bernard Lee, is planned to provide for the increased demand that has been placed on the welfare fund this year.

The township provides temporary welfare payments for persons until they can be placed on the Cook County welfare rolls.

THE TOWN FUND is being increased $17,000 from $166,912 this year. The road and bridge fund decreased from $176,000 this year. That fund is used to maintain roads in unincorporated areas.

Lee said the budget will not mean an increase in real estate property taxes for the township because the expected increase in the area's assessed value will make up the increased costs.

The budget does not call for issuance of any tax anticipation warrants. These would allow the township to borrow money which will not be collected until the following spring.

The annual town meeting will be held Tuesday, April 11, at the township hall. The meeting will allow residents of the township to ask questions about the budget. Until a recent change in the law, the budget was officially adopted at the town meeting.

Adlai's Signature Remains...

Although Sen. Adlai Stevenson III has gone to Washington, his stamped signature as Illinois treasurer is still appearing on checks in Illinois.

Mrs. Edward Jablenski, of 912 S. Candota Ave., Mount Prospect, last week got back a canceled check she had sent to Secretary of State John W. Lewis for her son's driving permit. "It was endorsed to Adlai Stevenson with no objections by the Secretary of State's office," Mrs. Jablenski said. The check was for her son who is currently taking driving lessons at Forest View High School.

Alan J. Dixon is treasurer of Illinois and has been since Stevenson left that office.

A call by a Herald reporter to the Chicago Secretary of State's office led to a transfer downtown. At this time a clerk explained how all checks made out to the secretary of state have to be endorsed over to the treasurer for payment. But she couldn't explain why Stevenson's name rather than Dixon's was on the check.

Later, Joe Belair, a member of the communications department of the Secretary of State's office, explained the mixup.

"We used to have checks endorsed by the person in office, but now we are getting away from that," Belair said. "We are having them endorsed now by the office itself, rather than throwing away all the endorsement stamps each time a new man takes office."

The old stamps apparently had the name of Stevenson rubbed out. Except for the one inadvertently used to endorse Mrs. Jablenski's check.

Hidden Traps Create Problems In Area Schools

(For the last several years, Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 has been plagued by seemingly endless problems. This is the second in a series that will examine the causes and results of the district's problems.)

by WANDALYN RICE

Many of the same policies which made Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 nationally renowned for innovation in the 1960s also contributed to the district's later problems.

A process of decentralization, consciously encouraged by Supt. Roger Bardwell during his tenure, broke down the identification residents, teachers and principals had with the district as a whole.

The "excited, creative" staff members hired to work in the educational programs also shared another trait—they didn't stay long with the district. Many left to get advanced degrees or left for districts with offers of greater responsibility. And they left in greater than normal numbers.

The Impossible Dream Revisited— Profile Of School System Crisis

And the fiscal cliff-hanging needed to continue expanding educational programs and keep up with the district's rapid growth could work only as long as outside grant money was available and voters remained willing to raise the tax rate.

The decentralization, which Bardwell also attempted when he was superintendent in Ithaca, New York, was a conscious policy to free the individual schools from control by central administrators.

"I'm convinced the superintendent is an obsolete position," says Bardwell, who left Ithaca this year to become an assistant publisher for Harper and Row in Evanston. "Education shouldn't be managed and controlled, and the bureaucracy should disappear."

THE POLICY succeeded both in freeing each school to approach education in its own way and in creating competition among schools for all available resources.

"I remember when I first came to the district," one principal says now. "One of the guys who'd been here a while took me into the corner and told me that the idea was the guy who hustled most got the most."

Gene Artemenko, who was serving on the school board when Bardwell resigned, saw the problem too.

"Bardwell had made individual arrangements rather than establishing consistent policy. There were inequities among individual schools because some principals were more ambitious than others," he says.

The same policy also had an effect on residents of the district.

"We were creating a more autonomous, decentralized district. People really identified with the elementary schools, and they were only incidentally a part of Dist. 59," Bardwell says.

Last year, while going from school to school trying to explain the need for a tax rate increase, the present superintendent

Marilyn Hallman

Nineteen years is a long time to be away from home. That's how long it's been since Anna Bedford, 520 N. Eastwood, left her hometown in Johannesburg, South Africa.

Today she will fly back there for a visit. Accompanying Anna will be her daughter Paula — now Mrs. Gary Redling of Cedar Rapids, Ia.

First, mother and daughter plan to spend some time in London with the family of Anna's late husband, Donald. From there they will fly to Johannesburg to visit family and old friends.

"It will be so nice to meet everyone again," said Anna. Her mother and three brothers, with their families, still live in Johannesburg.

One brother has arranged for Paula to spend a day visiting a medium school. She may also visit the high school her mother attended. These school visits are of special interest to Paula, who is an elementary school teacher.

She is also looking forward to visiting one special friend. They last saw each other when they were seven years old. Since then they've kept in touch with letters.

Paula is also hoping to acquire a nice suntan in Johannesburg. It's now late summer in South Africa, and the swimming pools will be open until May 1.

On their way home, Anna and Paula will stop in Rome and Paris for a couple of days each to do some sightseeing. When she returns, Anna will plunge right in to her next project — opening a local needlework shop. More about that later.

ALSO ALONG the ecology line, members of St. John Lutheran Church hope you are saving all your clean bottles for their glass drive. The Glass Mobile will be at the church (1100 Linneman Rd.) April 22 and 23.

GRAND WINNER in the recent toy car derby at Randhurst shopping center was Eric Schmiedt, 502 S. Can-Dota. Another local boy, John Tobin of 9 E. Marion, won in the boys' senior division. Jaycee members helped run the contest.

$5,000 Taken In Burglary

At least $5,000 was stolen from the Beef 'n' Barrel Restaurant, 1932 E. Higgins Rd., Elk Grove Township, when burglars opened the safe with a torch sometime after closing hours Sunday night or Monday morning.

An investigator from the Cook County Sheriff's police yesterday described the burglary as done by professionals, saying "they knew exactly where to use" the torch. "The job they did on the safe was probably one of the better jobs I've seen in the area," said the investigator.

The $5,000 loss estimate was a "bare minimum," said the spokesman, who added the actual loss could be much higher, depending on Sunday's receipts. Stored in the bank were receipts from the day, plus the "banks" to supply cash registers for Monday's operations. While the exact total will not be known until later this week, the investigator said it could be more than $10,000.

The burglary was discovered by Jack Manolas, day manager, when he reported to work Monday morning. He said the rear door to the restaurant had been pried open. Nothing else had been disturbed.

Correction

The location where River Trails Dist. 26 School Board candidates will speak tonight was incorrectly printed in yesterday's Herald. Candidates will speak at 8 o'clock at Parkview School, 805 N. Burnside Bush Ln. in Mount Prospect.

Zoning Board Ruling Eases Way For Building

School District To Build 16th School At Willow, Wolf

by RICH HONACK

School Dist. 21 will build its 16th school at the corner of Willow and Wolf roads in unincorporated Wheeling.

The long-anticipated school will come after several months of work by school district officials, developers and the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals.

The board agreed Monday to grant a rezoning variation to the Lamplighter apartment developers, whose land is adjacent to the seven-acre site being donated to Dist. 21. Without the variation the land would have been condemned and Dist. 21 could have paid over $300,000 for the site.

Children Invited To Easter Egg Hunt

Prospect Heights children from ages one to nine are invited to an Easter egg hunt at 1 p.m. Saturday at St. Alphonsus Catholic School, 411 N. Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights.

Some 500 children participated last year in the egg hunt sponsored by the Prospect Heights Jaycees.

Walter Stempien, Jaycees secretary, said the children would be divided by ages and there would be candy and prizes for each group.

The board heard the evidence for the rezoning from school officials and Lamplighter developer Zigmunt Lifkowitz. At the time Lifkowitz entered the hearing as the defendant in a condemnation suit already filed by the school district.

IF THE SUIT HAD gone through, Lamplighter would have lost the seven acres and not have been within proper zoning restrictions. They would have had too many apartments on the amount of land they owned. This worried Lifkowitz, who felt that if something burned down he would be unable to rebuild.

Therefore, he sought to change his present R-5 classification to an R-6 classification. The board told him that to make such a change would take up to four months.

The board recommended that he could still rebuild if he sought the R-5 classification with the variation, and the process would be shorter.

Lifkowitz took the case to his lenders, who approved of the variation, and the necessary steps were taken leading to yesterday's hearing.

THE VILLAGES OF Wheeling and Mount Prospect also requested Lifkowitz be held to his promise that no new apartments be added to the number presently in the complex.

Lifkowitz agreed and again told the board, "The only reason I want the re-zoning is to be able to rebuild in case of fire or other disaster that may strike the complex."

According to Lifkowitz the only way he can build additional apartments is to build on top of the present buildings. He said he has no plans to do this.

Dist. 21 will begin building its 16th school as soon as possible. The school board accepted the floor plans for the proposed building last Thursday night and at that time expressed hope that the hearing would be favorable.

Girl Is Apparent Suicide Victim

A 13-year-old Mount Prospect girl was found hanging in the basement of her home Saturday night, an apparent suicide victim.

The girl, an eighth grade student, was discovered hanging by the neck from a rope tied to a basement rafter.

The police had arrived at the home about 10 p.m. to fill out a missing persons report on the girl. At that time, as part of their general procedure, they asked the parents to search the home. It was then the girl's mother discovered the body. The girl had been missing since about 5 p.m.

There were five notes left by the victim and she had a telephone number and name written on her left hand, police said.

The girl was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines and taken to the Cook County Morgue.

Hidden Traps Create Problems In Area Schools

tendent, James Erviti, often used nearly the same words.

"Our district is so fragmented," he grumbled, "that people don't identify with the needs of a thing called Dist. 59."

Tax increases were easy to come by when Bardwell was superintendent. The district regularly asked for building bonds and for tax rate increases, all of which passed. At the same time, the district went deeply into tax anticipation warrants (TAWs), even issuing warrants borrowing tax money that would not be collected for two years.

Bardwell and his business manager, William Mann had a plan to get the district out from under the burden of debt.

"We were hoping to create a system that would be so good people would support it with property tax, but we had to time the referendums carefully and we couldn't afford to lose one," he says.

IN ADDITION, by spacing the referendums and taking advantage of the growing tax base, Bardwell says he assumed the borrowing would eventually be ended.

"We started cutting back on TAWs the last year I was there. I thought if we came back soon enough for a referendum we could give the district the stability it would need," he said.

What Bardwell and others doing the planning at the time could not foresee was how fast inflation would spiral costs, outrunning the tax rate growth. In addition, the grant money, which the district was cashing in on, began to dry up.

Ludwig Bodzewski, who had been assistant superintendent under Bardwell and served as acting superintendent when Bardwell left, saw it happen.

"When we moved educationally, we moved not with district money. In the 60s the federal government set aside billions of dollars to support education. Then the money ran out at the federal level, and it wasn't easy to get money anymore," Bodzewski says.

The district had, at that time, commitments for about $1.5 million in grants, and, Bodzewski puzzles, "Where in the devil could the district find a million bucks?"

The cutback of funds was not the only reason the staff was leaving. Many were going to better jobs in other school districts and in universities.

BARDWELL LEFT for Ithaca, pursuing an ambition to "be a big-city superintendent." Business manager Mann left. Others, at lower levels, were also leaving.

A list of principals in the district schools shows the trend clearly. Principals have left an average of every 1 1/4 years at Robert Frost School in Mount Prospect, and Grant Wood School in Elk Grove Village, every 1 1/4 years at Juliette Low School in Arlington Heights, and every 2 2/3 years at Salt Creek School in Elk Grove Village.

When the tenure of all the principals in each of the district's existing schools is averaged, it amounts to 3 1/3 years in each school.

Bodzewski and Bardwell were troubled by the problem and, in an effort to slow turnover, instituted a pay scale that would give some teachers more money than the minimum. In addition, they hoped that the programs run through grants would attract, and keep, the best people.

"We tried to have stability," Bodzewski says now when questioned about the problem. "The fact that anyone asks the question now shows, I guess, that we didn't succeed."

Board Members Should Be Good Businessmen

Wattenberg: Schools Big Business

Today the Herald continues a series of interviews with candidates for the River Trails Dist. 26 School Board. Four contenders are seeking election April 8 to three three-year posts. One candidate is running uncontested for a two-year vacancy.

by KAREN RUGEN

Ted Wattenberg considers school districts big business. As a result, he says, school board members should be good businessmen.

"We've got to be careful in the future," said the incumbent who is seeking a three-year spot on the board. "We must watch our expenses and control them."

A way to do that, and one that Wattenberg advocates, is decentralization of the nearly $3.5 million Dist. 26 budget. Itemization of costs, according to Wattenberg, is the key to thrift.

"WE MUST KNOW how much we spend at each school. It's got to be broken down. If we're not thrifty, we may run out of money," said the candidate who believes the school board has been thrifty in the past.

Wattenberg doesn't see an imminent financial crisis for Dist. 26. He favored last spring's 20-cent tax increase, and thinks it won't be necessary to go back to the voters in the near future. He believes the current system of financing schools through real estate taxes is "antiquated." Instead, schools eventually will have to get more money from the state, he said.

Besides saving money, one of Wattenberg's goals is to improve communication. One way, he said, is to hold as few closed board meetings as possible.

"I abhor secrecy and would want meetings open as much as possible. If I do make any mistakes I'd rather have full publicity as long as we're talking about taxpayer's monies," he said. Wattenberg said he'd like to see closed meetings reduced by about 50 per cent and possibly open bargaining meetings to the public.

WATTENBERG WOULD also like to see a training program on student discipline for teachers. "They are handling discipline now but can always do better," he said. "Maybe more training could help the vandalism problem."

The candidate would also like to motivate administrators to play a larger part in the classroom. "They should be there to offer all possible aid to the new teacher and offer suggestions to the old teacher," he said. "I'd like to see them spend more time away from desk work. It may be just a better budgeting of administration time."

Shortening board meetings that usually run past midnight is another goal of Wattenberg, although he admits it's a difficult one because of "human nature."

WATTENBERG, a corporation attorney, lives at 1807 Tano Ln. in Mount Prospect. He was appointed to the board last year when Jack Halvorsen resigned. He has lived in the district for six years.

Born in Germany, Wattenberg is now 63 and grandfather of four children. "It's easy for me now to be on the school to pay off a mortgage, they'd be better off to mortgage," he joked.

Wattenberg spends much of his spare time reading about education and likes "to keep watch on what other school districts are doing." Responding to criticism that Dist. 26 is conservative in curriculum, Wattenberg feels that is "a misunderstanding and that the district is wide open to new things."

Here are his views on other issues: RIVER ROAD SCHOOL: "We do need a new building. I am reasonably satisfied that we cannot assimilate the Maryville students into other schools and that they should get special education. I don't think it makes too much difference if the school is on Maryville grounds or not."

NEGOTIATIONS: "I felt hiring a negotiator was premature and his fee could have been another saving. Our administrators were competent enough. Employees should also think about the financial end of it."

"I feel teachers' latest demands are not in accordance with federal guidelines. It should be 5 1/2 per cent. If we don't fight inflation we're going to benefit less from any temporary increase in income. I think merit pay is an excellent idea."

Al Domanico - A Familiar Face In Area Schools

Today begins a series of interviews with the five candidates seeking the two school board posts in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59.

by WANDALYN RICE

When Albert Domanico talks about the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education, he still uses the pronoun "we."

Although the Elk Grove Village resident has not served on the board since 1970, when he decided not to seek reelection because he thought he was being transferred out of town, he has remained active in district affairs. Last year he once again sought a position on the board and this year he is back in the race.

"It's not a recent decision to run for the board," he says. "It's two years old. I've stayed interested in elementary education for the eight years we've lived here."

Domanico's interest has been obvious by his attendance at board meetings and committee meetings — he has chalked up an attendance record rivaling that of board members.

HE SERVED on the board when it hired Supt. James Erviti in 1970, and he has been pleased by many developments since Erviti began his job.

The native New Yorker has four children and works for the General Instrument Corp. in marketing, sales and engineering.

"The district was different when we first came here," he says. "Then we were in a hot-shot innovation period and were spending money because we had it. I think we've progressed to a conservative district both educationally and financially. I think that was one of our goals when we hired Erviti."

In addition, he says he does not see a tax rate referendum in the immediate future for the district, because "the people have judged that the level of education is sufficient now. If we get money to increase education, it won't be from property taxes."

EVEN THOUGH he has maintained close ties with the board, Domanico has disagreed with some board actions during the past year. He disagreed with a board decision to sell $1 million in building bonds for Friendship Junior High School in Des Plaines "a whole year before we needed it. We've never second-guessed the bond market before."

Also, he says he would like to see a contingency plan for opening Friendship earlier than the planned June, 1973 date if it is completed in time. "We need the school as soon as possible, but there is no plan to use it if it becomes available," he says.

He also disagreed sharply last summer when the board voted to close the school buildings to after-school activities following a referendum defeat. The decision still irritates him.

"I couldn't believe that all that talent on the board could come up with such a fragmentary decision," he says. "If it was not a punitive decision, it couldn't have been better planned to look like one."

ONE THING Domanico would like to see the district offer is "on-the-job" training for teachers, but he realizes providing it might cost more than the district can afford.

"I think we owe it to ourselves to find out the price of staff development and then set some objectives on it," he says, adding that Dist. 59 might be able to cooperate with other districts through the Northwest Education Cooperative (NEC) to provide training for teachers.

Some of his views on other issues are: TEACHER SALARY negotiations — "I don't think we can make the teachers into the enemy during negotiations and then tell them we are all part of a team the rest of the year. I think we have to present the district's responsibility to the taxpayers honestly and explain our financial position and then sit down with the teachers and decide how much will go into teacher's salaries."

EQUALIZING education using state or federal funds — "I support any type of federal or state aid to bring about equality, but I don't believe people should not be allowed to increase that level with local effort. I don't have a fear of federal aid if local control can be guaranteed."

UNIT DISTRICT proposed by Erviti to study forming a unit district in the area — "It's a very brave thing to say. I think he (Erviti) is honestly convinced that the unit district is educationally and financially the way to go. I would like to reserve judgment until NEC gets the report back from their consultant." (NEC now has a consultant investigating possible changes in that organization.)

Merit pay for teachers — "I would be for it if teachers and administrators can agree on an evaluation instrument, but good teachers have a major concern about who is going to do the evaluation."

Commission To Be Formed

Low-Income Housing Plan Gets Go-Ahead

by KURT BAER

The Arlington Heights Village Board voted 5 to 2 last night to adopt the majority resolution of the low and moderate-income housing committee report which calls for the creation of a local housing commission and recommends development of 50 units of low and 150 to 250 units of moderate-income housing during the next two years.

Voting at the end of a one-hour, 45-minute public hearing before an overflow audience in the council room of the Municipal Building, the trustees decided against submitting the report's recommendations to a November referendum as requested by several residents who testified last night.

The five-member housing commission will be appointed by the village president subject to approval by the board of trustees. It will have a wide range of advisory responsibilities to the plan commission and the village board.

IN ANNOUNCING his support for the resolution minutes before the final vote, Arlington Heights Village Pres. Jack Walsh urged opponents of the measure to "carefully consider the nature of the resolution. Do not conclude that its purpose is to bring about many of the fears you have expressed here tonight."

Walsh said that, in his opinion, the resolution is "clearly something that deals with existing problems" and does not stand for an influx of new problems.

Trustees Ted Salinsky and Ralph Clabour voted against adoption of the majority report resolution.

Salinsky said he thought the report raised many unanswered questions and Clabour said he favored a referendum on the issue.

"I feel the question is such a great question that it should be put to the people of Arlington Heights," Clabour said. "A referendum would be the true

Woods To Be Next Mayor

BULLETIN

The Arlington Heights Village Board, meeting in closed-door executive session, last night reportedly agreed to appoint former Village Pres. John Woods to fill the unexpired term of Village Pres. Jack Walsh who announced his resignation Friday.

Woods said last night that his reaction was "one of shock" and that beyond that he felt "deeply honored by the board's vote of confidence."

Woods said that he had had "a kind of elliptical conversation" with Walsh about the appointment but added that the decision was that of the village board.

The trustees met secretly before last night's public hearing on the low and moderate-income housing committee report and again after they had voted, by a 5-to-2 margin, to accept the report's and proper start for a program such as this.

WALSH SAID that, in his opinion, the resolution is "clearly something that deals with existing problems" and does not stand for an influx of new problems.

Trustees Ted Salinsky and Ralph Clabour voted against adoption of the majority report resolution.

Salinsky said he thought the report raised many unanswered questions and Clabour said he favored a referendum on the issue.

"I feel the question is such a great question that it should be put to the people of Arlington Heights," Clabour said. "A referendum would be the true majority resolution.

Formal board action on the naming of Woods to fill Walsh's term, which runs through April of next year, is expected at next Monday's regular village board meeting.

VILLAGE MGR. L. A. Hanson said that only one copy of the committee's final report, which took 18 months to complete, had been picked up from his office during the past week.

In response to a question raised by Alfred J. Lindsey, president of the Arlington Terrace Homeowners Association, Trustee Frank Palmatier explained that the housing commission would function solely in an advisory capacity to the village board and plan commission.

It would not, Palmatier said, have powers of property condemnation or be funded to acquire property of finance low and moderate-income housing developments.

Trustee Dwight Walton cited the housing commission as what he called one of many safeguards built into the development of low and moderate-income housing that the village has not had with other housing developments.

AL KOZAKIEWICZ, a family man first and a civic leader second, pages through the family stamp collection with his Cub Scout son Al and Indian Guide son Paul. Kozakiewicz is a Cubmaster and Indian Guide Chief, and was recently awarded the 1972 Distinguished Service Award from the Arlington Heights Jaycees.

Family Life Is Key, Says Prize Winner

by CINDY TEW

Anyone who is worried the American family structure is falling apart need only look at the Al Kozakiewicz family of Arlington Heights to restore some faith.

Kozakiewicz, recent winner of the 1972 Distinguished Service Award from the Arlington Heights Jaycees, bases all of his community activities around his family.

"If you want to know what your children are doing, you have to get involved with them," Kozakiewicz says. "It's important to get off on the right foot and have an open line of communications with your children."

An Arlington Heights resident for the past five years, Kozakiewicz began his community involvement as a co-founder of the Berkley Square Civic Association. He is now Cubmaster of his sons' pack, Chief of one son's Indian Guide Tribe, and coach of another son's Little League team.

ASIDE FROM the political activities of the Berkley Square homeowners which have included petitioning for street lights and park grading, the association's social activities have included the whole family. Highlight of the year include a Halloween parade, Easter egg hunt, and a family picnic.

"People in our community are cooperative and activities include a lot of participation," Kozakiewicz said. "There's not as much apathy around here as in many places."

Kozakiewicz feels the main reason people are active is because they are interested in their children, which is his main reason for involvement.

Though Kozakiewicz, a project systems analyst for the Chicago Sun-Times, is reluctant to take credit for the extent of his accomplishments in the community, his wife, Vivian, and neighbors wave a flag for him.

"Al was instrumental in maintaining Cub Pack 363 as the largest in the Sauk Woods District," said Michael J. Nall, president of Berkley Square Civic Association. "He also organized the Halloween Parade costume judging contest for about 300 children in Berkley Square."

Though Cub Scouting takes up an average of one night a week, not to mention his other activities, the family still manages to have a number of hobbies. As a group, the family collects stamps, tropical fish and dolls from around the world.

CONSTRUCTION OF a model railroad presently is the family's biggest activity. Though the men of the family, including Al, 10 and Paul, 7, claim to be the main contributors, Mrs. Kozakiewicz insists that the girls, Marilyn, 9, and Gail, 3, are helpers, too.

Mrs. Kozakiewicz, who has a bachelor of arts degree in chemistry, is active in St. Edna's religious education program as well as her husband's activities.

Though she calls herself a "football widow," Mrs. Kozakiewicz is rarely far from her husband's side.

Since Kozakiewicz's childhood in Salem, Mass., he has been interested in politics.

"Perhaps someday I'll broaden my horizon from the neighborhood to the village board, or maybe the park board," he said, but "I don't have the time right now, with my children growing up."

3rd Meeting Set With Mediators At Honeywell

A meeting with federal mediators is scheduled this morning in an attempt to resolve the three-week strike by the electrical union at the Honeywell plant in Arlington Heights.

No meetings were held last week to resolve the strike by 550 members of the United Electrical Union Local 1114 which has halted production at the plant, 1500 Dundee Rd.

The union voted to reject a new two-year contract stating that fringe benefits were inadequate. Honeywell officials said the contract offers the maximum wage hike allowed under federal wage guidelines and major fringe benefit incentives.

Honeywell management and the union already have met twice with federal mediators without settlement.

Elk Grove Township

Auditors To Decide On New Budget

The Elk Grove Township Board of Auditors will meet today to approve a budget for the 1972-73 fiscal year which shows less than a 10 per cent increase in expenses in four main funds.

The proposed budget, scheduled for approval at 8 p.m. at the township hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, calls for expenditures of $183,212 in the town fund, used to pay salaries and maintain the township offices, $80,450 in the general assistance fund which provides emergency welfare payments for needy township residents, $169,000 in the road and bridge fund and $1,125 in the sewer fund.

The largest increase in any fund is in the general assistance fund, which during the past year totaled $56,800. The increase, according to Auditor Bernard Lee, is planned to provide for the increased demand that has been placed on the welfare fund this year.

The township provides temporary welfare payments for persons until they can be placed on the Cook County welfare rolls.

THE TOWN FUND is being increased $17,000 from $166,012 this year. The road and bridge fund decreased from $178,000 this year. That fund is used to maintain roads in unincorporated areas.

Lee said the budget will not mean an increase in real estate property taxes for the township because the expected increase in the area's assessed value will make up the increased costs.

The budget does not call for issuance of any tax anticipation warrants. These would allow the township to borrow money which will not be collected until the following spring.

The annual town meeting will be held Tuesday, April 11, at the township hall. The meeting will allow residents of the township to ask questions about the budget. Until a recent change in the law, the budget was officially adopted at the town meeting.

Animation Is Taught

5th Graders Learning Photography

AN ENLARGEMENT of movie film on drawing paper and learning to work within small frames was the first part of student teacher Susan Popko's

by CINDY TEW

Animated photography is now being taught in a 5th grade art class at Dunton School in Arlington Heights by Susan Popko, a student teacher from the University of Illinois.

"Art is usually part of the classroom curriculum, but we were fortunate enough to have a student teacher specializing in art here and an extra classroom for her to use," said Chet Raash, principal at Dunton. "Of course, Miss Popko has also had the experience of teaching in a regular classroom."

The first thing Miss Popko and her fifth grade students did was blacken the windows and door "for darkroom effects."

Students learn transparent, translucent and opaque qualities of light, as well as how to prepare dry-mounted slides and make animated films. The actual developing of film has been prohibited because of cost.

"ONE OF THE first noticeable qualities of the students was their energy, which I hoped to contain and redirect into art activities including motion," Miss Popko said.

To prepare the students for creating motion picture animations, the ultimate end of their month's work, Miss Popko introduced discussions and films of motion in our environment including traffic, neon advertising signs and vibrant colors. She also used classical music, jazz and contemporary rock as background rhythms.

Miss Popko has a bachelor of fine arts degree in painting from the University of Illinois and will soon receive a degree in art education. Her last major project at the university was the photography of people, which gave her the idea for the Dunton School art class.

"The first project was to get students used to drawing in sequences, so we used large strips of drawing paper as simulated film," Miss Popko said.

STUDENTS WERE soon learning how to use pencils and pens on small pieces of clear acetate, that lead to 35mm slides, which were projected and discussed. The final project was drawing an animation on seven feet of film, which includes nearly 800 of the 16 mm. squares.

"Most films I've seen so far are terrific," said Miss Popko. "They usually are sequences of shapes and colors."

The film will be spliced together by the students and shown as a continuous movie.

"Splicing is easy," said 5th grader Anna Coletto. "It's not hard at all to work with 16 mm film."

The challenge for the class was to get the students to shrink their original animation down to 16 mm size, and everyone has been successful," Miss Popko said.

AS AN ADDED attraction to the class, Miss Popko brought in different cameras for the children to use as well as 16 mm films including Laurel and Hardy and science fiction movies.

"I think I want to be a spy," one fifth grader has decided after a day's use of Miss Popko's small "spy" camera.

"It's helpful to have many available resources to help students," said James Montgomery, director of instruction in Dist. 25. "The student teachers bring new ideas to our programs and we give them a chance to tackle a real classroom situation."

Dist. 25 has about 100 student teachers each school year from five universities including Illinois State University, Western Illinois University, Northeastern Illinois University and Northern Illinois University. The programs last from 8 to 18 weeks.

All student teachers are assigned to a building or a department within a building and usually work with several classes. They are not paid for their service.

QUALITIES OF LIGHT are studied by the fifth grade art students in connection with their photographic art course. Marly Petlicki, at the slide projector, examines the light qualities of different paints and inks on his 35 millimeter slide. Anna Coletto, who just completed her seven-foot movie drawn on 16-millimeter film examines the results.

Adlai's Signature Remains...

Although Sen. Adlai Stevenson III has gone to Washington, his stamped signature as Illinois treasurer is still appearing on checks in Illinois.

Mrs. Edward Jablenski, of 912 S. Candota Ave., Mount Prospect, last week got back a canceled check she had sent to Secretary of State John W. Lewis for her son's driving permit. "It was endorsed to Adlai Stevenson with no objections by the Secretary of State's office," Mrs. Jablenski said. The check was for her son, who is currently taking driving lessons at Forest View High School.

Alan J. Dixon is treasurer of Illinois and has been since Stevenson left that office.

A call by a Herald reporter to the Chicago Secretary of State's office led to a transfer downtown. At this time a clerk explained how all checks made out to the secretary of state have to be endorsed over to the treasurer for payment. But she couldn't explain why Stevenson's name rather than Dixon's was on the check.

Later, Joe Belair, a member of the communications department of the Secretary of State's office, explained the mixup.

"We used to have checks endorsed by the person in office, but now we are getting away from that," Belair said. "We are having them endorsed now by the office itself, rather than throwing away all the endorsement stamps each time a new man takes office."

The old stamps apparently had the name of Stevenson rubbed out. Except for the one inadvertently used to endorse Mrs. Jablenski's check.

Wary Of State Intervention

Lane Favors Local Control

(This is the first of four interviews presenting views of candidates for the Dist. 21 School Board. An interview with another candidate will appear in tomorrow's Herald.)

Jack Lane, incumbent Dist. 21 School Board candidate, believes the state should share the cost of public education, but should not interfere with local school boards in the decision-making process.

Lane, who is seeking a two-year term, supports a financing plan which calls for a standard property tax rate for education throughout the state. The amount of money raised by the tax would then be matched by state financing, according to Lane.

Also included in the plan, proposed by Illinois Rep. Bradley Glass, would be a provision for local school boards to raise the standard rate through a referendum approved by voters.

Lane is a strong supporter of the concept of local school boards retaining control of the schools in their districts.

"PEOPLE IN the community are better equipped to control their destiny than people in Springfield or Washington," he said.

He believes if the state were to finance public education exclusively, "local school boards would cease to exist."

Lane proposed a local committee composed of school officials, board members, and citizens, to study new ways to finance education.

"It is very important for local citizens to get involved," Lane said. "If they take the attitude to let someone else do it, then local school control will be wiped out."

HOWEVER, LANE also cautioned

Jack Lane

against advisory study committees. "I think they could be very useful, but strictly in that capacity — as advisory groups. They are useful in that framework."

"Sometimes they have a tendency to get carried away with their own importance and overlook the problem they want to eliminate," he added.

Lane cited the caucus endorsement committee for Dist. 21 candidates as an example. He criticized the committee for recommending only three candidates.

Lane unsuccessfully sought caucus support.

LANE DID not comment directly on the current contract negotiations with Dist. 21 teachers and said only, "we have an official negotiating team that is negotiating."

However, he did say it is his personal opinion that sometimes groups such as the Illinois Education Association (IEA) and the National Education Association (NEA) tend to "overstep their bounds."

Lane believes there is nothing wrong with "an employee making a suggestion for a policy change, as long as that is his main interest."

"But when that person starts using the citizens and students, he is in the wrong ball game. It shows that their main interest is in organizing a huge labor organization," Lane said.

LANE BELIEVES subdivision developers have "one heck of a responsibility" to the school district to provide for the education of children from the development.

He said the problem is that "you always have the children before you have the facilities to take care of them."

He said developers do not use enough foresight. "I think they should be more accurate in their prediction of how fast they are going to develop an area and how many kids will live there," he said.

He believes the Naperville land donation ordinance, "seems a little bit strong. I don't know how the court would rule on that," he added.

LANE IS opposed to busing to achieve racial balance in education. "Busing is not the way to solve the problem" of racial balance and equal educational opportunity.

According to Lane, the City of Chicago has "created its own problems." He blamed the school board for not allocating money properly and charged that most money for education is being channeled into the white areas of the city.

As for priorities for Dist. 21, Lane listed the construction of new schools an expanded reading program and the addition of shop and craft courses into the junior high school curriculum.

Al Domanico - A Familiar Face In Area Schools

Today begins a series of interviews with the five candidates seeking the two school board posts in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59.

by WANDALYN RICE

When Albert Domanico talks about the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education, he still uses the pronoun "we."

Although the Elk Grove Village resident has not served on the board since 1970, when he decided not to seek reelection because he thought he was being transferred out of town, he has remained active in district affairs. Last year he once again sought a position on the board and this year he is back in the race.

"It's not a recent decision to run for the board," he says. "It's two years old. I've stayed interested in elementary education for the eight years we've lived here."

Domanico's interest has been obvious by his attendance at board meetings and committee meetings — he has chalked up an attendance record rivaling that of board members.

HE SERVED on the board when it hired Supt. James Erviti in 1970, and he has been pleased by many developments since Erviti began his job.

Al Domanico

The native New Yorker has four children and works for the General Instrument Corp. in marketing, sales and engineering.

"The district was different when we first came here," he says. "Then we were in a hot-shot innovation period and were spending money because we had it. I think we've progressed to a conservative district both educationally and financially. I think that was one of our goals when we hired Erviti."

In addition, he says he does not see a tax rate referendum in the immediate future for the district, because "the people have judged that the level of education is sufficient now. If we get money to increase education, it won't be from property taxes."

EVEN THOUGH he has maintained close ties with the board, Domanico has disagreed with some board actions during the past year. He disagreed with a board decision to sell $1 million in building bonds for Friendship Junior High School in Des Plaines "a whole year before we needed it. We've never second-guessed the bond market before."

Also, he says he would like to see a contingency plan for opening Friendship earlier than the planned June, 1973 date if it is completed in time. "We need the school as soon as possible, but there is no plan to use it if it becomes available," he says.

He also disagreed sharply last summer when the board voted to close the school buildings to after-school activities following a referendum defeat. The decision still irritates him.

"I couldn't believe that all that talent on the board could come up with such a fragmentary decision," he says. "If it was not a punitive decision, it couldn't have been better planned to look like one."

ONE THING Domanico would like to see the district offer is "on-the-job" training for teachers, but he realizes providing it might cost more than the district can afford.

"I think we owe it to ourselves to find out the price of staff development and then set some objectives on it," he says, adding that Dist. 59 might be able to cooperate with other districts through the Northwest Education Cooperative (NEC) to provide training for teachers.

Some of his views on other issues are:

TEACHER SALARY negotiations — "I don't think we can make the teachers into the enemy during negotiations and then tell them we are all part of a team the rest of the year. I think we have to present the district's responsibility to the taxpayers honestly and explain our financial position and then sit down with the teachers and decide how much will go into teacher's salaries."

EQUALIZING education using state or federal funds — "I support any type of federal or state aid to bring about equality, but I don't believe people should not be allowed to increase that level with local effort. I don't have a fear of federal aid if local control can be guaranteed."

Gasoline Leakage Probe Is Extended In Downtown Area

by LEON SHURE

The Des Plaines Fire Department investigation into possible gasoline leaks from service station tanks has extended into the eastern section of the city's downtown shopping district.

Fire Chief Frank Haag said yesterday that "just to be sure" the department has requested testing of gasoline tanks at three service stations and removal of three unused tanks.

A spokesman for the environmental division of the state Attorney General's office also said yesterday its investigation of gas leaks here is continuing and decisions on any future actions will be made within two weeks when tests are completed.

The stations and tanks are within a block of the home of Burton Kosmen, 709 River Rd. Kosmen triggered investigation when he complained that his home was sitting on a "sea of gasoline" and as many as 16 pails of raw gasoline had been removed from his basement sump pump at one time.

Haag, who said he felt the gasoline leakage problem into Kosmen's home had been relieved and no danger exists, told the Herald yesterday the city should receive test results from the gasoline stations today.

THREE UNUSED tanks, at 1578 Miner St., allegedly in violation of city ordinances were unearthed over the weekend at fire department demand, Haag said.

The request for gas station testing at the Union 76 station, Pearson Street and Miner Street; the Standard Oil station, Miner and River Road; and the Arco station, Pearson and River, had not been prompted by complaints from downtown retailers, according to Lt. Richard Arthur, chief fire inspector. The testing was just a precaution, he said.

However, a Herald survey yesterday of downtown merchants along Miner indicated that several feel gasoline fumes in their basements are a problem.

A. A. Goldin, pharmacist at Miner and Lee Street, said his pharmacy has been plagued with the smell of gasoline for several years, and sometimes it had given him and customers headaches and nausea.

When he had complained about a year ago to firemen that gasoline odor was coming up from the basement sewers, he said they told him there was a leak somewhere in a gas tank.

The unused gasoline tanks which were unearthed over the weekend, reportedly had been in place for at least 25 years.

Arthur said yesterday he had received no complaints of gasoline odors since the early 1960s when a leak was discovered at the Union 76 station and a faulty tank was removed.

ARTHUR ATTRIBUTED the odors to "sewer gas," the decomposition of materials in seldom used sewers.

Stanley Whitebloom, of the Metropolitan Sanitary District's industrial sewer division, said yesterday his investigations in the Kosmen home area have found no gasoline in the sewers.

Anti-Noise Ordinance Getting National Notice

Des Plaines' new anti-noise ordinance, designed to give relief to the eardrums of local residents, itself is creating quite a commotion.

The law, which officials say is aimed ultimately at testing the city's authority to combat noise from jet aircraft using O'Hare Airport, has been reported nationwide by news wire services and received the attention of NBC and CBS in Chicago as well as Chicago newspapers.

The ordinance specifies noise limits for autos, trucks, construction equipment, farm tractors, snowmobiles, dune buggies, — virtually all motor-driven vehicles, tools and equipment. It provides fines of $15 to $300 for the first offense and up to $500 or six months in jail for subsequent noise violations.

Much of the ordinance follows provisions of the anti-noise law passed last year by the City of Chicago. The one big difference, and the key portion of Des Plaines' new ordinance, is the following provision:

"It shall be unlawful for any person to operate or cause or allow the operation of an aircraft within or without the city which produces at any location within the city a sound in excess of 90 decibels at ground level," the law states.

The detailed and highly-technical ordinance sets down specific decibel-level standards for cars, trucks, motorcycles and other vehicles sold in the city. Manufacturers or their agents must specify to the city that vehicles they sell here comply.

The law also regulates vehicles operated in the city and prohibits changes in mufflers or built-in noise abatement devices that result in higher noise emissions from a vehicle than it originally gave out when manufactured.

The ordinance makes use of standards and test procedures set down by the Society of Automotive Engineers in measuring and determining vehicles, equipment and tool noise levels.

The ordinance, according to Ald. Alan Abrams (R-1), member of the city council's environmental controls commission, makes mention of noises traditionally covered in nuisance ordinances.

In language which Abrams said is word for word from Chicago's new law, the ordinance forbids causing a "distinctly and loudly audible" noise "of any kind by crying, calling or shouting, or by means of any whistle, rattle, bell, gong, clapper, hammer, drum, horn, hand organ, mechanically-operated piano, or other musical instrument, mechanical device, radio, phonograph, sound amplifying or similar electronic device" on or near a public way.

Abrams said some news reports have concentrated on that portion of the law rather than the more significant sections regulating vehicle, equipment and aircraft noise.

The loud drum, musical instrument or shouting prohibitions are traditional elements of age-old anti-noise laws and have been incorporated in both Chicago's and Des Plaines' ordinances, he said. The courts do not accept "frivolous" complaints, he pointed out, and residents shouldn't fear that their children will be cited if they cry near the street.

The new law also bans horn-blowing when a vehicle is not in motion or sounding vehicle horns "for an unnecessary or unreasonable period of time." In addition, the law bans blowing of stationary steam whistles except as alarm signals.

The ordinance empowers the city commissioner of building and zoning to take legal action "for the abatement or prosecution of emissions of noise or earth-shaking vibrations which cause injury, detriment, nuisance or annoyance to the public or endanger the health, comfort, safety or welfare of the public or cause or have a natural tendency to cause injury or damage to public or property."

The city hopes to hire a pollution control officer some time this year, who will begin enforcement of the new ordinance among other duties. Abrams said city officials plan to acquire noise measuring devices capable of checking the vehicles and equipment covered by the law.

(For the last several years, Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 has been plagued by seemingly endless problems. This is the second in a series that will examine the causes and results of the district's problems.)

by WANDALYN RICE
Many of the same policies which made Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 nationally renowned for innovation in the 1960s also contributed to the district's later problems.

A process of decentralization, consciously encouraged by Supt. Roger Bardwell during his tenure, broke down the identification residents, teachers and principals had with the district as a whole.

The "excited, creative" staff members hired to work in the educational programs also shared another trait — they didn't stay long with the district. Many left to get advanced degrees or left for districts with offers of greater responsibility. And they left in greater than normal numbers.

And the fiscal cliff-hanging needed to continue expanding educational programs and keep up with the district's rapid growth could work only as long as outside grant money was available and

CHECKMATE WAS THE name of the game at Saturday's Des Plaines Park District chess tournament at West Park. A total of 33 youths participated in the double elimination meet. Here Richard Archambault, right, was making a vital move against Mike Mennella. Winners in the high school age and older division were Bob Kinney, first, and Richard Collet, second. Junior high age and younger division winners were David Clark, first, Jim Chiropolis, second, and Tim Murray, third. Third-grader Mike Chiropolis won first place in the novice division. Second place went to Jane Stube and kindergartener Mary Podgorski won third place.

Schools Plagued By Hidden Traps

voters remained willing to raise the tax rate.

The decentralization, which Bardwell also attempted when he was superintendent in Ithaca, New York, was a conscious policy to free the individual schools from control by central administrators.

"I'm convinced the superintendency is an obsolete position," says Bardwell, who left Ithaca this year to become an assistant publisher for Harper and Row in Evanston. "Education shouldn't be managed and controlled, and the bureaucracy should disappear."

THE POLICY succeeded both in freeing each school to approach education in its own way and in creating competition among schools for all available resources.

"I remember when I first came to the district," one principal says now. "One of the guys who'd been here a while took me into the corner and told me that the idea was the guy who hustled most got the most."

Gene Artemenko, who was serving on the school board when Bardwell resigned, saw the problem too.

"Bardwell had made individual arrangements rather than establishing consistent policy. There were inequities among individual schools because some principals were more ambitious than others," he says.

The same policy also had an effect on residents of the district.

"We were creating a more autonomous, decentralized district. People really identified with the elementary schools, and they were only incidentally a part of Dist. 59," Bardwell says.

Last year, while going from school to school trying to explain the need for a tax rate increase, the present superintendent, James Erviti, often used nearly the same words.

"Our district is so fragmented," he grumbled, "that people don't identify with the needs of a thing called Dist. 59."

Tax increases were easy to come by when Bardwell was superintendent. The district regularly asked for building bonds and for tax rate increases, all of which passed. At the same time, the district went deeply into tax anticipation warrants (TAWs), even issuing warrants borrowing tax money that would not be collected for two years.

Bardwell and his business manager, William Mann had a plan to get the district out from under the burden of debt. "We were hoping to create a system that would be so good people would support it with property tax, but we had to time the referendums carefully and we couldn't afford to lose one," he says.

IN ADDITION, by spacing the referendums and taking advantage of the growing tax base, Bardwell says he assumed the borrowing would eventually be ended.

"We started cutting back on TAWs the last year I was there. I thought if we came back soon enough for a referendum we could give the district the stability it would need," he said.

What Bardwell and others doing the planning at the time could not foresee was how fast inflation would spiral costs, outrunning the tax rate growth. In addition, the grant money, which the district was cashing in on, began to dry up.

Ludwig Bodzewski, who had been assistant superintendent under Bardwell and served as acting superintendent when Bardwell left, saw it happen.

"When we moved educationally, we moved not with district money. In the 60s the federal government set aside billions of dollars to support education. Then the money ran out at the federal level, and it

From The Library

Parents who recognize the need for increased and better sex education for their children will find books at the Des Plaines Public Library to be a dependable source for basic authoritative information on this difficult subject.

Helpful advice about what to tell your children about sex can be found in such guides as "Talking to Children about Sex" by Edna Lehman; "Sex in the Adolescent Years" by Isadore Rubin; "Your Growing Child and Sex" by Helene Arnsperg; "Sex and Your Teen-Ager" by Eda J. LeShan and "New Ways in Sex Education" by Dorothy W. Baruch.

For children and young teens, there are books in the Children's Room, such as Eric Johnson's "Love and Sex in Plain Language"; S. M. Gruenberg's "The Wonderful Story of How You Were Born"; E. M. Duvall's "About Sex and Growing Up"; Ingrid Fetz "Before You Were a Baby"; Karl De Schweinitz "Growing Up"; Julian May's "Man and Woman"; and Benjamin Spock's "A Teen-Ager's Guide to Life and Love."

SOME OF THE general titles on sex instruction for the teen-ager and young adult includes "Understanding Sex: A Young Person's Guide," by Alan Guttmacher; "Love, Sex and Being Human," by Paul Bohannon; "Young People and Sex" by Arthur Cain; "Sex Before Twenty" by Helen Southard; "Love and Sexuality" by Robert Grimm and "Modern Catholic Sex Instruction" by Joseph M. Reuss.

The library also has books for adults on sex in marriage and other related subjects.

Following is a list of new books at the library.

"Dead of the House" by Hannah Green. Old style novel of the Nye family, grandfather to granddaughter under one roof, enjoying and suffering the midwestern American experience.

"Old Girl Out" by Elizabeth Howard. Novel about the harmonious household of Anne and Edmund Cornhill, wrecked by the arrival of a charming niece, a serpent in Eden, who insists on being wanted.

"The Longer the Thread" by Emma Lathen. John Putnam Thatcher once again rises to the challenge of financial trickery and murder, this time in a garment factory in Puerto Rico.

"Teacher and Child" by Haim Ginnott. Author of "Between Parent and Child" gives more advice to parents and teachers on communicating with children.

"First American" by C. W. Ceram. Author of "Gods, Graves, and Scholars" covers North American archaeology in this account of the origins and early history of the American Indians.

"Mafia is Not an Equal Opportunity Employer" by Nicholas Gage. Grim account of the change of organized crime from rum-running and gang killings to Swiss bank accounts and legitimate business, right in your own neighborhood.

"Open Marriage" by Nena and George O'Neill. How to put zip in an old institution.

"The Workers" by Kenneth Lasson. Ralph Nader's Raiders search for the causes of alienation and monotony in describing the lives of nine average American blue collar workers.

"Pawns" by Peter Barnes. Today's draftees in Vietnam contrasted with the free citizen soldiers of 1776.

"The Assassins" by Elia Kazan. Author of "The Arrangement" writes another novel bursting with life, this time dealing with student-police confrontations.

"Mash Goes to Maine" by Richard Hooker. Author of "Mash" brings the four irrepressible surgeons back from Korea to heal the natives of the state of Maine.

"Fielding's Travel Guide to Europe" by Temple Fielding. 1972 edition of the guide to where to stay and eat and what to do on a European vacation.

"Complete Antiques Price List" by Ralph Kovel. 40,000 current prices for collectors of almost anything.

"Schools Without Failure" by William Glasser. Psychiatrist gives educators and parents pointers on motivating students and on solving behavioral and learning problems within the classroom.

"Double-Cross System" by J. C. Masterman. Head of British intelligence in World War II describes the Nazi espionage system, thus giving spy buffs another book to read along with Farago's recent "Games of the Foxes."

"Report From Engine Co. 32" by Dennis Smith. This lively account of the hard, brutalizing life of a fireman in a large city is near the top of the best sellers list.

"Hedda and Louella" by George Eells. Hollywood biography of the gossip columnists Hedda Hopper and Louella Parsons.

"Something Beautiful for God" by Malcolm Muggeridge. Not much talk in this biography of a nun, but a lot of action, Christian love in action, a rather scarce commodity at times.

Extend Leaking Gas Tanks Probe

routes connected to the eastern downtown area would have indicated gasoline in the past, he said.

Arthur said water was found in two of the tanks at 1578 Miner, which were also pitted with rust and had large holes in them. A small amount of gasoline was found in one of the tanks, he said.

Testing of the stations will not require any curtailment of service, Arthur said. The Union 76 station had to be partially closed because of the complicated arrangement of the tanks and difficulty in testing them, he said.

Haag reported no gasoline had been removed from near the Kosmen property since March 19 by the city-placed pump between his property and a Citgo service station, adjacent to Kosmen's home.

However, a Herald reporter last week-end witnessed the characteristic rainbow caused by petroleum products floating on the water underneath a drain in the basement of Kosmen's house.

THE CITY HAD ordered removal of the Citgo service station's two 6,000-gallon tanks in early March, following about five months of complaints from Kosmen.

Citgo Oil, which has replaced the two tanks with new tanks, has denied the tanks were leaking. A test by a firm hired by the city also indicated the tanks were not leaking.

Kosmen has charged that the city allowed illegally patched tanks installed at the Citgo station. Those tanks, he charged, were later removed.

Kenneth Meyer, Kosmen's lawyer, said that despite what Citgo says, the company still removed the tanks, indicating "something must have been wrong." Haag said yesterday that the amount of gasoline being removed by a city pump dropped to nothing after the tanks were removed.

No test was taken of large amounts of liquid found under the tanks when they were removed, Haag said. Kosmen said he saw large amounts of gasoline in the water. Haag said the water was sprayed with a fire retardant as a precaution and drained.

Samples of gasoline from Kosmen's basement and from the city pump are being analyzed by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, according to Gregory Cargill, of the board.

Howard Chinn, technical advisor for the Environmental Control division for the Illinois Attorney General's office, said decisions on further steps for state action on possible pollution problems will be made within two weeks.

Haag said yesterday the gasoline at the Kosmen residence could have been residual gas from a leaky tank removed in 1970 from the Citgo station, at city request. Or the gas may have come from leaks while the tanks were filled, he said.

Kosmen has demanded the city make soil borings to determine the source of the downtown gasoline leaks. He claims there is gasoline at the ground water level underneath parts of the downtown.

He said this leakage comes from service station gasoline tanks the city has not done an adequate job of inspecting. Kosmen originally notified the environmental protection agency and the attorney general's office of possible leaks and environmental damage.

Haag said the fire department does check for safety at service stations, but it does not check for leaks in tanks unless there is a complaint. "We've felt that if there is a leak the gasoline companies would want to check them and fix them up so they don't lose money," he said.

A test, paid for by the city, has indicated gasoline taken from the Kosmen property is "similar to" Citgo brand gasoline. It cannot be determined conclusively, however, if the gasoline is Citgo's brand, Haag said.

The study also indicated the gasoline tested was "old," not recently in the ground, but "how old" can't be determined, he said.

According to Kosmen, laboratory analysis can determine the brand and approximate age of gasoline discovered in the ground.

Progress Reported On Land Swap

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel yesterday said he has made "headway" in his efforts to end a stalemate between St. Mary's Church officials and the Des Plaines Redevelopment Association.

Although the mayor declined to reveal details of a meeting yesterday with William Roach, Chicago Catholic Archdiocese property consultant, Behrel indicated the meeting had been productive and congenial.

"I think he went away with the idea of our sincere desire" to reach an agreement, Behrel said. The redevelopment association has sought an exchange of property with St. Mary's parish so that Prairie Avenue may be widened, a change considered essential by city officials to spur downtown redevelopment and retail shopping construction.

THE ASSOCIATION wants to trade land adjacent and south of the recently constructed church, 794 Pearson St., for land now occupied at the northwest corner of Pearson and Prairie Avenue by the 9,000 square-foot church building, a parking lot and playground.

In past statements, the Rev. Martin Farrell, St. Mary's pastor, has indicated that the parish wants to be paid, in addition to the land trade for the old church, which is being renovated as a community center.

The city is readying plans to widen Prairie into a four-lane roadway, which would be part of the city's $5 million traffic plans for removing downtown bottlenecks. The city also plans to use part of the St. Mary's property for its proposed new Center Street parking lot, part of the $225,000 parking program the city expects to begin this year.

Behrel said yesterday, at his weekly press conference, that he had met with Roach and other archdiocese officials last year when the city was studying the church-requested annexation of 450 acres of land near Holy Family Hospital, 100 N. River Road.

ROACH IS A "very knowledgeable fellow," Behrel said. The mayor indicated there is no feeling that either party is setting up roadblocks.

He called the inability of the two sides to agree during the past year-and-one-half an "impasse."

Another meeting has not been scheduled, the mayor indicated. He does not know now whether he will have to meet personally with John Cardinal Cody, who would ultimately make the decision on whether land should be traded.

PTA Notes

St. Mary's School PTC will meet tomorrow at 8 p.m. at the school, 1455 Prairie Ave., Des Plaines.

St. Mary's has announced an ambitious program outlined to coordinate with the Archdiocese campaign "Choose Catholic Schools" through the months of March and April. The Rev. Robert Clark, Catholic archdiocesan superintendent of schools, kicked off the campaign with sectional meetings in four Chicago areas for principals, pastors and school board chairmen, stressing the advantages of Catholic education.

The program has the enthusiastic support of the Rev. Martin Farrell, pastor of St. Mary's. A committee headed by Mr. & Mrs. Fred Krohl and Mr. & Mrs. John Smith, is working to implement the campaign in the school and parish.

The seventh and eighth grade girls will serve their own home baked pastries at the meeting.

Schools Plagued By Hidden Traps

wasn't easy to get money anymore," Bodzewski says.

The district had, at that time, commitments for about $1.5 million in grants, and, Bodzewski puzzles, "Where in the devil could the district find a million bucks?"

The cutback of funds was not the only reason the staff was leaving. Many were going to better jobs in other school districts and in universities.

BARDWELL LEFT for Ithaca, pursuing an ambition to "be a big-city superintendent." Business manager Mann left. Others, at lower levels, were also leaving.

A list of principals in the district schools shows the trend clearly. Principals have left an average of every 1 1/4 years at Robert Frost School in Mount Prospect, and Grant Wood School in Elk Grove Village, every 1 1/4 years at Juliette Low School in Arlington Heights, and every 2 2/3 years at Salt Creek School in Elk Grove Village.

When the tenure of all the principals in each of the district's existing schools is averaged, it amounts to 3 1/3 years in each school.

"Sometimes a district can be too stable, with everybody staying too long, but you can also have too much turnover," one observer remarks. "I would think that much turnover would have worried someone."

Bodzewski and Bardwell were troubled by the problem and, in an effort to slow turnover, instituted a pay scale that would give some teachers more money than the minimum. In addition, they hoped that the programs run through grants would attract, and keep, the best people.

"We tried to have stability," Bodzewski says now when questioned about the problem. "The fact that anyone asks the question now shows, I guess, that we didn't succeed."

Funeral Services Today For Forest School Principal

Funeral services will be held today for Mrs. Dorothy Mackland, principal of Forest School in Des Plaines, who died Sunday. She was 56.

Mrs. Mackland, a nationally recognized educator, had been with Des Plaines Elementary School Dist. 62 for 21 years and was principal of Forest School since 1957. She had been ill with cancer.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. today at the First Congregational Church of Des Plaines, 766 Graceland Ave. She will lie in state at the church from noon until 1:30. Burial will be at Ridgewood Cemetery.

Leon Smaage, Dist. 62 superintendent, yesterday said Mrs. Mackland's death has been a "great loss to Forest School, this district and the community."

Mrs. Dorothy Mackland

"Mrs. Mackland's professional leadership as a teacher and administrator during the past 21 years has been exemplary," he said. Her "exemplary dedication, loyalty, professionalism and dignity is a legacy which we may all share as her friends and co-workers," said Smaage.

IN 1970, Mrs. Mackland was elected vice president of the department of elementary school principals of the National Education Association. She also served as an at-large member of the executive committee of the National Elementary School Principals Association.

A native of Des Plaines, she was a graduate of Beloit College and National College of Education. Mrs. Mackland was a charter member of the local American Association of University Women chapter and a charter member and past president of the Des Plaines Soroptimist Club.

She was active in the First Congregational Church as a trustee, member of the church council and a member of the church's education board.

Mrs. Mackland was preceded in death by her husband, John, who died in 1946. She is survived by two daughters, Wendy

Pro Raid On College Football? Paterno Would Take It In Stride

by RALPH NOVAK

NEW YORK (NEA) — Let's say that sometime in the near future Penn State University has this 250-pound sophomore linebacker who runs the 50-yard dash in 4.4 seconds, is three times as aggressive as Dick Butkus and has not missed a tackle in nine years.

And let's say that the Philadelphia Eagles' pay said linebacker $500,000 to quit school and turn pro.

Would Penn State coach Joe Paterno (1) take the matter to the Supreme Court; (2) accuse the sophomore of disloyalty to his school and possible Communist leanings; (3) threaten to hold his breath until the player returned; (4) shrug his shoulders in acceptance of grim reality and wish the player good luck?

If you choose any of the first three answers, it shows you know something about big time college football coaches. But it also shows you do not know Joe Paterno.

"I'd be unhappy to lose a good player, of course, but what can you do?" Paterno says. "Somebody offers a kid more money than he's ever seen before and he knows that if he doesn't take it, he might go out to practice tomorrow, break his leg and lose his chance forever. And he sees coaches jumping from school to school to get more money. How could I tell him to stay in school? There's enough hypocrisy around already."

Since pro football has not yet contracted the college raiding bug that has afflicted pro basketball, Paterno hasn't had to deal with that hypothetical situation. He has, however, thought about it, he said here recently during a break in his speaking tour for the American Football Coaches Assn.-Ten Council physical fitness program.

"There are a lot of reasons why we haven't had the raiding problem in football yet," he says. "One is that in basketball the individual player stands out more and you can pick up one player and make your whole team. Another is that because pro basketball hasn't had a merger, each league has to worry about the other signing the best players. And then the pro football teams don't want to tamper with the nice farm system they have in the colleges, either."

Then he all but yawns and adds, "In any event, raiding only involves a few kids out of the thousands and thousands who participate in college sports. I don't see what everyone is getting excited about."

Demons Score In Oak Park Track Meet

Maine East scored the only points among area teams in the Oak Park Relays indoor track meet Saturday.

Competing in Class A, the Demons scored two points by taking fifth place in the 16-lap relay. Maine West and Notre Dame, which also competed in Class A, failed to score.

Glenbard East won the Class A title with 39 points while Oak Park had 32, Alton 27, Proviso West 27 and Lane Tech 26. Wheaton North won the Class B title with 30 points and Oregon won in Class C with 25.

More than 70 teams and 1,000 athletes competed in the meet, which is annually one of the largest indoor affairs in the country.

Joe Paterno

Unusual talk for a football coach. Typical for Paterno.

Winning is not everything," Vince Lombardi said. "It is the only thing."

"You can't tell kids that a football loss is a tragedy," Joe Paterno says. "If we win, great. If we lose, it's not the end of the world. There will be another game next Saturday and the Saturday after that."

What kind of coach would say things like that?

Well, for one thing, Paterno is the kind of coach who has the best record of any major college coach in the country. Since he became head coach at Penn State in 1966, his teams have won 53 games, lost 11, tied one.

He is also the kind of coach who protests about recruiting practices, protests about the NCAA, protests about red-shirting, protests about tyrannical win-at-all-costs coaches until sometimes it seems he doth protest too much.

But he is also, rarest of all, the kind of coach who keeps himself and his job in perspective.

"I shouldn't really talk about what's happening in basketball because I don't know anything about it," he says at one point. "But then there are those who say I don't know anything about football, either."

And: "There's a lot of talk about how a kid should be loyal to his school. Well, school gets a lot out of a kid, too. You have a good athlete who handles himself well off the field, he attracts a lot of favorable publicity. Your school can have the best librarian in the world and nobody will ever know it. An All-American football player is something else."

And: "I know everybody says this but I mean it: We want student-athletes at Penn State, not just athletes. There are more things to life than football." (Paterno never even tried to recruit Joe Namath even though Namath's high school coach was one of Paterno's best friends. Namath's grades were too poor, Paterno said.)

These attitudes have not made Paterno popular with many of his fellow coaches or the athletic establishment in general but his players speak highly of him and, not incidentally, they win a lot of games for him. And pro teams have shown an interest in him, maverick attitude or no.

"I wouldn't want to close off my possibilities by saying I would definitely never want to coach in the pros," he says. "But right now I'm very happy doing just what I'm doing. I'm not sure I would ever want to be in a situation where winning was my only goal."

Santo, Cubs Still Search For A Long Lost Pennant

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — (NEA) — It's soliloquy time for Ron Santo, who's oppressed by the idea of being a loser. An even dozen seasons have passed since Ron came up with the Chicago Cubs to stay. The Cubs have been legitimate pennant contenders the last three years.

Still, nothing in the way of satisfaction for a man as intense as Ron Santo. So he has had a shouting match with Manager Leo Durocher, mostly about the way Durocher ran the Cubs last year. Before that he openly blamed a young outfielder for blowing an important game.

He is 32, the captain of the team and a successful business man outside of baseball (paper company, food company, travel agency) — facts designed to mellow a man.

"I can't change out there," he shakes his head.

"I can get so hot I want to kill. But if there's anything on my mind, I get it off. I don't want to get any ulcers. I play it hard and emotional. But as upset as I get as a ballplayer, I can forget it just as quickly. I don't stay mad."

"I'm no problem to Leo Durocher. We understand each other. I think he'll tell you that. The Skip's a lot like I am."

"You know, everyone thinks it is rosy and peaches and cream playing baseball. But over the course of 162 games, things do happen. Guys can get in fights. They argue. Because there's always the tension."

"You can't mellow in this game. You can't feel like too nice of a guy."

"I've always played the hell out of third base. And playing third base becomes easier as I get older. I've talked it over with Brooks Robinson, who has to be the greatest. I'm a good third baseman. I'm quick — not fast — and have good hands. I know a lot more. I love it. It's part of my life."

And yet there's the frustration of never finishing first (it has been that way for the Cubs since the end of World War II).

"We should have won two out of the last three," he says with passion as he confronts another season and at least 154 games (he has never played fewer since 1960, his rookie season) at third base.

"All right, Pittsburgh last year was just a much stronger ball club. Not talentwise as far as the starting lineups go. But they had some kind of bench, could put in nine new guys. They had the depth."

"In 1969, we should have won. There was no doubt in my mind. We had an eight-game lead in September. But Chicago had never been in first place in my 12 years. And we led right from the start of the season. We felt the pressure most off the field. That's where we got tired. Not physically tired, but mentally tired. Being asked to go every place — it was great, the attention, but it got to us. All of a sudden, the Mets were by us. When you're eight games ahead, it's like eight inches; when you're eight behind, it's like eight miles."

"The following year we definitely were better, but we kept thinking of '69 and it affected us. Then '71 was just one bad year. We started off bad defensively. Not physical errors, but mental mistakes. I hit .267, same as the year before, but it was a bad .267. Down in home runs. Not as many runs batted in."

Santo, a long ball hitter whose career home run total is exactly 300, dropped his RBI production from 114 in 1970 to 88, his poorest showing since 1962. Still, he played in his seventh All-Star game. And he senses no slack in skills or interest — for himself or the team.

Santo says he is looking forward to this season with renewed vigor and optimism.

"When you're contented," he says, "It's time to quit."

Hawthorne's 'Corralled' Top Jockeys For Opener

An all-star array of top jockey talent — including such crack riders as Carlos Marquez, Phil Rubbicco, Jeff Anderson, Louis Spindler, Craig Perret, Lonnie Ray and Earlie Fires — is assembling for the 1972 Hawthorne spring meeting which triggers Chicago's thoroughbred racing season on Saturday, April 15.

It insures a rare combination of big name jockeys and horseflesh for Hawthorne's early 39-day season, first six programs of which will be conducted by the Chicago Sun-Times-Daily News Charity Trust.

Coupled with the West Side oval's lucrative stakes program — 14 events totaling $420,000 in added money, easily the richest in local history for a spring meeting — managing director Robert F. Carey confidently predicts some of the finest thoroughbred sport ever seen in Illinois at this time of the year.

"Some of the riders have yet to firm up their spring schedules," said Carey, "but judging from the big roster of name stables and trainers coming to Hawthorne, and knowing the jockeys that usually ride for them, we should come up with one whale of a meeting."

In addition to the above list, Carey said several other top riders — like Ray Broussard, Tony Rini, Steve Richie, Bobby Nono and Doug Richard — also are expected at Hawthorne thru May 30.

Carey, keeping up on the current racing news, noted that recently jockey Phil Rubbicco piloted Joseph R. Straus' heralded three-year-old No Le Haze, to a brilliant victory in the coveted $59,000 Louisiana Derby in New Orleans.

On the same day, but at Oaklawn in Arkansas, Louis Spindler was in the

O'Hare Inn Tennis Club Opens In May; Accepting New Members

Featuring two brand new tennis courts with special lighting for nighttime play, the O'Hare Inn Tennis Club will open its new season in May and is currently accepting new members on a limited basis, announced William J. Horine, general manager.

Surfaced with Westco turf, the O'Hare tennis courts will be available for night games for the first time with the addition of new lights being installed at present. A new pro shop will also be added this season with instructor Jim Kreutzer in charge. Kreutzer is an experienced teaching professional and was formerly the captain of the Elmhurst College tennis team.

Other facilities which will be available to O'Hare Inn tennis club members include locker rooms, saunas and two swimming pools. Plans for the club include special holiday tournaments, an area tournament and a club championship tournament with handsome trophies to be awarded to the winners.

The new season will be kicked off next month with cocktails and a dinner party for all members.

Information about O'Hare club membership is available from J. David Loucks, O'Hare Inn assistant general manager at 827-0214.

Summer Sports Camp Set In Indiana

Director Phil Hones announces that Wawasee Prep is planning its third annual Summer Sports Camp.

Prep, which is located on the northern shores of Lake Wawasee, Syracuse, Ind., is an ideal spot for participation in all kinds of sports. School facilities are available for soccer, football and basketball. There are three golf courses in the lake's area close to the school and all of which are used for the program. Lake Wawasee affords an excellent locale for all water sports.

Once again Prep will hold four separate sports camps where young men may learn skills in one specific sport while still being able to utilize the full facilities in his off time. All sports camps will also be held for girls and boys during this period.

For the first time a Girls' All Sports Camp will be conducted. This camp will include aquatics, golf, tennis, gymnastics, volleyball and basketball. The camp is scheduled for June 11 to 17 and is limited to 40 girls from ages 10 to 17.

The Boys' All Sports Camp will be conducted from June 25 to July 1 and a second week from July 2 to 8 for boys ages 8 to 17. Land sports will include football, tennis, golf, soccer, baseball and basketball. Aquatic sports will include skuba diving, life saving, swimming, canoeing and water skiing. Tom Nova from South Bend, a highly skilled aquatics instructor, will handle the waterfront activities. The overall camp is directed by Phil Jones of Prep's staff.

The first of the specialized camps, the soccer camp, open to boys ages 10 to 17, will once again be led by Bob Bueker, U.S. Olympic Coach, ably assisted by Jerry Yeagly, head soccer coach at Indiana University. This camp will be held from June 18 to 24 and will teach the basics of soccer, including the rules, strategy and other essentials of the sport. Daily scrimmages will be scheduled in game-like settings.

The Midwest National Golf Camps will be conducted from June 25 to July 1 and from July 2 to July 8 and is open to boys 8 to 17. Chuck Pagano will be the camp pro and has been with Prep's summer program before. He is now teaching and playing out of Miami, Fla. In addition, the golf camp will have the services of some of Indiana's fine professionals.

The football camps will be held from July 9 to 15 and July 16 to 22. Wawasee Prep Summer Sports Camps are fortunate to have, once more, members of the coaching staff from Notre Dame to conduct these camps. Wally Moore, offensive line coach; Brian Boulae, assistant offensive line coach; and Bill Hickey, recruiting coordinator and assistant line coach will be the backbone of these camps. The staff will teach boys 10 to 15 (Indiana residents) and boys ages 10 to 17 (out of state residents) the fundamentals of running, blocking, tackling, skills with the ball, conditioning and reading offense and defense. This will be Wally Moore's third year as head of Wawasee Prep Football Camps.

The basketball camps will be held July 23 to 29 and July 30 to August 5. The Lakers' Basketball Camps will be headed by Gene Sullivan, former assistant basketball coach from Notre Dame, a man who has been with Prep's basketball program for three years. The camps will be open to Indiana boys ages 8 to 15 and out of state boys ages 8 to 17. The basketball camp will concentrate on individual instruction in the basic skills and fundamentals of the game. Camp counselors will be composed of outstanding high school players in the area.

Director Jones says that each young person attending one or more of the Wawasee Prep Summer Sports Camps will return to his home school more proficient in general sports and in any specific sport in which he may have particular interest.

For information write to Wawasee Preparatory, RR 1, Syracuse, Ind., 45567 or call Col. J. A. Gray at 219-457-3033.

Quality Of Life

Conference Probes Adolescent Problems

by DOROTHY OLIVER

The adolescent. Where is he at? Why did he get there? What will he be like in the future when he is the adult of tomorrow? What can be done for him?

These were the issues discussed by physicians, psychiatrists and experts who work with young people at last Thursday's session of the National Congress on the Quality of Life, sponsored in Chicago by the American Medical Association.

The 14 to 24-year-olds of 1970 are the primary group to watch for trends, asserted Clark E. Vincent, Ph.D., director of the Behavioral Sciences Center at Bowman Gray School of Medicine.

The more than 40 million people in this age group were reared in a permissive affluent society, have received an unprecedented amount of publicity and visibility by the media, have formed values and ideals amid a vacuum of non-responsibility and reality testing, and will comprise the overwhelming majority of parents of youth in the 1980s, he said.

THE PARENTS of the 14 to 24-year-olds (now in the 35 to 55-year-old category) can be called the "caught generation," Vincent continued. They were reared learning the dignity of work, the necessity of saving, accepting and respecting the authoritative wisdom and experience of their parents.

The "caught generation" is a scared generation, Vincent said, afraid of their children (who use the threat of love withdrawal to keep their parents in line) and afraid of the disapproval of their parents.

Because of their unfeeling belief in science and scientific child rearing, "middle class parents in particular have been indoctrinated with the notion that unless they are obtuse, evil or stupid it is possible to rear the perfect child. . . . Missing is the precious freedom to fail," Vincent asserted.

THEY HAVE NOT reared their children to be like they are (and are therefore guilty in the eyes of their parents) and they have not reared perfect chil-

Parents may be going overboard with the empathy and material help they are giving their children out of their feelings of guilt, Vincent suggested.

"We increasingly see today's parents continue to make sacrifices to support their married children in college. . . . They are not quite ready to let go. Parents try to expiate their guilt by compensating for their purported failure by continually helping their children. It would be far more reassuring to parents were they to accept the fact that one can never really know how youngsters will turn out. . . ."

"INTERLACED WITH this, of course, is that parents have been indoctrinated to assume all of the credit, hence are stuck with all of the blame concerning their influences upon their children," Vincent said.

The feelings of being failures as parents should not be, he continued. The overwhelming majority of parents have done a commendable job of child rearing. Youth will respect parents to the degree that parents respect themselves. Parenthood is not a popularity contest.

Because of the way 14 to 24-year olds were reared, Vincent sees the pendulum swinging back when they bring up their children. They will usher in the "security conscious seventies" with highly restrictive childrearing, political conservatism and international isolationism.

"THEY ARE accustomed to having their wants regarded as needs to be satisfied here and now," Vincent said.

"However, they will usher in another restrictive era consistent with their experience of a high priority having been given their own needs and wants, and consistent with their emphasis, if not insistence, upon being heard and doing their thing."

Already there are signals. College students speak of the immaturity of youth and don't take the time to listen to those younger than they (as they were once not listened to); many of the "anti-male-rationalism" and "love" advocates are now supporting themselves with paying jobs and resenting income tax and "freeloaders."

They comment that their own parents lost control or couldn't control them. They respond that they intend to change this — to maintain control.

"Will today's adolescents repeat the mistake of their restrictive-conservative grandparents?" Vincent asked.

YOUNG PEOPLE have had many important things to say. "I'm concerned many of the views and ideas of the '60s are going to be lost," Vincent said, adding that 75 per cent of our youth think, act and live as their parents do and the other 25 per cent seem to be heading toward a quiet conservatism out of impatience.

These youths were reared on action, demonstration and instant change. Impatience has replaced patience as the virtue.

"I'm seeing in my office the young married couples who want immediate change in their spouse. Will they demand the same of their children?" he asked.

"Children have the feeling of 'what's the use,'" said Jerome V. Holland, a child psychiatrist at the University of New Mexico, replying to Vincent's presentation during a panel discussion. "They are filled with sadness and depression."

HE CHALLENGED Vincent's suggestion that parents are too empathetic to their children by stating, "Parents of the 35-55 age category are indicating to their children recently that they do understand. . . . I would rather see us as a community understanding human behavior, growth and development of children in order to help them alleviate depression."

Other panel members chastised the adult generation for contributing to youth's "what's the use" attitude by giving them models in the adult world (government officials, etc.) that are exposed in scandal; by looking at their problems (such as drugs, venereal disease or pregnancy) as something to be solved by punishment rather than prevention; by bringing them into a society of "less-eligibility" (where some members are less equal than others). Adults frown on their drugs yet with medicine cabinets bulging may be the real "dopers."

Yet despite all of this, one panel member asserted, youth's values are coming back to love, peace, inner peace, freedom, and inner freedom. "The travesty is that we have given youth almost no power or no permission to become mature," he said.

Declaration Of Interdependence Stresses Priority Of Children

by DOROTHY OLIVER

The American Medical Association, with the cooperation of numerous national organizations, last week called together physicians, psychiatrists and others who work with young people to discuss the quality of life as it related to prenatal care, infant and child care and adolescents.

The four-day conference, which boasted notable speakers, looked little to what has been done and mainly to what they can do to make this world a better place for those as yet unborn, as well as those already born.

Perhaps one of the most impressive statements to come from the conference, which was attended by more than 700 men and women, was the "Declaration of Interdependence" signed by many before they returned to their homes.

"WE DECLARE," it begins, "That the Nation's highest priority should be its children.

"That the destiny of each child should reflect his individual potential rather than the result of environmental or economic deprivation."

"That the opportunity to be born healthy should be accorded to each American."

"That social, educational, physical, mental, emotional and environmental conditions which cause human blight affect children of all classes, all races and all persuasions and, therefore, are a national problem."

"That human blight perpetuates the cycle of unhealthy mother — unhealthy child — unhealthy mother — and ultimately an unhealthy nation."

"THAT PREVENTION of human blight is more fruitful and more economical than the costs of individual, institutional and social care."

"That the achievement of these goals demands an end to fragmentation and the beginning of a new interdependent relationship among all governmental, social, welfare, health, medical, educational, religious and legal agencies."

"Having so declared:

"We the undersigned,

"Commit ourselves to seek an end to human blight."

"Pledge ourselves to a new era of cooperation among each and all of us."

"Dedicate ourselves to an interdependent effort to achieve for each American child his basic inalienable right: A Life of Quality."

Saturday, they packed up and returned to their practices, agencies, churches and offices. Time will tell whether they took with them more than momentary enthusiasm and an official looking piece of parchment filled with idealistic phrases.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: Enjoy your column immensely but do question your advice about cooking a chuck roast all day at 200 degrees. I've read that you are really courting botulism if you cook at any temperature under 300 degrees. Would appreciate your checking this.

—Helen Snowden

I'm afraid you're confused between fresh meats and canned meats. There isn't a thing to worry about when you are cooking fresh meats — and, thus, temperature means nothing. Botulism occurs only in the absence of air. Hence, it is only in canning meats and a too low temperature used in the pressure cooking that there is a possibility of trouble. This is a good time to point out again that one should never do any home canning without all the proper information at hand.

Dear Dorothy: By accident I got the wrong kind of cod liver oil preparation to use on my baby's diaper rash. The diaper rash is gone but everything he has worn smells like a fisherman's wharf. I've tried bleach, disinfectant, detergents, soaking, lemon juice and so on. Nothing has worked. Any ideas?

The old faithful — baking soda in solution — ought to do it. Not only will it absorb the odor, but emulsify the oil which will make it easier to get out in laundering.

Dear Dorothy: How can you remove impressions made by furniture on heavy carpeting?

—M.C.

Dampen the area slightly (be sure it doesn't go through to the pad beneath) and rub gently with a brush. When dry, go over it a few times with the vacuum cleaner. You could also try holding a steam iron (not too close) over the spot, using a brush at the same time. These treatments may have to be repeated, depending on how deep the impression.

The Easter Buffet April 2 At Marriott

The annual Easter Sunday Buffet in the grand ballroom of the Chicago Marriott will be replete this year with an elaborate menu, ice carvings by Head Chef Manfred Mork and a visit from the Easter Bunny, who will have surprises for the youngsters.

The buffet, from noon to 5 p.m. April 2, will feature baked ham, roast leg of lamb and prime roast of beef, preceded by an array of appetizers and salads. The meal will be topped off with a special desert selection. The buffet is priced at $5.50 for adults and $2.85 for children under 10.

Information and reservations for the event are available by calling Mrs. Carole at 693-4444.

Clipped Wings Host Lunch At The Abbey

O'Hare Chapter of Clipped Wings, United Air Lines Stewardess Alumnae, will play host to two other chapters at a spring luncheon Thursday, April 13, at The Abbey at Lake Geneva.

Members of the Chicago and Milwaukee chapters have been invited to the social event, at which Raymond Boyle and Frank McNulty of United Air Lines will be guest speakers.

New United stewardess alumnae in this area who would like to attend are invited to call 358-1903 for reservations.

She's 'King' In An All-Male World

by HELEN HENNESSY

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Even if they have never had closer contact with a train than boarding it for a trip, no one thinks of the "weaker sex" when they hear "I've Been Working on the Railroad." But times change and the guys must move over to make room for the dolls in that once all-male world.

That sums up the highly favorable employment outlook for women in the rail industry as seen by Harold H. Holmquist, personnel vice president of the nation's longest railroad, the 26,000-mile Burlington Northern.

A "king" is rail industry "slanguage" for a yardmaster, the person who bosses operations at those sprawling electronic complexes in which hundreds of freight cars are assembled into long trains.

NEW OPPORTUNITIES for women have been opened up by technological advances that link sophisticated electronic equipment and computers, Holmquist said. "Women now fill 70,000 — or 12 per cent — of the 560,000 jobs in our industry and the employment outlook for them has never been better."

"That figure is certainly going to increase during the years immediately ahead," he added, "because we continue to hire more women than men in many staff categories and they now compete equally with men for openings in line operations."

"I was one of a group of rail industry personnel directors who met in Washington, D.C., not long ago to discuss the role of women in our industry. We found that there wasn't a job on a railroad that some woman couldn't handle."

HOLMQUIST'S railroad employs 3,400 women, including one "king" Mrs. Muriel Saign, 28, serves as relief yardmaster at the BN's classification yard at Fargo, N.D.

Some of the most promising employment opportunities for rail women appear to be as programmers, systems analysts and other data-processing-related positions, according to Holmquist.

"We operate about 1,000 trains each day, some of them comprising 100 freight cars or more," he said. "Increasingly we are relying on electronic equipment and computers to keep track of these thousands of cars over our 19-state system."

Railroads are becoming increasingly selective in recruiting new employees. Holmquist now is beginning to receive reports from the railroad's regional offices as to personnel needs for the second half of 1972 and beyond. Last year members of his staff visited 30 college campuses in their recruiting work.

"IT'S TOO early yet to determine whether we'll need to fill vacancies for key punch operators, programmers, personnel assistants, nurses, social counselors or some of the positions in which women are numerically and traditionally dominant," he said. "Of course, we continually are screening applicants for jobs as secretaries and clerks."

Mrs. Saign started with the railroad as a clerk. "Today's woman is seeking the jobs that require a higher degree of skill, judgment and training and that offer advancement into management posts," said Holmquist. "They are ready both professionally and psychologically to handle greater responsibilities."

The increasing importance of womanpower in railroading, especially in filling jobs offering greater responsibility and higher pay, has generally coincided with the disappearance of women from other types of rail work. For example, the rather short-lived day of the lady dancer (track worker) ended with the end of the manpower shortage of World War II.

"BUT LADIES," said Holmquist,

Working On The Railroad

"your chances are improving each year if you aspire to wear the railroader's 'thousand miler' (blue shirt) and move up the promotion ladder until you can 'blow smoke' (brag) to the children about your days as a 'Master Mind' (official) when you rode the 'chariot' (caboose) or 'drone cage' (business office on wheels) behind transcontinental 'hot shots' (fast freights)."

Some folks might be interested in knowing that railroaders observe 'Rule G' (Thou Shalt Not Drink) and that to them a 'highball' is a signal to go ahead at high speed.
